LONDON'S VIEW IS GRAVE

Thinks France Contemplates Further Occupations and That Military Men Hastened Advance.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 11.—Premier Millerand lets it be known that he will not participate in the San Remo conference of the allied Premiers unless by the time it meets the British representative shall have retaken his place in the Committee of Ambassadors. The San Remo conference is scheduled to begin on April 19.

The Committee of Ambassadors' next meeting is called for tomorrow morning. Up to tonight Lord Derby, the British Ambassador, had not received instructions to attend, without which he will not be present.

Millerand's attitude is based upon the theory that the pending Franco-British discord must be settled ahead of all other business. In other words, it must be settled before the San Remo conference takes place.

Millerand probably feels that if he took his seat at San Remo with the Allies divided as they are today he would be in the minority, because Italy is presumed to side with England, and thus there would be two Premiers against one, inasmuch as the Japanese member does not take a very active rôle.

Millerand to Speak Today.

I am informed that the French Premier will make an important statement in the Chamber tomorrow in reply to a question which will be posed regarding the attitude of the French Government toward enforcement of the Versailles Treaty. I am further informed that the Premier will stand firm on France's reserving the power to act again alone if she believes her national existence endangered.

It will be recalled that on Friday there was delivered the British note criticising France's occupation of Frankfort and asking that France give assurance that in all propositions of treaty enforcement she would act in accord with the Allies.

Until this assurance was given Lord Derby was to refrain from attending meetings of the Committee of Ambassadors, the body officially charged with the enforcement of the treaty.

In the note delivered in London yesterday morning, M. Millerand defended France's independent action and, criticising concessions to Germany, said: "France is forced to say today 'enough.'" His note concluded textually:

"Under consideration of these conditions, the French Government does not hesitate to declare that in all interallied questions which involve execution of the treaty it foresees no case where it would not be happy, before acting, to assure itself of the agreement of the Allies."

I pointed out in yesterday's dispatch that this wording reserved, in the ultimate sense, France's liberty of individual action. That is what the French want and London has realized it.

British Not Satisfied with Reply.

This morning Lord Derby handed to M. Millerand the British reply, in which the London Cabinet expressed dissatisfaction with this final paragraph, and in asking further enlightenment requested it be told finally whether France means to reserve freedom of individual action in enforcement of the treaty. The British note was conciliatory in tone.

It seems that Lloyd George thus forces the issue with Millerand, who appears determined not to tie France's treaty rights up too tight with Lloyd George. His reply to the latest British note will probably not be sent until after he asks a vote of confidence of the Chamber tomorrow.

Stripped of the many words surrounding it, the diplomatic situation is this: France agrees to act in accord with the allies so long as the allies enforce the treaty. England objects to France's being the sole judge of when the treaty is enforced and objects to France's acting alone so long as she is associated

Some German Troops Retire; Fresh French Advance Alleged

BERLIN, April 11.—The withdrawal of all German troops no longer needed in the Ruhr district has already begun.

This semi-official announcement was made today.

The German Government has notified the French Government, according to official announcement today, that it has received reports that French troops are advancing toward Aschaffenburg (twenty-three miles southeast of Frankfort), and, if that is true, Germany is obliged in all earnestness to point out the danger of collisions with the German troops.

France has replied that it has no intention of occupying Aschaffenburg, and adds that neither was Stockstadt occupied, though it had been necessary on military grounds to push forward advanced posts in the neighborhood of Stockstadt.

URGE SUIT AGAINST CREEL AND BABSON

111 PUBLICATIONS KILLED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Legal proceedings against George Creel, Roger W. Babson, C. T. Clayton and Edward S. Rochester, individually or collectively, to determine if the Government can recover any money from them for the transfer to Babson, without cost to him, of the Official United States Bulletin, published by the Creel Committee on Public Information during the war, are recommended in the report, made public today, of the Joint Congress Committee on Printing.

The report says the committee investigated 266 journals, magazines and periodicals, and discontinued 111, at an annual saving of $1,200,000. Eight army and navy newspapers were suppressed, at a saving of $400,000. Many of the Government war publications, the committee found, says the report, were used for propaganda work and the self-glorification of certain interests.

Calls Transfer Wrongful.

Regarding the transfer of the Official United States Bulletin to Babson the report says:

"The committee is of the opinion that this entire transaction relating to the Bulletin was a wrongful one on the part of all the persons concerned therein, especially Creel, Rochester, Babson and Clayton, all of whom were Government officials at the time the Bulletin was taken over by Babson."

When the Government discontinued the Bulletin, on April 1, 1919, Creel, it is asserted, without consulting any one, turned over all its affairs and subscription list to Babson, who was then connected with the Department of Labor. The first issue under Babson gave the impression that its publication would be continued by the Department of Labor. This was corrected by a statement from Secretary of Labor Wilson, and after a week the paper stated that it was published by Babson, who remained with the Department of Labor until June 26, at a salary of $5,000 a year. Another Department of Labor employe, Clayton, also remained on the Government payroll while devoting a part of his time to the Babson Bulletin.

From May, 1917, the first issue, to its final issue on March 31, 1919, the cost of the publication amounted to $680,400. It had a daily circulation of 100,000 copies. The expenditures for printing started in May, 1917, at the rate of $10,000 a month, but by December, 1918, amounted to $70,000 a month. The salary expenses at the start were $800 a month, but in December, 1918, amounted to $2,500 a month.

"When it became evident to Creel and Rochester that the Bulletin was not to be continued as a Governmental organ,

Governor Huerta Made Dictator of Sonora; All Federal and State Troops Called to Colors

NOGALES, Sonora, April 11.—Telegraphic dispatches from Hermosillo, capital of the State, say the Congress there has designated Governor de la Huerta as the "supreme power of the Republic of Sonora."

General Calles, who has been made Commander in Chief, has issued a proclamation at Hermosillo calling on all Sonora soldiers, whether Federal or State, to rally to the Sonora colors against an invasion by Carranza soldiers. Sonora troops control the entire State, according to official reports.

Word from Sinaloa says the Congress of that State has indorsed the action of the Sonora Congress in demanding its constitutional rights against an invasion by Federal forces.

Customs houses and all property of the Federal Government of Mexico were formally seized in the name of the "Republic of Sonora" here today.

General Plank, recently discharged as Commandant of the Federal Fiscal Guard, with headquarters at Magdalena, arrived here last night and turned over the custom house and other Federal property to the State of Sonora.

THRONGS SEE PLANE IN DIVE OF DEATH AT NEWARK FIELD

ENGINE STOPS IN FLIGHT

CROWDS BLOCK RESCUERS

Chemical Fire Extinguishers Rout Spectators After Manoeuvring Trucks Fail.

In sight of thousands whose pleasure at stunts high in the air turned to horror as they realized the approach of swift disaster Frederick Robinson, a United States air mail pilot, crashed his plane to earth in a spinning nose dive at Heller Field in Newark yesterday. Clarence Stapleton, a mail clerk, aloft for the first time, was crushed to death and Robinson, a young Californian, is unconscious and dying in the City Hospital.

The two men had been up some time, Stapleton almost invisible where he sat far down in the rear cockpit, Robinson appearing now and then when the bright sunlight picked out his helmet. The little plane had circled the field several times, had engaged in various spectacular manoeuvres in each of which the pilot seemed to be an easy master of his craft, and finally had been put briskly through evolutions that both delighted and nettled the observers.

One moment it came swooping down in a steep glide, only to straighten out when so near the heads of the spectators at one side of the field that those at the edge broke and ran down the far side of a railroad embankment. Then, with an impudent flip of its tail, the plane scudded upward once more. This time it glided on a direct angle for the other side of the field, and straightened out only when those watching it from the far side had gasped in anguish as it seemed about to smash into the trees fringing the field.

Once more it righted itself jauntily, soared aloft, and did a few more spirals and glides and flipflops, which would have evoked applause if the watchers had not known that the roar of the engines would make it impossible to hear their plaudits.

Throngs Scent Danger.

Of a sudden the engines stopped. The propeller still whirled of its own momentum and the plane started downward from a height of a thousand feet in a spinning nose dive. The spectators, necks bent far backward, held their breath as they counted one—two—three—four—five spins. Here and there was a murmured word of admiration, but as the craft, still spinning, came swiftly within a few hundred feet of the ground, even the most unlettered in the lore of the air looked anxiously to see it right itself and come gliding gently to rest.

But the plane only whirled the faster, and at last, just a second or so before the end came, the watchers knew they were looking, helpless, at disaster.

An instant later, rushing swiftly, nose first, at a sharp angle, the plane, like some great, grotesque projectile, hurled itself into the earth, splintering and smashing and twisting, and then lay inert when the last strut and stay and wing had torn itself into a shapeless mass.

Heller Field is edged by the tracks of the Greenwood Lake branch of the Erie Railroad on one side, and by those of the East Orange branch on the other. On the railroad embankments forming the sides of a natural arena a great crowd stood, watching the exhibition that has come to be a regular Sunday afternoon feature at the mail-flying field.

For just an instant after the Curtiss J-N training plane had crashed, the watchers stood motionless, awe-stricken. Then they dashed in a panic-stricken im-

President, Looking Well, Resumes His Motor Rides

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—For the first time in two weeks, President Wilson left the White House shortly after 11 o'clock this morning for a motor ride in the April sun.

He was accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, his physician, and Secret Service men, and rode through Rock Creek Park for an hour and a half. The President looked well, and smiled and waved his hat to pedestrians gathered in front of the White House.

The fact that the President during the last two weeks had discontinued his motor rides gave rise to reports that there had been a setback in his condition. This was denied by Dr. Grayson, who asserted that the President was in better physical condition now than at any other time since his return from his Western speaking tour.

HELD AS PROFITEER, HE KILLS HIMSELF

Joseph Nichthauser, Brooklyn Haberdasher, Freed on Bail, Ends Life with Bullet.

HAD "GOD HELP US X" CODE

Price Marks Cited by "Flying Squadron" Agents as Evidence of Excessive Charges.

Arrested on Saturday by the Department of Justice Flying Squadron, whose members said his "God Help Us X" price code proved him a profiteer, Joseph Nichthauser, proprietor of one of Brooklyn's best-known haberdasheries, killed himself yesterday. His is said to be the first suicide resulting from the Government's war on profiteering.

Nichthauser was seized in his store, at Court and Montague Streets, opposite Borough Hall, and taken to the Federal Building, where United States Commissioner McCabe released him in $2,000 bail, furnished by a surety company after his tender of cash bail had been refused. He was to have been examined on April 21.

The haberdasher went home, silent and brooding. He kept his arrest a secret from his wife and his three children, Alfred, 25 years old; Helen, 22, and Frances, 13, until they read of it in the afternoon newspapers. Even then Nichthauser, who was born in Austria forty-seven years ago, and came here about twenty-five years ago, becoming a naturalized citizen, declined to talk.

When he and his wife, Regina, retired, Mrs. Nichthauser again tried to get him to discuss the case with her. Though he tossed wakefully all night, he would not say one word about it. At last Mrs. Nichthauser rose to prepare breakfast. No sooner had she stepped from the room than Nichthauser seized a pistol, which his family think he had kept concealed all night under his pillow, put the muzzle to his forehead and pressed the trigger. His wife rushed back into the room too late. A physician who lives in the same apartment house, at 78 Prospect Park West, Brooklyn, hurried to his side but found him dead.

Nichthauser's arrest followed an investigation which Edward Williams and Shelby Williams, members of the Flying Squadron, said showed that, besides paying himself a salary of $6,000 a year, he made a profit of $17,000 a year on a limited capital.

The agents learned that the price code with which he marked his goods at their wholesale cost was "God Help Us X," each letter standing for a numeral from 1 to 9, the X being zero. They examined raincoats in a case and said they were marked "OD" and "DD," showing that they had cost $23 and $33 each. Then they selected a coat marked "OD," said they wanted to buy it, and asked the price. Nichthauser, they reported, demanded $45, nearly 100 per cent. profit, for it. Thereupon the agents charged him with violating the Lever act and arrested him.

Nichthauser went into the haberdashery trade about fifteen years ago. He clerked for a time in the Broadway section of Brooklyn, but soon launched out for himself. He opened the store opposite Borough Hall some years ago.

KANSAS ORDERS ARREST OF STRIKE LEADERS

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 11.—Four complaints charging violation of the Kansas industrial court law were issued late tonight on the Kansas side against striking members of the Switchmen's Union. The complaints were filed in the Wyandotte County District Court, and warrants were issued immediately for the arrest of the men.

"The State of Kansas is in earnest and will tolerate no defiance of the State laws," Attorney General Hopkins declared tonight. Mr. Hopkins has been investigating the causes of the strike for two days and subpoenaed several of the strikers to testify before him. The complaints issued tonight, however, are based on reports received from field investigators, it was said.

STRIKE WEAKENING IN WEST

Defections in Columbus, Chicago, Kansas City and California.

UNIONS SAY PEAK IS PAST

SOME EMBARGOES LIFTED

Freight Service Is Still Paralyzed in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan and West.

CHICAGO, April 11.—The first important break in the unauthorized strike of railroad employes, which started in the Chicago Terminal District nearly two weeks ago, occurred tonight at Columbus, Ohio, when 600 switchmen on the Pennsylvania Railroad voted to return to work tomorrow. In addition 500 engineers and firemen, forced out of work by the strike, will return.

Although there was no general movement back to work among the 40,000 men reported on strike throughout the country, defections from the ranks of the insurgents were reported yesterday and today in Chicago, Kansas City, in California, and several other places, and brotherhood officers are confident that the peak of the strike movement has passed.

Leaders of the rebel walkout, however, maintained that the strike was gaining momentum, and that their ranks were daily augmenting.

A statement issued by railroads in the Chicago area declared that the situation was steadily improving, and that the movement of livestock, coal and other commodities into Chicago was increasing. Passenger train service was being maintained at 100 per cent., it was announced.

In Chicago freight embargoes have been lifted by the New York Central and the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroads. In a number of important rail centers railroad employes have voted not to strike. Large sections of the country still were virtually unaffected by the walkout, including the southeastern, the northwestern and mountain States.

In Columbus, where about 3,000 men were idle, the return to work of one-third was expected to relieve the food and fuel situation.

Seven hundred striking switchmen at Milwaukee voted today not to return to work. The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road declared an embargo on perishable freight. At Wellsville, Ohio, 250 yard men and road men went on strike today. More men went out in the Pittsburgh region and fifty quit at Peoria.

Steel Mills Lay Off Men.

In the Cleveland district, where 2,000 were reported on strike, blast mills and steel mills began laying off men. Eleven hundred men were thrown out of work in Newburgh. The normal movement of freight in Cleveland was down to one-fifth today. All terminals, with the exception of the Collinwood switching yards, where 500 cars of freight were handled, were reported tied up.

W. G. Lee, President of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, said he had received many reports from Brotherhood chairmen throughout the country announcing improved conditions.

Loyalty to the union was pledged by Cincinnati switchmen in a telegram to S. E. Heberling, President of the Switchmen's Union of North America. Cincinnati was the only large Ohio city unaffected by the strike.

No change was reported in the strike situation in Kansas City, where about 1,300 were reported out. Two hundred strikers returned to work yesterday. Four warrants for strike leaders were issued at Kansas City, Kansas, on request of Attorney General Richard Hopkins.

Demands of 4,000 striking yardmen at Detroit were presented to railroad officers today. No progress was reported toward a settlement of the strike. Nearly 2,000 men were out at Niles, Jackson, Battle Creek, Kalamazoo, Saginaw, Flint and Pontiac, Mich.

Freight traffic on several railroads entering Pittsburgh was reported at a standstill and many through passenger trains on the Pennsylvania were annulled. On the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad 2,690 men were reported out. They were joined by 400 conductors.

"The situation in the Chicago district is distinctly improved tonight," S. E. Heberling, President of the Switchmen's Union of North America, said. "More men are returning to work, and we look for an early return to normal conditions."

Predicts Collapse of Strike.

Mr. Heberling said that brotherhood leaders were meeting with delegations of strikers in an effort to end the walkout, and that satisfactory progress was being made. Union chiefs are confident that if the walkout is broken in Chi-

Summary of the Rail Strike Situation In New York at 3 o'Clock This Morning

The strike situation at 3 o'clock this morning was:

New York Central passenger service was restored to normal. Loyal engineers, members of the brotherhood, took the places of striking firemen. Some freight was moved.

Erie Railroad service was completely suspended, except for three through passenger trains.

The Pennsylvania had annulled twenty-three passenger trains from its schedules. Through trains were delayed up to 5 hours and 58 minutes. Freight service was crippled. Drivers of forty electric locomotives operating from Manhattan Transfer to the Pennsylvania Station struck, but their places were filled.

Lackawanna Railroad suspended its entire suburban service. Three through trains were run from New York. No freight moved.

West Shore maintained a practically normal passenger service. No freight moved.

Lehigh Valley trains were delayed from Pennsylvania Station. Some freight moved.

Baltimore & Ohio trains from the Pennsylvania Station were subject to long delays. Some freight moved. Freighthandlers on Staten Island walked out last night.

Central Railroad of New Jersey ran on regular schedules, except for slight delays. Freight tied up.

New York, New Haven & Hartford announced cancellation of fifteen trains today. Service around New York normal yesterday. Freight tied up.

Long Island maintained normal passenger schedules. Freight badly tied up.

Hudson and Manhattan tube service continued suspended. Cars will not run today.

Railroad ferry service still is curtailed. Erie boats to Forty-second Street were not running. Others were running on irregular schedules.

Milk trains were coming through on time. The city has forty-eight hours' milk supply on hand.

Employes of the Public Service Corporation in Jersey City and Hudson County, New Jersey, were called upon, unofficially, to walk out at [illegible] o'clock this morning.

Health Commissioner Copeland last night called a meeting of dealers and distributers in foodstuffs and milk for this afternoon to make plans for a food emergency.

Staten Island Rapid Transit Company trainmen were reported to have voted to strike today.

MAIL TRAIN CREW LEAVES IT STRANDED

First Case of the Kind in This Strike May Cause Washington to Act.

BUT LOYAL CREW MANS IT

Palmer Stops His Tour to Deal with the Situation—Hint of Indictments.

Announcement was made by Erie Railroad last night that the Chicago Express, eastbound, one of the best trains on the Erie, was abandoned by its crew at Port Jervis, New York, ninety miles from this city, at 5:43 o'clock P. M. yesterday. Erie officials said at a late hour last night that there was no chance of the train reaching New York with its 250 passengers, milk and United States mail on board.

The Chicago Express was shunted on a siding when the express train reached Port Jervis. The crew alighted and attended a railroad workers' meeting. The formation of an association of yardmen, brakemen, switchmen, conductors and engineers was in progress. Michael Moran was elected Chairman. He was a former conductor on the Erie. In the meantime the 250 New York bound passengers sat anxiously in their coaches while the railroad workers deliberated in the Town Hall.

Finally the embryo railroad Soviet decided that they would permit the mail and milk to go through but not the passengers. This provoked a dispute at the station and the train was abandoned.

A substitute crew from Jersey City arrived in Port Jervis early this morning and manned the train, which resumed its run at 3:15. If the usual schedule for the ninety-mile run was made the train was due in Jersey City at 5:45 o'clock this morning.

Firemen on the Chicago Express announced that the train carried "passengers only" and that they had agreed to run only trains carrying mail or milk. Two hundred and fifty passengers either were housed in homes here or engaged taxicabs and automobiles and continued toward New York.

One passenger, an aged woman from California, who was suffering from paralysis, was taken to a private home. She left San Francisco more than a week ago for New York. She was in a serious condition.

There was no trouble with the engineers of the train, but the firemen insisted they would not work on trains carrying only passengers. Railroad officials announced that the train carried mail and milk.

The passengers accepted the situation good-naturedly. A diner on the train served what food there was remaining, and other hungry passengers were fed by the people of Port Jervis. A few passengers found friends or relatives in Port Jervis.

JERSEY CITY MAYOR WOULD LEAD STRIKE

ROADS REFUSE HIS OFFER

Manager of Erie Declares No Conference Will Be Held with Outlaws.

Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City expressed his unqualified approval of the trainmen's strike yesterday, stating he would do all in his power as Mayor to bring about a fair adjustment, and added that he would call upon the Governor of the State if necessary. A committee of twelve was chosen to confer with him today. He was loudly applauded and cheered by the strikers, of whom over 2,000 filled every inch of floor space in the Grand View Hall in Jersey City. The meeting was held by the United Railway Workers of America and was closed to the press with the exception of about ten minutes, during which Mayor Hague spoke.

The meeting started a little before the arrival of the Mayor, at about 11 o'clock, who had with him Chief of Police Richard T. Battersby and Under Sheriff Thomas Madigan. Newspaper men who had been refused admittance to the meeting prior to the coming of the officials were permitted to enter with them after the Mayor had insisted upon having his address to the delegates made public. When the reporters walked across the platform they were greeted by hisses and boos from all parts of the hall, and the catcalls did not cease until the Chairman had looked at the newspaper men's police cards and finally decided that they might remain.

Hague Offers to Lead.

"I'm with you on this strike," said Mayor Hague. "Remember, boys, you must present your case to the people as well as to the officials. Use your heads and let your leaders lead you. If you have none, let me lead the strike for you from this time until it's settled. We don't believe in violence; we are here as peaceful citizens, as hard-working men and men of families.

"I as Mayor of Jersey City have led every labor controversy that has taken place here in the last eight years, and I am just as proud as any man who has stood on a public platform to state that I have always led them to success. Why was I successful? Because I insisted upon law and order, and because I gave to the public press a free hand and a fair deal, and I expected the same from the press.

"You've got to admit the reporters to your meetings; it's not a secret conference. Let the whole world know that all you boys want is just and honest treatment and a fair, just and honest pay. Every just person knows your strike is just. Don't demand that this man or that man be removed; appoint conservative men on your committee; let me know who they are, and let them go with me to the railroad officials and present your demands.

"Have confidence in me. I am a friend of labor; the whole world knows that, and I'll never deny it. Labor has

PENN TERMINAL CRIPPLED

PEACE OFFER REJECTED

COMMUTERS WANT GUARDS

Meeting Favors Running Trains Under Protection—Copeland Calls Food Conference.

The "outlaw" strike on the railroads entering New York City terminals did not prevent the movement yesterday of an adequate passenger train service, except on the Lackawanna and Erie Railroads. Freight service was pretty thoroughly tied up, although food and other trains were moved by the New York Central and the Pennsylvania, and some freight was moved by all roads.

The latest local development in the strike occurred shortly after midnight this morning, when forty of the fifty-two crews of electrical engines running from Manhattan Transfer to the Pennsylvania Station on the early morning shift quit work, threatening to reduce sharply the operation of passenger trains from Long Island and Jersey City to the Pennsylvania Station.

Officials of the railroad said last night that, in anticipation of the strike of electrical crews, they had called together experienced electrical men from other parts of the lines, who had been put to work immediately in the places of the strikers. This strike will probably result in the necessity for unloading many passengers for New York on the Long Island Railroad at Long Island City and on the Pennsylvania at Jersey City and Newark. Pennsylvania officials said that the electrical workers had begun to drop out early yesterday morning without explanation.

Engineers and helpers who were at work during the night and were due to quit at midnight, were urged to continue at their posts during the morning, and they continued to operate the trains to the end of the schedule. It was expected that they would join the strikers and fail to return to work tonight.

At 3 o'clock this morning it was said that three of the four engine crews required at that hour were at work in the Pennsylvania station. One of these three crews was working overtime to move the night trains. The day crews are due to report at 7 A. M. If they should not appear the alternative would be the operation of the road's passenger business under steam from the old Jersey City terminal.

Yardmen at the terminal estimated that the entire Long Island Division of the Pennsylvania would be tied up today, as the crews were turning in the late trains at the Sunnyside yards at Long Island City with threats not to return to work today.

C. I. Leiper, General Superintendent of the terminal, reported early this morning that twenty-four conductors had visited him at his office to complain of conditions. Two of the conductors acted as spokesmen and after a discussion Mr. Leiper prevailed upon them, he said, to take out their trains today at the usual time.

Long Island Switchmen Out.

The strike on the Long Island Railroad was reported to be more serious last night, in spite of the vote of the Long Island Division of the Brotherhood of Trainmen condemning the strike. At Police Headquarters it was said that a Long Island Railroad official had announced that 160 switchmen and 25 conductors and trainmen had suddenly joined the strike last night.

The New York Central made a quick recovery from the blow at its passenger service by Saturday's strike of the terminal workers, and maintained its passenger service without a break, using executives, office men and old employes to fill in the gap made by the strikers. In addition 100 freight cars were moved. Its difficulties were increased last night, however, by the walkout of twelve firemen at the Mott Haven yards.

Loyal engineers, who are members of the Brotherhood, stepped into the breach and worked as firemen on the New York Central last night, to take the places of the striking firemen.

This was said to be the first instance in which Brotherhood engineers had accepted posts as firemen to aid in breaking a strike, and showed that Brotherhood men on the New York Central were ready to make a vigorous battle for their organization.

A number of engineers and firemen from passenger trains have voluntarily gone to work on freight engines to keep essential freight in motion and some of the railroad companies have under consideration the question of still further reducing their passenger service to move perishable or necessary freight.

New York Central Firemen Out.

The New York Central firemen walked out shortly after 8 o'clock. Superintendent Miles Bronson appealed to the Brotherhood and six men volunteered immediately. They took over the jobs on the switch engines, and after a slight delay, the normal service was resumed.

The walkout of the firemen caused six trains to be consolidated into three: No. 79 and No. 61 both for Albany; No. 55 for the Adirondack and No. 89 for Buffalo, and No. 63 for Syracuse and No. 59 for Buffalo.

Following a conference of officials of the New York Central last night, P. E. Crowley, Vice President and general manager, said:

"We confidently expect to run the regular service, both commuters' and otherwise, today."

A milk train of fourteen cars, due at 12:30 this morning, arrived in the Mott Haven yards at 1:30 o'clock and was immediately unloaded. Another milk train of nine cars from the Rutland Division was expected soon.

No brakemen or firemen appeared for work in the early hours of this morning in the Mott Haven yards. Special guards were posted at all entrances, and all railroad bridges in the Bronx were patrolled by police.

With forces recruited from the same classes, the Pennsylvania cleaned up the blockade at Manhattan Transfer, but was compelled to annul twenty-three trains out of the Pennsylvania Terminal and many of the trains out of Jersey City because of the strike and because of the number of engineers and firemen who reported sick, though not openly joining the strike.

Carrying out the idea of breaking down transportation of every description, strike leaders sought yesterday to get the teamsters of New York, Jersey City and Hoboken to join the strike. The freight tieup has already caused much unemployment among teamsters.

Railroads Reject Peace Offer.

The first effort to effect a settlement of the strike or a discussion of grievances was announced last night by Frank Hague, Mayor of Jersey City, who said that he had been empowered by the strikers to seek a conference with the railroad executives and that he was attempting to get in touch with them. J. J. Mantell, who presided at the conference of railroad managers yesterday, said that the railroad executives would refuse to negotiate with the "outlaws" and would consider no demands except those made in accordance with the terms of the Transportation act.

Mr. Mantell said that the disorganization of passenger service was of secondary importance compared with the tieup of freight traffic, threatening a famine of raw materials, coal and building materials and a reduction of foodstuffs to the industrial population of more than 20,000,000 in New York City and the manufacturing centres of New Jersey, Connecticut and Massachusetts.

A telegram from New Haven by Associated Press last night said:

"Cancellation of fifteen passenger trains because of the switchmen's strike around New York was announced tonight by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. All parlor and dining car service in and out of New York, except on three express trains, is annulled, effective at midnight.

"Nine trains out of New York are among those taken off, including the 11 P. M. express for Boston and the train leaving at 7:51 A. M. for Waterbury. The trains leaving Boston at 1:03 P. M. for New York and leaving Waterbury at 12:12 P. M. for New York also are annulled. Changes and curtailments are made in sleeping and baggage car service.

"The three trains on which dining and parlor car service will not be affected at present are the Knickerbocker Limited, the Merchants' Limited and the Colonial Express.

"Reports received here tonight said that the freight yards at Maybrook, N. Y., the Central New England Railroad gateway into New England, were tied up by the strike."

No strike threats have been made by the employes of the Interborough and Brooklyn Rapid Transit companies, and both of those companies have more than the normal supply of coal. While the warm weather will prevent suffering from the coal shortage, a system of preferences in the delivery of fuel may be necessary, it was said, in order to keep public utilities operating. The anthracite situation is especially bad because of the almost complete stoppage of freight service on the Erie and Lackawanna Railroads, which tap the anthracite section.

A drastic embargo on freight was in force on the Eastern railroads yesterday.

The newly created National Union of Railway Workers, the all-inclusive organization composed of bolting members of the four brotherhoods, the Hudson Tube employes and other classes of strikers, continued to hold meetings at Grand View Hall, Jersey City, yesterday, and to plan the further spread of the transportation strike, which some of the so-called "outlaws" predict will develop into a general strike. No official statement was issued by them yesterday. The leadership under which they were acting was not disclosed, and representatives of the railroad companies said that they had made no progress in the effort to discover the alleged hidden chief of the big movement.

Asserting that the strike was leaderless and based on a revolt of individuals against low wages and inaction at Washington on their long-standing demands, Mayor Hague, known as the "Labor Mayor" of Jersey City, addressed the men, declaring their strike to be a just one founded on intolerable grievances and asked the appointment of a committee to co-operate with him. He later undertook the ostensible leadership of the men and to convey their proposals to the railroad executives.

The local and official sentiment in favor of the strikers on the Jersey side was further emphasized by the action of Mayor Patrick Griffin, who turned the top floor of the Hoboken City Hall over to the strikers for a meeting place. This floor has been used as a State Guard headquarters.

"We are pretty well off for coal," President Hedley of the Interborough said yesterday, "much better than we have been at any time during the Winter. We have 16,000 or 18,000 tons, more than a week's supply, in the bins, and coal is still arriving regularly."

The rooms of the Brotherhood of Interborough Employes were locked yesterday. Louis Fridiger, counsel for the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employes, of which the employes of the B. R. T. are members, said that the men were negotiating for more wages, but that he had not heard any talk of strike.

Car Barn Workers to Strike.

Jersey City, Hoboken and all parts of Hudson County will be without trolley service after 5 o'clock this morning if the plans of the strike agitators go through. The Executive Committee of the Trolleymen's Association held a meeting yesterday, but announced no action. The officials of the organization took no open part in strike preparations, their inaction being due, it was reported, to the fear that the Public Service Corporation lawyers would attempt to prevent the strike by serving injunctions on them. The association has a two-years' contract with the Public Service Corporation, providing that no strike will take place during that period.

A committee representing the four large car barns of Hudson County met yesterday, and word was thereafter spread among the car barns that morning shifts should not report for work. Many old employes, it was said, are likely to disobey the indirect strike call, and a partial service may be maintained.

William Wepner, Chairman of the Conference Board of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America, started last night to make a fight to keep the employes of the Public Service Corporation on the job and to fight the strike propaganda among the trolley employes in Jersey City and Hoboken. He predicted that the attempt to tie up the trolleys there would be a failure.

The railroad men who have remained at work have not been molested. Bad feeling was reported between the ferrymen, who have remained at work, and those who have gone out. An alleged plot of the striking ferrymen to rush the workers and clean out the ferry service of the Lackawanna was reported yesterday to Director of Public Safety Bernard McFeley, who ordered the entire police force of Hoboken to gather at Police Headquarters at 4 o'clock to prevent violence.

His action followed the announcement of a mass meeting of the striking ferrymen in the street in front of the Lyric Theatre at 5 o'clock this morning. This hour was chosen, it was said, so that the strikers might go in a body to the waterfront to intercept the non strikers on their way to work, in order to plead with them or use force to strip the Lackawanna boats of their crews. Commissioner McFelley said that he did not fear violence, but was playing safe.

Strike agitators were taken by surprise by the action of the Long Island local of the Brotherhood of Trainmen in announcing the strike. Several "outlaw" spokesmen from New Jersey came over to attend the meeting, and one who gave the name of McCormick said before the meeting:

"We have come over here to formulate demands for the members of our organization who work on the Long Island Railroad and to present them to the management of the road. If we don't get what we are after, we will tie up the passenger service on this road, just as we tied up the freight.

"This is a strike by American men for American principles. We have nothing to do with the I. W. W. or any Bolshevist movement. Every man of us talks the American language. We have no foreigners directing us, and we are not following any foreign theories. We don't care for the Big Four either. If these men don't want to join us they don't have to."

The strike meeting was later held behind closed doors and lasted two hours, during which it was reported that fiery speeches were made, followed by jeers and hisses. The officials of the local, who demanded that the men remain loyal to the brotherhood, prevailed, by a large majority, it was stated. On the final vote, only those already on strike voted against condemning the strike. J. R. Lavin, the General-Chairman of the Division of the Brotherhood for Long Island, said after the meeting:

"The decision reached by the brotherhood is that the strike of the members of the brotherhood employed by the Long Island Railroad is wholly unauthorized and the strikers were requested to return to work immediately. The only dissenting votes to this decision were those who are actually out on a strike."

Mr. Lavin was asked what would be done if the men did not go back to work, and he replied that he had no further statement to make.

The decision of the meeting was communicated to the management of the Long Island Railroad. At the company's general offices it was said that this action of the Brotherhood of Trainmen would probably break the strike on the Long Island road. It was said that the passenger service would continue to be uninterrupted and every attempt would be made tomorrow morning to start the movement of freight.

Railroad officials said that they were not only going to fight the "outlaw" strike to a standstill in order to save themselves from domination by radicals employing lawless tactics but that they were compelled to make the fight because of the fact that, if they yielded to the "outlaws" they would invite a greater strike from the brotherhoods.

"These outlaw strikers have got the public by the throat at present," he said. "They have not only violated the laws of their labor organization, but the laws of the land. Under Government ownership the Government would not entertain demands from the men until they had returned to work. The Government, through the transportation act, has prescribed the manner of making demands, and no demands will be considered which do not follow this procedure."

Commuters Want Armed Guards.

The operation of trains under armed guards was urged at a mass meeting of commuters held last night at the Tenafly High School to protest against the strike.

Judge Ernest Heppenheimer of the Court of Errors and Appeals, who presided at the meeting, said: "The strikers have taken the public by the throat and we must adopt measures to fight them."

Watson G. Clark said he had been in touch with one of the officials of the company and said the company was ready to furnish the cars and the engineers if the commuters would supply the crews. It was then that the suggestion for arming the Home Guard to man the cars was made.

Howard Mott, Vice President of the Irving National Bank, New York, presented a resolution urging the strikers to "reconsider the socialistic nature of the strike and return to work at once pending an adjustment of whatever grievances they might have," and urging that Congress be asked to exercise all its power to restore railway traffic because of the "wanton nature of the strike, which precludes the possibility of temporizing."

Arthur F. Rice, commissioner of the retail coal merchants, in discussing the coal situation last night said that before the present railroad difficulty arose there had been great difficulty experienced in providing the city with a sufficient supply of coal, due to the harbor shipping conditions, and that the additional obstacle placed in the way of coal shipments by the railroad strikes would call for great care in distributing whatever small quantity of coal could be brought here.

Mr. Rice said no large orders for coal would be filled and that small lots of fuel would be delivered where most needed to keep the wheels of industry moving. He said the embargoes would be handled in their usual procedure, food being first and fuel next.

"The situation is very bad," Mr. Rice declared. "As to a price of fuel, nothing can be said as no settlement has been arrived at with the anthracite miners. There is some of the larger size coal on hand, but a very small quantity. Conditions concerning the smaller sizes used in making steam seems to be better, but far below the normal average."

Staten Island Votes to Strike.

The strike infection reached Staten Island last night. After several days of agitation by strike spreaders from New Jersey, the trainmen held a secret meeting at Stapleton Hall last night, at which they were reported to have voted in favor of a strike this morning, tying up the trains of the Staten Island Rapid Transit Company from the municipal ferryhouse at St. George to Elizabethport, South Beach and Tottenville. The Midland trolley line has not been running since last January, and the employes of the Richmond Light and Railroad Company, the other trolley lines in operation, have threatened to quit on April 15 unless their demands are met before that date. Their demands have been refused, and there is a possibility that after April 15 the 25,000 commuters of Staten Island will be without trolleys and railroad service.

Thousands of automobiles were carrying passengers from Jersey City and Hoboken to commuting points in New Jersey yesterday, and the prospects were today that the greatest jitney bus system in history would be placed in operation.

Director of Public Safety McFeely of Hoboken stated yesterday that no automobiles would be allowed to cross the already congested ferries, but that every facilities would be given for the establishment of bus lines for commuters.

S. C. Cowan, Local General Chairman of the Order of Railway Conductors, who was yesterday made a Deputy President of the order, appeared at the Pennsylvania Terminal last night and distributed among the railroad workers copies of the following telegram:

> Strike is illegal, against four brotherhoods and against railroads. Our existence is at stake. Our members justified under circumstances in working in both yard and road service to help save our organization. Common sense and reason begin to prevail. Situation improving.
> President Order of Railway Conductors,
> Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

A copy of the telegram also was posted on the bulletin board of the crew dispatchers' office at the terminal. Mr. Cowan personally went among the railroad workers and advised them to continue at work and not join in the strike.

Pennsylvania officials said last night that the freight embargo now in force was the strictest in memory, all shipments of freight, coal, steel and foodstuffs originating west of Altoona for points east being forbidden. All freight from the South for points north of Norfolk was also embargoed on the Pennsylvania.

Railroad officials characterized the embargo by saying that it was like "blocking up the Mississippi." This embargo, the officials said, would cause serious concern to all public utilities, large manufacturing plants and mercantile establishments that are dependent for supplies of coal and steel from the coal and steel districts in Pennsylvania, and that it likewise would cause concern to all dealers in foodstuffs and perishable food products dependent on the market south of Norfolk, Va.

It is now known that all Pennsylvania yards east of Waverly, N. J., are at a standstill. Not a wheel is moving at any of the yards of the Pennsylvania Railroad east of that point.

PREPARE FOR CRUSH ON FERRIES TODAY

BAR VEHICLES IN RUSH HOUR

Railroads Say the Boats Will Be Running on an Almost Normal Schedule.

Following the announcement by the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad Company that no trains for passengers will run today in the tubes and that it will not be until the middle or end of the week that trains can be run with strike-breaking crews, ferry officials made preparation for the heavy drain on the service this morning by commuters pouring into Jersey City and Hoboken by occasional trains, trolleys and emergency buses. It is expected that there will be two points of congestion in New Jersey—at the ferry houses and at Newark, where the chief avenues of approach to the river that are left are trolleys and the Newark Branch of the Central Railroad of New Jersey.

Although the number of boats plying between New York and the Jersey side will be almost normal this morning, their capacities will be taxed by the thousands who ordinarily would use the tubes. Between the rush hours of 6 and 9 A. M., it was announced, no vehicles of any character will be carried on the boats.

The Hudson & Manhattan Railroad Company has lost no time in beginning its plans to resume at least a partial service within the shortest time possible, and the promise of its President, Oren Root, to replace those employes who struck without warning was literally carried out last night. Applicants for the jobs vacated by the strikers put in their appearance as soon as they learned of the intention of President Root, and they began at once a period of training.

The first of these applicants who appeared to be capable of development into trainmen on the shortest possible notice were assembled early last evening at the Exchange Place Station of the tubes in Jersey City. Sleeping accommodations for them were furnished by idle tourist cars in the Pennsylvania sheds, and they were safeguarded against the intimidations of strikers who continued to loiter around the terminals.

From the trainsheds they were taken by way of elevators down into the Exchange Place station, where they were put on practice trains running between Jersey City and Cortlandt Street, Manhattan. Their period of training will include a certain number of runs, which the regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission requires of all trainmen before they are qualified for the operation of trains.

The movements of these replacement men were carefully guarded, and it was impossible to obtain from the officials of the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad Company any information as to their number and their previous experience in the operation of trains.

A return to almost normal ferry service this morning is promised by most railroads. The Lackawanna, operating eight boats yesterday on its usual holiday schedule, expects to have all twelve boats making regular trips today. The Erie hopes to increase its downtown service to normal, while the Central Railroad of New Jersey plans to have four of its five boats in operation. Pennsylvania officials said last night they would continue running four boats to Cortlandt Street and one to Desbrosses Street.

Most of the ferry traffic yesterday was by means of the Pennsylvania ferries between Cortlandt Street and Exchange Place, Jersey City, where trolleys connect with principal points on the Jersey side. Boats, crowded to capacity with passengers but few vehicles, were running on a twenty minute schedule. Lehigh Valley ferries between Desbrosses Street and Jersey City maintained a forty minute schedule, officials saying there were not enough passengers to justify more frequent trips.

The Central Railroad of New Jersey changed its ferry schedule to conform with its interrupted train service, some boats leaving the docks a minute apart, others twenty minutes and others after a delay of half an hour. Boats on this line were crowded, and railroad tickets were sold with the information that they were subject to delay, trains running to Newark on an average of twenty minutes during the day.

Police and special officers were stationed about each ferry house, but their chief occupation was endeavoring to answer inquiring passengers. The Fort Lee ferry reported a capacity business yesterday, attributed to automobile traffic diverted to this route in the belief that downtown service might be irregular. At noon about 400 automobiles were jammed in and around the ferry house extending three abreast as far north as 134th Street.

had confidence in me in every strike I fought for it, and I trust you boys will believe in me now. I am ready to be called upon and press the office that I occupy into service at any time. I shall be at your command every hour and every minute, and if necessary shall call into conference the Governor of the State.

"The thing you must do now is to elect your leader, get your grievances into shape and appoint a committee to meet me tomorrow in my office at City Hall. After we go over the whole matter let me get a settlement between you and the officials.

"Be calm, boys, and don't be jumping all over the hall, from one corner to the other, offering suggestions, as you were doing before I got up to speak. You'll get nowhere that way, but will simply be injuring your cause.

Warns Against Violence.

"This is one of the biggest strikes that has ever taken place in this part of the country, and I am here to help adjust your differences. Remember, there must not be any violence. I don't believe there will be any on the other side of the river, and I know there'll be no trouble in our terminals in Jersey. Another thing I am sure of is that no strike breakers or thugs will be brought over to this city."

While his speech was repeatedly cheered, his last statement brought the men to their feet, yelling and stamping. "Atta boy, Mayor!" "We're for you!" and "Hague for President!" were shouted from all parts of the room.

Continuing, the Mayor reassured the men that his sympathies were with them and stated that the differences between them and their employers were not so great they could not be adjusted. "I'm ready, and if you are, let's start tomorrow," was his final statement.

"Three cheers for Mayor Hague" were proposed by one of the men at the rear of the hall, and they were given with vigor.

When the noise of the cheering had subsided, the Chairman arose and said the advice of the Mayor should be well-taken.

"We are glad the Mayor has come to our help," said the Chairman, "for we are without a leader and need one. The movement was spontaneous; it just sprang from nowhere, but it's here."

As soon as Mayor Hague had learned of the appointment of the strikers' committee he sent word to Vice President Rine of the Lackawanna, representing the New York branch of the General Managers' committee, that he would be glad to use his offices to effect a meeting between the representatives of the strikers and the railroad officials. Mayor Hague said he wished to do everything possible to get the men and their employers together.

When the city officials left, the reporters were also asked to leave, and they were not allowed in again either at the morning meeting or at the afternoon session. A member of the Press Committee who had given information to the newspaper men after the meeting on Saturday stated that no news would be forthcoming yesterday.

He refused also to give the names of the committee who will confer with the Mayor this morning. The trainmen will meet again at Palm View Hall at 9:30 this morning, he said. When he was asked when the strikers intended presenting their demands, he said he did not know, but "they will not do it tonight." At the afternoon meeting reports from delegates were read, it was stated.

As the men passed out from the meeting place late in the afternoon it was observed that a great many of them wore the American Legion button in their lapels and still more had the bronze or silver service button. Two were observed to be wearing soldiers' uniforms.

August Griffen, a fireman of the Lackawanna Railroad, representing the firemen of that railroad, went to Mayor Patrick H. Griffen of Hoboken yesterday afternoon to request a permit for the strikers to hold their meeting in one of the available public buildings. His request was granted by the Mayor, who said he would permit the strikers to hold a meeting today, and any subsequent meeting, on the top floor of the City Hall.

MANTELL SAYS ROADS WILL NOT MEET HAGUE

Erie Manager Asserts Operators Cannot Treat With an Outlaw Organization.

The Railroad Managers under no conditions will accept the invitation of Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City to treat with a committee of outlaw strikers at the City Hall in Jersey City today or at any other time, according to a statement made to THE TIMES late last night by their spokesman, J. J. Mantell, general manager of the Erie Railroad.

"The operator cannot treat with an outlaw organization," said General Manager Mantell. "The law fully prescribes how this thing should be handled. There is a lawful and orderly way to handle these matters, and the Government itself has prescribed the way.

"This strike is affecting every big city and community of any size throughout the length and breadth of this land, and if they want to treat with us these men have duly organized representatives through whom they may present their grievances before us.

"I cannot believe that the Mayor of Jersey City has made such an offer. If he did, he has shown that he is not familiar with the Transportation act, which provides a way in which matters of this kind should be handled. He should bear in mind that this strike doesn't affect merely the community of Jersey City, but, as I have said, it affects practically every large city in the country.

"I repeat that I cannot consider meeting with an outlaw organization of this kind, which is absolutely leaderless, has repudiated its own officers, and has violated the laws covering the manner in which cases of this kind should be settled."

In view of the fact that the present strike movement is apparently leaderless, Mr. Mantell admitted that the railroad officials were still baffled over the steps they should take to meet the situation. As yet they have not perfected any plan for replacing the employes who have quit their posts, but he said this would be taken up in due time. The Managers' Committee is to have a meeting today.

Mr. Montell said that the strikers apparently had aimed a blow directly at the United States Government when a meeting of their representatives at Port Jervis decided to call out the men in that place yesterday afternoon, as a result of which a large consignment of United States mail from Chicago, on through train No. 4, due at Port Jervis at 5:43, was held up. Late last night the officials of the Erie had not found a way to bring this train with its Western mail on to Jersey City.

Another through train for Cleveland, which left Jersey City at 9:45 o'clock last night, was similarly held up when it arrived at Port Jervis, where a large consignment of mail will be held until arrangement can be made to have it sent forward. Mr. Mantell said it was doubtful when either of these mail trains could be moved out of Port Jervis, due to the action of the outlaw strikers.

He said that all the local service on the Erie was suspended during the day, although the through train service, with the exception of the two mail trains, had been running up to the time that the train from Chicago was held up.

DR. COPELAND CALLS FOOD CONFERENCE

Distributers, Dealers and City Officials to Discuss Transportation Crisis Today.

MILK SHORTAGE EXPECTED

Little Hope for Fresh Supplies, but Large Stocks Are on Hand in Warehouses.

While not alarmed because of the shortage of foodstuffs as a result of the harbor and railroad strikes, Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland last night called a meeting of dealers and distributers of foodstuffs and milk to be held in his office at 3 o'clock this afternoon, to go over the entire situation and determine upon plans to prevent a food famine in the event of a prolonged tieup of the transportation lines. To this conference will be invited wholesale and retail dealers, milk distributers, transportation officials and market department heads.

Dr. Copeland said that as the situation appeared to him from a careful survey made through his department, New York City is almost wholly dependent for her foodstuffs upon the supplies now in the stores and in storage in the city. His investigations, he said, showed that no foodstuffs other than milk are being brought into the city except over the New York Central lines.

Milk delivery was not interfered with yesterday morning the usual supply being received, but according to Dr. Copeland, there is much difficulty in getting the empty milk cans shipped back to the dairy farmers. He said there were now 3,000 empty cans at the New York Central Railroad. Patrick D. Fox, President of Borden's Farm Products Company, agreed with Dr. Copeland as to the difficulty in the return of the equipment to the farmers and the milk collecting stations. He said that the company was endeavoring to organize a Motor transportation service by which the equipment—cans, bottles, &c., may be returned promptly. This motor truck service would also bring milk into the city from nearby points in case it becomes necessary, it was said.

MERCHANTS TO GET COAST STRIKE QUERY

Steamship Managers to Ask Their Attitude if Strike Breakers Are Employed.

Upon the recommendation of the Transportation Committee circulars will be sent to the 6,400 members of the Merchants' Association to ascertain to what extent they will support the coastwise transportation lines in moving freight at the piers in this city in case the lines decide to resume operations, it was announced yesterday. The strike of longshoremen has entered its fifth week and the managers of the steamship companies, it is understood, have given serious consideration to the question of employing strike breakers, but they first desired to know how the members of the Merchants' Association would feel toward supporting such a movement.

The questions submitted by the steamship executives may be epitomized as follows, the Transportation Committee reported:

"1. Will the merchants of New York co-operate with the steamship companies to the end of seeing that their freight is delivered to and removed from the piers expeditiously?

"2. Are the merchants prepared to give this co-operation and the assurance that this necessary link in the service of transportation will be supplied?

"3. The extent of the aid and assistance which may be expected."

The Transportation Committee of the Merchants' Association sets out that the present interruption in the "free movement of freight to and from the Port of New York is seriously affecting the commerce of New York and its prestige as the leading commercial centre of the United States and the greatest shipping port in the world."

The New York District Council of the International Longshoremen's Association held its regular meeting at the headquarters at 164 Eleventh Avenue yesterday afternoon, with the President, John F. Riley, presiding. Mr. Riley said after the meeting that steps will be taken this morning to tie up every coastwise steamer that has been temporarily diverted to other traffic. Just how many coastwise boats are now engaged in transatlantic business Mr. Riley said, the union members did not know, but this information would probably be in hand today or tomorrow, as a resolution was adopted calling for stoppage of all longshore work on such steamers.

Plans were also made at the meeting, Mr. Riley said, to further tie up the United Fruit Company's lines.

Speakers gave their indorsement to the strike of Port and Terminal Workers in the New York harbor. The Port and Terminal Workers are affiliated with the longshoremen, and Mr. Riley said that all of the union men were out and showed no signs of weakening. He remarked that but for the unauthorized switchmen's strike the harbor situation here might soon be settled. The strike of the switchmen does not have the sanction of the District Council of Longshoremen, Mr. Riley said, though no definite action was taken at yesterday's meeting, as it was felt that it was not a subject for action at this time.

RAIL WAGE DEMANDS SHOW BIG JUMPS

The increases demanded by the striking railroad men is shown approximately by a comparison between the strikers' statement of their demands at Grand View Hall in Jersey City on Saturday and tables prepared by the Bureau of Railway Economics in Washington which give a detailed statement of average railroad wages for different positions in 1919. The exact increase demanded could not be computed, railroad officials said yesterday, because wages are dependent upon many things not taken up in the strikers' statement, such as locality and other matters.

Here are the comparative figures:

	Present Wages.	Wages Dem'ded.
Yardmasters	$9.25	$10.16
Yardmasters' assistants (not yard clerks)	7.67	9.83
Yard engineers and motormen	7.82	10.80

N. Y. CENTRAL MOVES PASSENGER TRAINS

Schedule Nearly Normal, and in Addition 100 Freight Cars Carry Food.

PENNSYLVANIA SERVICE CUT

Twenty-three Passenger Trains Annulled — Little Freight Handled Except on New York Central.

The New York Central, up to late last night, carried out its full schedule of passenger service, both through and local, although seven trains were delayed in leaving from six minutes to nearly two hours. Three through trains, including the Twentieth Century Limited, went out on time in two sections.

Last night there was a slight interruption in service, due to the walkout of twelve firemen. The normal service was restored at midnight by supplanting the strikers with loyal Brotherhood engineers, who volunteered to act as firemen.

The trains delayed were those leaving between 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon and 1 o'clock Sunday morning, the period following the walk-out. The Lake Shore Limited, due to leave at 5:30 Saturday in two sections, was the first train affected. The first section was twelve minutes late and the second six minutes late. No. 55, due to leave at 7:11 Saturday, was thirty-three minutes late; No. 29, due to leave at 8 o'clock, was 1 hour and 38 minutes late; No. 59, due to leave at 11:31 was 1 hour and 19 minutes late; and No. 73, due to leave at 12:25 was 1 hour and 33 minutes late.

The delays of the seven trains were due, officials of the road said, to the sudden quitting of the so-called shop train crews, who are men engaged in placing trains at the platforms in the Grand Central Terminal. About sixty of the men deserted, without any warning. Emergency crews were quickly recruited from experienced men, and by yesterday morning the service was back to normal, without the cancellation of a single train.

A number of officials who had graduated from engineers', conductors' and firemen's jobs took off their coats to help straighten out the tangle. Retired employes were also called into service to aid in keeping the terminal yards clear.

One Hundred Food Cars Moved.

One hundred freight cars were handled by the New York Central yesterday, officials said. They carried mainly provisions and perishable stuffs.

The following statement was given out last night at the New York Central offices:

"No curtailment of passenger service or annulment of any passenger train is contemplated. Emergency crews are being held in reserve, which will probably be sufficient to handle service continuously close to normal."

Every West Shore passenger train ran according to schedule, with very slight delays, it was said yesterday. Some freight is being moved also, officials said.

The New York, New Haven & Hartford was practically unaffected by the strike in New York, so far as its passenger service was concerned. "Conditions are normal," officials said. The freight situation, however, was less favorable, due chiefly to the inability of other roads to deliver loaded cars.

The Central Railroad of New Jersey reported its passenger service normal yesterday. There were some slight delays, however. Its freight service is crippled.

The Long Island Railroad was able to keep its passenger trains running in and out of the city yesterday practically on time. In the Long Island yards some of the executives donned overalls and jumpers and went down in the yards and turned important switches at the entrance to the East River tunnels and in the Eighth Street yards, near the Montauk cut-off viaduct. Among the officials who were at work in the yards were H. E. Lewis, passenger trainmaster; Harry Golder, assistant trainmaster; E. B. Kessler, freight trainmaster; Frank Goode and J. J. Donnelly, yardmasters.

A number of cars of perishable freight were moved out of the Mott Haven yards of the New Haven road and over the New York connecting railroad bridge over the East River to the Fresh Pond yards of the Long Island Railroad.

No other freight was moved in the Long Island yards. The tieup there has been complete since Friday night.

Twenty-three passenger trains scheduled to leave the Pennsylvania Station have been annulled because of the strike. The list of trains cut out includes one to Chicago, eight to Philadelphia, six to Washington, one to St. Louis and one to New Orleans.

Lehigh Valley and Baltimore & Ohio trains which arrive and leave from the Pennsylvania Terminal are included in the above schedules.

The following statement was given out yesterday by the Pennsylvania regarding the freight service:

"Up to midnight last evening no loaded freight cars were delivered to the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, either by float or through the tubes, although there were 1,396 Harlem River cars on the New Jersey Division.

"Up to midnight last night, no loaded freight cars were delivered to the Long Island Railroad, by float or through the tubes, although there were 841 carloads of freight on the New Jersey Division destined for Long Island points.

"Yesterday, April 10, the Pennsylvania Railroad operated five ferryboats and nine tugboats, but on account of labor situation in terminal yards, no towing was done to New York piers, and tugs were utilized on lighterages.

Lackawanna Local Service Ceases.

The entire suburban service of the Lackawanna has been abandoned because of the strike, and only three through trains were run from its terminal in Hoboken yesterday. The only train leaving last night was the 8:55 for Buffalo, which left on time.

The following statement was issued by E. M. Rines, Vice President and General Manager of the Lackawanna:

"On account of the firemen on the Morris and Essex division and the switchmen employed in suburban terminal passenger yards leaving the service of this company without notice or giving any cause whatsoever for doing so, the railroad is compelled, much to its regret, to abandon temporarily all its suburban passenger service in both directions."

CALLS GOMPERS 'TOAD.'

Haywood Declares New York Is Only Five Days from Starvation.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., April 11.—Calling Samuel Gompers a "toad" and asserting the switchmen's strike was one labor dispute in which Gompers would have no influence, William D. Haywood, I. W. W. leader, denounced the American Federation of Labor, big business and the press with equal bitterness at a meeting this afternoon. He disclaimed any desire to preach the overthrow of the United States Government by force.

The switchman's strike, said Haywood, might not result successfully, but he said it would bring America to its senses. "New York is only five days away from starvation," he exclaimed.

Georgia, and will at once take up the question of what governmental action should be taken in the "outlaw" railroad strike. Officials of the Department of Justice have gathered reports from all centres affected by the walkout, which will be ready for Mr. Palmer, but they refused tonight to disclose the nature of the reports, aside from indicating that the situation is serious.

The Department of Labor and the White House are also watching the situation carefully. G. W. W. Hanger, member of the Federal Board of Mediation and Conciliation, created by the Newlands act, returned today from Chicago, and reported the situation there somewhat improved. Mr. Hanger expressed the belief that the strikers in the Chicago district would return to work within the next few days, but thought the situation in the New York district more difficult.

Senator Cummins said that there would be a meeting of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee tomorrow, and added that nothing was being done by his committee in the direction of an investigation of the strike, that all efforts in Senatorial circles were being directed toward trying to secure an early appointment of the Labor Board which President Wilson has been authorized to create.

May Name Labor Board Today.

Unless there is an unexpected eleventh hour development to prevent it President Wilson tomorrow will announce the appointment of the board.

The delay in making the announcement to date has been caused primarily, it is understood, by the difficulties experienced by the President in trying to obtain a satisfactory man to appoint as the representative of the public on the board. Such a man, it is understood, has now been found, and the appointments are expected to be announced tomorrow.

Secretary Baker declared tonight that there had been no request from the Central Department for the use of troops and that the department did not contemplate any movement of troops in connection with the strike.

Postal officials said that they had no reports that the mails were being interfered with by the strikers.

Federal Agents Make Wide Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, April 11—(Associated Press).—The inquiry, ordered by Mr. Palmer from Georgia, where he has been on a speaking tour, has developed a wider scope than was originally indicated. Staff men of the Bureau of Investigation, detailed to centres where disturbances have resulted in the walkout, have been called upon for definite statements of the situation as they encountered it. Assistant Chief Burfe of the Bureau was said to have made ready a full "picture" of the strike from the angle of secret investigations.

Action can be taken by the Government under the Lever act, in the present case, it was said, but there was a slight hint that in event Mr. Palmer decided to throw the weight of the Government into the controversy, it would not be by the injunction process, which was the method employed in the bituminous coal strike. Officials apparently favor the use of the criminal indictment to check the power of the so-called "outlaws."

If the Government moves to end the strike by authority of the Lever act, it was indicated that the basis would be a charge that the flow of food shipments had been stopped, or hindered at least.

cago it will mean the collapse of the strike movement throughout the country.

It is reported that several committees representing the strikers were canvassing the individual workers and delivering instructions to return to work. Edward Corrigan, Assistant Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, made public a communication addressed to him by one of these committees. It read in part:

"We, the undersigned local committee representing members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, hereby request of you that you request the General Managers' Association to give us the raise in wages as demanded by the B. L. E. and the B. L. F. E.

"In returning to our work we do so with the understanding that our seniority rights shall be protected."

"I feel absolutely certain that the men will be back at their work within forty-eight hours," Mr. Corrigan said. "Our plans appear to have the desired effect. We are taking this action to protect our old men. They have been ill advised, but they now see their mistake."

A secret meeting of trustees and officers of the Chicago Yardmen's Association was held today, but no information was given out as to action taken. Officers said the session was to arrange plans for the coming week.

At an open meeting of the strikers John Grunau, leader of the insurgent element, predicted success for the walkout.

"We are going to win," he said. "No one has returned to work and reports have been received from all parts of the country that traffic is tied up. I have such telegrams and letters from St. Louis, Kansas City, Columbus, Cleveland, Detroit, San Francisco, San Antonio and other rail centres. Many of these communications report that more men are going on strike.

"There is no basis for rumors that we are going back. I have asked no parley with the other side. There have been no withdrawals from the strike. The demands we have made are not unreasonable. For years the living costs have been advancing and the wages of other workers have risen, too, but we have not received enough to live on. When we decided to ask for $1 an hour for foremen and 95 cents an hour for switchmen we pared the demands as low as we could.

"There is talk of the Government taking a hand. If I have to go to prison for anything I have done, it will be for action in a right cause. I do not see how they could put me in prison, though. I have not ordered you out and have no power to order you back. You simply left your jobs because you weren't getting enough to live on."

Grunau warned the men to avoid violence. Other speakers also urged peaceful methods.

"We don't want any I. W. W.'s in the Chicago Yardmen's Association," one said. "You can gain nothing by disorderly action."

Assail President Lee.

Several speakers said the established unions were not giving their members a square deal. W. G. Lee, President of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, being singled out for adverse criticism.

"Bill Lee isn't working for you fellows any more," one said. "He quit working for you long ago and is working for the railroads now."

The strikers also claimed they were being treated unfairly by the press. "They tell you that men are going back in other places. They tell men in other cities that you are going back," President Grunau said. "Don't believe it."

Speakers from all rail centres in Ohio, Indiana and Pennsylvania said there was no freight moving in that part of the country. "I came from Pittsburgh to Chicago," said one, "and I didn't see a freight train moving along the entire route."

One hundred striking Pere Marquette switchmen at Saginaw, Mich., voted tonight to return to work tomorrow, and offered the road their services at its terminals in Detroit, Toledo, Ludington and Flint in restoring normal service.

BREAK IN RAIL STRIKE IN COLUMBUS DISTRICT

COLUMBUS, O., April 11.—Six hundred switchmen employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad here, who struck Friday night, voted today to return to work tomorrow morning. Approximately 500 engineers and firemen in the yards will also return as a result of the switchmen's decision.

Striking switchmen of the Hocking Valley Railroad Company, numbering approximately 200, were to meet here tonight to determine, it was said, whether to continue the strike. Norfolk and Western switchmen have called a meeting tomorrow morning for the same purpose, it was announced. There are 100 Norfolk and Western men on strike here.

The switchmen's strike here resulted in calling out approximately 3,000 men. Return of the Pennsylvania men is expected to relieve the food and fuel situation. All passenger, milk and mail trains were operating here today, the strikers having left sufficient men in the yards to take care of this traffic.

The situation in other parts of the State was not materially changed today, reports showing the number of strikers to be as follows:

Youngstown, 3,500; Akron, 100; Warren, 40; Dayton, 300; Canton, 300; Alliance, 250; Springfield, 65. This is in addition to those out in Cleveland and Toledo.

PENNSYLVANIA IS HARD HIT.

Strike Ties Up Yards in Pittsburgh, Harrisburg and Reading.

PHILADELPHIA, April 11.—Although there were no additions to the ranks of the striking trainmen and switchmen of the Pennsylvania Railroad here today, the situation was described by an official of the company as serious and growing more so hourly. An embargo was placed today on all express, except milk, to points east of this city and a further curtailment was made in passenger service. Freight movement virtually was at a standstill. About 500 men are out.

Of the twenty-six trains scheduled to leave Philadelphia for New York today on the Pennsylvania ten were annulled and those that were sent out were delayed from a half hour to two hours. Several of them carried emergency crews. All parlor car and dining car service between New York and Philadelphia was discontinued. Six solid express trains, bound for New York, were held up in this city, while a number were held at points west of here. Large quantities of perishable goods consigned to New York were held at Washington and Harrisburg. Hundreds of cars loaded with freight from the South and West for New York were caught in the freight embargo last week and are being held at points along the line, or diverted to other cities. Many of them contain perishable goods.

PITTSBURGH, April 11.—The railroad yards at Pitcairn, one of the most important terminals on the Pennsylvania, were closed down at 11 o'clock tonight when switchmen, conductors and brakemen went on strike. More than 5,000 workmen are affected by the walkout.

WILKES-BARRE, April 11.—With the exception of the tie-up on the Bloomsburg division of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, none of the roads entering the Wyoming Valley have been affected by the strike of switchmen and trainmen.

LINES TENSE IN BUFFALO

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 11.—With both sides marking time in the railroad strike which has paralyzed freight movement in the Buffalo district, some railroad officials expressed hope tonight that a break might come tomorrow. Officers of the new union formed by the striking yardmen, however, maintained that their organization was steadily enrolling new members and that the strike would be continued until the roads met their demands.

Railroad officials said officers of the old unions of railroad employes were doing everything in their power to induce the strikers to return to work.

URGES SUIT AGAINST CREEL AND BABSON

there seems to have been a deliberate effort to loot this $600,000-a-year publication," adds the report. "A gang of safe blowers could hardly have created greater havoc in a country bank than did these Government employes in the office of the Official Bulletin when the final word was given that Uncle Sam had refused to continue as their benevolent paymaster."

No Effort to Obtain Bids.

Rochester submitted to the committee, the report says a memorandum purporting to have been signed by Creel on March 20, 1919, directing that the mailing lists of the Committee on Public Information may be made available to all Government agencies "and others." Rochester also produced a letter from Creel under date of March 26, 1919, advising him that the various mailing lists of the Committee on Public Information were "open to the public."

"As a matter of fact," continues the report, "no publicity whatever was given to either of these communications from Creel, and the public was not afforded an opportunity to conserve or copy the mailing lists of the Official Bulletin. Babson alone enjoyed that privilege, and he paid nothing whatever for it to the Government. Rochester has admitted to the committee that the order of March 20 was not written until after he had talked with Creel about taking over the Bulletin himself. The letter of March 26 was not written until after Rochester had decided he could not finance the Bulletin himself, and had arranged with Babson to continue its publication.

"While these secret negotiations were going on Creel had before him a request from another concern—a rival of the Babson organization—for permission to copy the mailing list of the Official Bulletin, but no attention whatever was paid to this request, nor was any effort made by either Creel or Rochester to obtain any bids for the Bulletin's mailing list. At least one concern stood ready to submit a very substantial offer for the list, but was given no opportunity even to present a bid.

"Not only was Babson permitted thus secretly to take over the mailing lists of the Bulletin, but the subscription accounts of that publication were also opened up for him to copy. Babson thus became aware of the exact amount due on every unexpired subscription of the Official Bulletin. He at once circularized all these subscribers, stating that the amount due would be refunded by the Government and urging the subscribers to assign to him the amount due so that it might be credited for a continuance of the Bulletin. Babson evidently intended later to reimburse himself by presenting these assigned claims to the Government liquidating officers, well knowing that Congress had made ample provision for reimbursing him.

Propaganda in Service Papers.

Rochester, on April 1, wrote to subscribers to renew their subscriptions and "mail the same to us, who are to continue the publication twice a week in the same form as at present, with the same staff at the same office."

"Even some of the 'cost-plus' contractors engaged on Government work were badly infected with the newspaper germ," says the report.

"A specific instance was that of the contracts for the big navy office building in Washington. With the approval of the Government officer in charge of this construction, the contractor published a weekly newspaper called The Mixer, which, as he explained, was to 'stimulate the workmen' and improve the morale on the job. The contractor was careful to include in the items of cost for the navy building a charge of $3,208.94 for his little newspaper, and this was O. K.'d by the navy officer in charge of construction. There was a charge among the expenses for its publication of $220.40 for a dinner given the contractor's superintendents and foremen at a fashionable Washington restaurant in connection with a certain 'patriotic program.'" Both these items were disallowed.

Propaganda in aid of the League of Nations and the liquor interests and glorification of the officers in charge were features of the war service journals, the report says, and they carried "get-rich-quick" and political advertising. "The law giving the Printing Committee control over Government publications," the report asserts, "nipped in the bud the greatest propaganda scheme the country has ever escaped. There is no doubt that a certain clique, both in and out of the army and navy, had their preparations well advanced to cover the country with an all-enmeshing chain of newspapers and magazines for the purpose of spreading and fastening their military and internationalist doctrine upon the United States."

The report also states that the printing of 30,144,862 speeches by Federal officials had cost the Government $442,798 and consumed 1,451,000 pounds of paper.

WELLESLEY, Mass., April 11.—Roger W. Babson, when informed tonight that the joint Congressional Printing Committee had recommended that the Government institute legal proceedings against him in relation to the transfer of the Official Bulletin, said that he would be glad to have the Government resume its publication. If Congress should not authorize such resumption, he said, he would not be "scared out" of the publishing field.

SMOOT'S CHARGES LIES IS CREEL'S REJOINDER

Asserts Senator Is Seeking Revenge for His Share in Mormon Exposure.

George Creel, former chairman of the Committee on Public Information, last night branded as "lies" the allegations contained in a report made public yesterday by Senator Smoot in relation to the transfer of the official bulletin to Robert W. Babson.

"This is one of Senator Smoot's lies," Creel declared, "and no one knows better than Senator Smoot that it is a lie."

"When the official bulletin was discontinued," Creel continued, "I asked the Attorney General for permission to put up its assets at public auction. There was a mailing list of about 18,000 paid subscribers, the majority of these subscriptions unexpired.

"To free the Government of the expense and annoyance of returning the money, I thought it wise to sell the property to the highest bidder. The Attorney General, in writing, forbade me to do this, telling me that all money must be returned, and that the mailing list must be made available to every citizen."

"I ordered the money returned and made announcement that any one could copy the mailing list who so desired. Babson availed himself of this permission. He received nothing at all from the Government. The whole trouble comes from the fact that some of Senator Smoot's friends wanted a copy of the mailing list furnished them at Government expense. This I refused to do.

"The whole incident is merely an excuse for Smoot to revenge himself for my share in the Mormon exposure."

Concerning Top Coats

And Their Place in the Man's Wardrobe

A light top coat is one of the best friends a man can have these fickle spring days. You may not need a coat at all, and then again you may need one badly and quickly.

And the top coats we are showing this spring are so attractive you won't want to be without one.

There are loose coats, with raglan shoulders and the regular ones,—informal, masculine, always serviceable. It's a pleasure to slip into one of these. Or there is the Prince of Wales model, double-breasted, snug-fitting, with the skirts flaring a trifle. They are very smart.

And of course the polo coat,—soft, fleecy, and fashionable for town, country or back and forth in the motor.

The Indian's Feather

There is an old story of an Indian who heard that the white man slept on feathers.

So he got him a feather and, after attempting a siesta, declared, "white men all damn liars."

Even today there are firms who expect an immediate deluge of new business from their first few advertisements.

As a matter of experience, the real evidence of large return does not show until after the third or fourth year of advertising the average commodity.

The occasional spectacular instance of immediate advertising success is talked about and written about until it is sometimes considered as a precedent.

Common sense should make you realize that the world is not palpitating in its eagerness to adopt the newest phonograph or the newest potato flour or the newest anything.

People, as a mass, are conservative, and it takes time to move a mass.

LABOR ANSWERS MILLS QUESTIONS

UPHOLDS RIGHT TO STRIKE

Gompers, Woll and Morrison Voice Federation's Opposition to Temporary Nine-Hour Day.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Organized labor, as represented in the American Federation of Labor, tonight made public its reply to the questionnaire on industrial relations and the problems of capital and labor recently submitted by the Advisory Committee on Policies and Platform of the Republican National Committee.

Fifty-five questions were included by Ogden L. Mills, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Republican National Committee, in his letter to labor leaders, many of which are answered collectively in the reply, signed by Samuel Gompers, Matthew Woll and Frank Morrison of the National Non-Partisan Political Campaign Committee of the American Federation of Labor.

Disapproval was expressed of limitation of the right to strike, compulsory labor, the use of injunctions in labor disputes and profit sharing. The only point on which the labor leaders reserved judgment was in regard to the organization and development of sickness insurance, into which, they explained, the unions were conducting an investigation.

"The use of injunctions in labor disputes is to evade trial under law, destroy the presumption of innocence and deny the constitutional guarantee of trial by jury," says the reply.

The eight-hour day, the six-day week, the principle of equal pay for equal work, trade agreements through collective bargaining, the extension of workmen's compensation to cover occupational diseases and the establishment of Federal employment agencies are approved.

To the question whether a system of local, State and Federal employment exchanges would be desirable, the reply is that organized labor regretted the abandonment of the system of free Federal employment agencies built up during the war.

"Labor," says the reply, "exerted every possible effort to prevent the disbanding of those agencies. Agencies of a similar character should be re-established. Labor ought by all means to have a voice in the administration of public employment agencies."

Equal pay for equal work and "Standards for minimum wages necessary to maintain life at a proper standard should apply to women in industry as well as men," states the reply, which fixes the minimum age at which children should be employed in any industry at 16 years and that "after this age ample provision should be made for the continuance of education and for the proper physical development of children."

Asked if the scope of the Federal child labor law should be extended to embrace agricultural labor, mercantile establishments and especially dangerous or morally hazardous employment, the labor men reply, "Yes, at the earliest possible moment."

"In no industry should the maximum work day exceed eight hours," is another answer. In some industries both the health of the workers and such questions as regularity and continuity of employment may easily make a shorter work day desirable from every viewpoint.

Asked if recognition of a standard eight-hour day, with a temporary general agreemnt to work nine hours with one hour overtime pay, would be desirable under present industrial conditions, and whether such an understanding would serve to increase production and reduce the high cost of living, the labor leaders replied:

"Such an understanding would be intolerable. There is no present necessity in American industry for a work day exceeding eight hours in length. Proper conduct of industry, proper organization and proper executive management can, without difficulty, obviate whatever necessity may be apparent for a work day exceeding eight hours in length.

"The excessive cost of living is not due in any degree whatever to the eight-hour work day and a work day of greater duration would have no effect in reducing the cost of living. Any effort to lengthen the working hours, either permanently or temporarily, would be a pernicious and vicious effort to throw upon the shoulders of labor a still greater burden, and would not have the effect of bringing relief to any of our people."

WOMEN PICKET CHURCHES.

One Gets Scratched by an Unidentified Promenader.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Ten pickets arrested for carrying banners before the British Embassy will receive a hearing before United States Commissioner Richardson tomorrow morning. Frank P. Walsh, former Chairman of the War Labor Board, will appear as chief counsel of the picketers.

No picketing, in the sense in which the term is applied to demonstrations before the British Embassy, was indulged in today, but two of the women used placards to advertise recent incidents to two congregations of St. Matthew's Catholic Church and one congregation at St. John's Episcopal Church. Mrs. Joseph Grady and Miss Ella Cornyn, both of New York, bore the banners at St. Matthew's Church, and before the banner display had been concluded an unidentified young woman who was passing assaulted Mrs. Grady from behind, digging her finger nails into the neck of the banner bearer.

Both placards called attention to the proclamation of martial law in Jerusalem. One of them read:

"Christian Americans:

"The English General Allenby on April 7, 1920, declared martial law in the city of Christ, Jerusalem."

GOMPERS THINKS END OF STRIKE IS NEAR

"Outlaw" Movement Is a Mistake and Must Fail, He Tells Cleveland Press.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, April 11.—Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, arrived in Cleveland yesterday to attend the convention of the Cigar Makers' International Union, but turned his attention at once to the railroad strike situation.

He declared the walkout of the men a mistake and pledged the full support of the American Federation of Labor to the Railroad Brotherhoods and authorized unions in their fight against rebellious members.

At the same time he declared his sympathy for the grievances of which the striking railroaders complain, and said he had predicted trouble at the time the Railroad bill was before Congress. He blamed Congress for bringing on the trouble.

Mr. Gompers expressed confidence that the strike would be ended soon and declared he had no fear of its effect on the union labor movement generally, or in particular upon the American Federation of Labor.

BENEFIT FOR HERO'S WIDOW

Bronx Motion Picture Theatres to Give Afternoon Receipts to Mrs. Immen.

Forty-two Bronx motion picture theatres, members of the Cinema Exhibitors' Association of Bronx County, of which John Wittman is President, will give their entire receipts for this afternoon's performances to the widow of Policeman Henry Immen of the Bronx Park Station, who was killed in the performance of his duty on the night of Feb. 21.

Immen discovered two burglars at Gun Hill Road and Bainbridge Avenue, a lonely section of the Bronx, and was shot while trying to arrest them. He left a wife and one child. The benefit has been heavily advertised throughout the Bronx, and in addition Mr. Wittman issued a special appeal yesterday asking theatregoers to attend this afternoon's performances.

Gibbons Decorates Admiral Benson.

BALTIMORE, April 11.—"The highest honor that can be bestowed upon any military or naval comamnder," to quote Cardinal Gibbons, came today in Baltimore to Admiral William S. Benson, Chief of Operations of the United States Navy during the war, and now Chairman of the Shipping Board. Cardinal Gibbons invested him with the decoration of the Knight of the Great Cross of St. Gregory in the sanctuary of the cathedral. Secretary Daniels was present.

BACK TO NATURE

Dietitians say that man should eat more of the food for which he was by nature intended.

There is important evidence to prove that we originally ate much coarse vegetable fiber, an element generally lacking in our modern diet.

This health-giving fiber is to be found in the fresh, green vegetables so temptingly served at the CHILDS restaurants.

Their deliciously characteristic flavors are a joy to the palate.

Standard $85 Productions in Stabilized Spring and Fall Styles

$70.00

They come a little late—they had to come a little late, to come at Seventy Dollars—we'll tell you why:

We bought the fabrics late to save money. There was no money to be saved by buying them early. When everybody is scrambling for woolens is no time to secure concessions in price. But when the demand is satisfied and a lull ensues, that is the time to look for lower prices.

A saving means more to a man to-day than it ever has in his life before. That is what induced us to make this experiment—to jump into the market in mid-season and make a genuine attempt to break the universal reign of high prices.

You want a topcoat for the balance of Spring, you want it for chilly Summer evenings, and it will also be fresh and ready and in the running for early Fall, for note that these are not freak topcoats, but those stabilized topcoat styles suited to the three lightweight seasons, and individualized by workmanship which has a style of its own.

Limited to 224 Topcoats in these classifications:

Single-Breasted and Double-Breasted Coverts, tan, gray or olive. Single-Breasted and Double-Breasted Dark Oxford Diagonals. Single-Breasted Oxford Herringbones. Single-Breasted Heather Mixtures

All quarter silk lined and obviously the last-minute models

Linoleums of Quality
Linoleums in Quantity

At SLOANE'S

QUALITY is, of course, the main thing in a linoleum. Yet quantity is important, too, for that means an absence of limitation, in patterns, in colorings, in grades, and in the linoleum stock as a whole.

Specifically, Sloane Linoleums embrace plain colors, parquet patterns, checkerboard squares, coin designs, mosaic motifs, and tile effects whose colorings are so tenacious that they do not disappear till the linoleum is worn clean to the backing, and that is a long way off.

The range of selection is as broad as the uses to which linoleum can be put, either for domestic purposes, or for office and foyer floors where serviceability is absolutely essential.

The prices are as dependable as the linoleums, and the range is elastic enough to accommodate your personal idea of what you wish to spend.

STRATON ATTACKS 'SOME' OF THE POLICE

"Either Crooked or Incompetent," Pastor Declares in Sermon on Vice Conditions.

PROBLEM OF LEADERSHIP

Says Responsibility Rests in Part on Shoulders of Politicians and Some Officials of City.

"The political responsibility for the deplorable vice conditions in New York City" was the title given by Dr. John Roach Straton to his sermon in Calvary Baptist Church last night. He said responsibility rested "in part upon the shoulders of the politicians and some of the officers of the city," but in this connection he did not refer to any individual. In his discussion of the question he said the inference was that the "police were either crooked or incompetent," but he mentioned no names. He said:

"I do not bring my blanket indictment against the entire police force. I believe that New York, on the whole, has the greatest police force in the world. Any one visiting the European capitals and then returning to New York must be convinced of this fact. The overwhelming majority of the men in the ranks will do their duty honestly if they are led right. The problem, therefore, is primarily a problem of proper leadership."

Dr. Straton declared it to be his own conviction that vice and lawlessness in New York have had a large measure of police protection. He said his judgment concerning the situation was based on large numbers of letters and other forms of information he had received, and upon what he had seen and heard in his own personal investigation. Referring to his sermon of a week ago, describing his visits to numerous night resorts, Dr. Straton continued:

"All of that was in the newspapers of Monday morning and evening, and yet Monday night—the night of the same day—the officers of the law went to Peter's Restaurant in disguise, ordered liquor and were served promptly! The place, as we know, was then raided and closed up, but the point here is this: Even a fool would have known better than to take such a risk as that, in the light of such publicity, unless he felt beyond any question that he was absolutely protected. He must have felt that he was greater than the law and stronger than the Eighteenth Amendment because he had bought up the enforcers of the law, and therefore could snap his fingers in the face of New York and of the United States and do as he pleased! And there must have been, in the very nature of the case, some adequate ground for that feeling which was evidently in his mind. Some of the women who were in the place told us that we need have no fear as Peter paid $500 a week for protection. It certainly looks as though they knew what they were talking about.

Asserting that the situation made it appear that the "police were either crooked or incompetent," he continued:

"In the light of all these conditions, and in all fairness to the police force as a whole, I, for one, believe that the facts fully justify the conclusion that at least some sections of the police force, under the leadership which has been in control, stand convicted either of glaring and notorious incompetence or else of deliberate connivance with the forces of evil in this city. If they have not been either incompetent or corrupt, then I ask why it is that ordinary citizens—even preachers—can go out in almost any direction and buy liquor openly and see, in addition, the most flagrant violation of the anti-vice laws? If plain citizens can do these things and present concrete facts confirming them, then why cannot the officers of the law, whom we employ and pay to do these very things, uncover this rottenness and bring these law-breakers to justice?

"There are good grounds for the assertion that in some parts of our city, at least, the criminals and crooks get more protection than the law-abiding, tax-paying citizens of the city. The crooks seem to be able to ply their trade in many cases unharmed and unhindered, while if statements made before the Grand Jury, upon which indictments have been found, are true, then even good women are sometimes not safe even in their own homes."

GERMAN PRICES RISE THOUGH MARK GAINS

Food Conditions Grow Worse and Health of People Continues to Decline.

CHILDREN SUFFER GREATLY

One-fourth in Berlin Are Underfed and Tuberculosis Cases Have Trebled in Few Months.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 10.—Financial circles in Berlin are recovering their spirits. The mark continues to improve. To-day's closing quotation on the Exchange was 216 to the pound sterling. Before the Kapp coup it stood steadily at rather more than 300. The Kapp gamble and the disorders consequent on it have, of course, very greatly restricted imports, and that, prominent bankers assure me, is probably the main reason for the improvement in the rate.

"Perhaps foreign countries see," declares the financial editor of the Berliner Tageblatt, "that the glowing embers of militarism can now be definitely extinguished. The disorders which had long threatened from the Right and the Left broke loose at one and the same time, and in both cases they have been put down. Now there is more hope of development and consolidation."

Another good sign is the drop in price of some important raw materials, such as copper. But the fall in the mark has been accompanied by an all-around rise in prices and by the exhaustion of some necessaries. There is little or no coal and there has not been a single briquette to be had. The price of leather has increased enormously. Yesterday I paid the nominal equivalent of £3 10s. for soling. Men's shoes simply do not exist. Shoes from the United States costing there from $8 to $10 fetch 1,100 marks, nominally £55, here.

As for food the whole position is decidedly worse than a year ago. Imported foodstuffs are three times dearer than six months ago. Indeed there are few things necessary for the ordinary life which are not dearer here than in London in spite of the rate of exchange. The physical condition of the people, especially the children, goes from bad to worse.

At least 25 per cent. of Berlin's children between 1 and 14 years are badly underfed. In the city's schools 100,000 children are, according to the latest statistics compiled by the authorities, so underfed as to be unfit to receive instruction. At a great hospital the doctors report that a number of cases of rickets has developed and the number of cases of tuberculosis among children trebled in the last few months. Of 485,000 Berlin children 29,000 are suffering from tuberculosis, and according to the same neutral authorities 77,000 are suffering from various illnesses brought on by long underfeeding, while 120,000 are described as badly underfed.

In January the figures for forty-three big towns of Germany were stated to be over 200,000 children suffering from tuberculosis and nearly 850,000 ill and badly underfed. All great towns report a big increase in the death rate.

Marks Gain in Switzerland.

BERNE, April 10.—Exchange rates have been affected by the latest events in the Ruhr Valley and the occupation of German cities by the French.

One hundred German marks, which were formerly quoted at seven francs, were today sold at ten francs, while francs fell from 44 to 34.50 on offerings today.

WON'T FREE IRISH HUNGER STRIKERS

Lord Lieutenant Acts on Instructions from Government, Under Secretary Asserts.

PRISONERSGROWINGWEAKER

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, April 11.—One hundred and four prisoners in Mountjoy Prison are now on hunger strike, having refused food since Sunday last. So weak are several that their relatives have been sent for by the authorities. Some have gone to the hospital, while seventy others are lying in their cells, too ill to move, and medical officers are constantly in attendance.

This afternoon a large crowd was kept from the road leading to the prison gates by a cordon of soldiers with fixed bayonets. For the most part they were anxious relatives, but only when a prisoner's condition is reported to be serious are the relatives admitted to see him.

The Lord Mayor of Dublin has been unable to visit the prison, as he states that a new order has been issued by the Dublin Castle authorities whereby no Mayors or Lord Mayors will be granted permission to visit any Irish prisoners unless they have taken the oath as Justices of the Peace. The Lord Mayor also declares that in this case the Castle officials have flagrantly broken an undertaking given to him in September, 1917, that special treatment would be accorded to political prisoners.

The strike is one to secure political treatment for a large section of men, who had been under detention for a number of weeks without formal charge or trial. Thomas Clarke, Chairman of the visiting Justices, who spent four hours with the prisoners yesterday, addressed a telegram to the Lord Lieutenant beseeching him to exercise his clemency and powers to save the lives of these men by granting them political treatment. "Another day's delay," continued Mr. Clarke's appeal, "may cause an appalling tragedy."

The following reply was received this morning, signed by the Assistant Under Secretary:

"There is no power under the rules made in November to extend political treatment to convicted prisoners who are excluded from ameliorations. Untried prisoners are treated under the rules made for untried prisoners. His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant does not propose to modify the rules in the direction you suggest. All prisoners on hunger strike have been forewarned as to the consequences of perseverance in their conduct, in accordance with the decision of His Majesty's Government."

DUBLIN, April 11 (Associated Press).—A soldier was shot tonight and seriously wounded outside Mountjoy Prison, where crowds were holding a demonstration in favor of the hunger strikers. Apparently the shooting was accidental.

RAILWAYS WILL NEED $600,000,000 IN 1920

Executives' Association Reports One-Half the Required Amount.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 11.—Six hundred millions will be needed by the railroads this year to finance the purchase of new equipment, the Association of Railway Executives announced here yesterday.

Presidents of sixty-five railroads met here to discuss division of the $300,000,000 loan provided by the Transportation act.

The remaining $300,000,000 will be furnished by the strongest systems and through loans negotiated in the investment market, the executives stated.

Equipment needs for this year, the presidents reported, include 100,000 freight cars, 3,000 passenger cars and 2,000 locomotives.

THRONGS SEE PLANE IN DIVE OF DEATH

pulse at rescue, and swept out of their way the mere handful of policemen there to keep the field clear.

Meantime attaches of the field had reached the wrecked plane, fire extinguishers in hand, ready to attack the little sea of gasoline that came bubbling and hissing in clouds of spray and little rivulets from the shapeless wreck of what had been the fuel tank. There was no fire, but the first rescuers found Stapleton pinned tight in the wreckage of the rear cockpit, where he had been strapped in, while Robinson lay crumpled up, many feet away where the impact of the fall had flung him.

The workers attacked the battered, misshaped mass with axes, hoping to free Stapleton while there was yet faint signs of life in his body. But the men who swung their blades lustily but carefully, least a glancing blow strike the injured man, found themselves hampered by the crowd that pressed close on every side.

Some spectators, over their first horror at the scene, even lighted cigarettes and cigars while the gasoline fumes rose all about them. Stern commands brougth them to their senses and they stopped smoking, but no words of exhortation could drive them back.

Forced to desperate expedients, some employes of the field ran to a hangar and garage nearby and brought out automobile mail trucks which they drove head-on into the crowds, swinging and twisting about, much as traffic policemen in New York manipulate their horses under similar circumstances. Even then those pressing close for a view of the man imprisoned and the man who lay so still nearby, were reluctant to give way and at last fire extinguishers, charged with stinging chemicals, were turned full upon them. At that they yielded and retired to the railroad embankments.

In a few moments Stapleton was freed. The workers found a section of one wing, the only bit of fabric left, large enough for the purpose, and made from it an improvised stretcher on which they placed the two men. They started carrying them to the nearest street when an ambulance arrived. Eager hands brought stretchers from it and the two victims of the accident were transferred to them.

Stapleton died before he reached the hospital. Robinson was found to have a number of broken bones, a fractured skull and internal injuries and it was said there was no hope for him.

S. F. Doane, manager of the field, hurried to the hospital and remained there. Robinson's exact address in California was not learned. At the hospital it was said no information could be given because the man was a Government employe. He is understood to have been an experienced pilot, but the question whether he had seen war service went unanswered. Stapleton was 27 years old and lived with his wife at 36 Fulton Street, Newark.

The accident marked the third fatality at the field since it was opened. A small boy was killed the day of the opening and two weeks ago Walter Shurlock, a mail pilot, trying to land in the face of a stiff wind, was caught between two factory chimneys, the wind swept the tail of his plane about, crashing him into one of the tall structures, and he fell and was killed.

DR. BUTLER IS HECKLED.

Brooklyn Civic Forum Listeners Differ with Columbia President.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, spoke last night on "Mental versus Material Reconstruction" at the Civic Forum held in Public School 84, Glenmore and Stone Avenues, Brooklyn. Ex-Justice Isaac Franklin Russell presided. Dr. Butler advised the substitution of reasonableness for force in working out the problems of the world. He showed from history how disastrous was the rule of force.

Dr. Butler was subjected to considerable heckling by persons in his audience, in which the Socialist element appeared to predominate. Dr. Morris Zucker, who was convicted of violation of the Espionage act and whose case is pending on appeal, was one of those who took exception to the speaker's statements.

FRENCH PREMIER TO CUT SAN REMO PARLEY

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

with England in the Entente Cordiale.

The Temps tonight gives what will probably be the substance of France's reply to the latest British note. After quoting the last paragraph of Millerand's note, it says: "The British Government seems to understand that France in making this declaration reserves the right to take, separate from the allies, all initiatives she pleases. But the French Government has not expressed this desire.

"Far from pretending that she will act according to her fancy, France foresees no case where she thinks of acting in interallied questions without being assured in advance of the concord of her Allies. If the French Government even finds itself before eventualities which the present Government has no reason to foresee and which no Frenchman wishes to see, the duty of France will consist, evidently, in first warning her Allies of the new situation in which circumstances threaten to place her. There is nothing in that which does not conform with the ordinary practice of all alliances."

The Temps repeats that after all is said and done, the real question is whether or not the Treaty of Versailles is to be enforced.

It was stated at the French Foreign Office that no official communication has been received from Washington on the Rhine situation. From private information, the French seem to believe that President Wilson has adopted a not unfriendly attitude toward France in the present dispute.

It is interesting to note that Belgium today served notice she would ask to be represented in the San Remo conferences in all discussion of the enforcement of the Versailles Treaty. Belgium, it will be recalled, is supporting France without condition.

Some French students of the situation believe it may result in good because it may bring England to a declaration of a firm policy for the enforcement of the treaty and at the same time maintain the Entente. Robert Lambel in Liberté says:

"After all, enforcement of the treaty is at the bottom of the business. Thus far, Germany has got out of three-fourths of her obligations. She has further violated in a flagrant manner formal stipulations. Is nobody going to compel her to respect her engagements?

"The Franco-British incident may in this way become the starting point of a closer and more fruitful alliance."

Thus France is fighting for two ends—the maintenance of the Entente and the enforcement of the treaty. She wishes to avoid making the choice. Forced to do she will probably decide to enforce the treaty even at the expense of the friendship of England, or, as many Frenchmen believe, the friendship of Lloyd George.

Pertinax, writing in the Echo de Paris of yesterday, says:

"Today the French Government has behind it the whole nation when it declares to the British Government that France is obliged to say 'enough!' What France demands above all, and what she has a right to demand, is that all the Allies feel as she feels and speak as she speaks.

"If England runs away at a time when Germany has violated the very articles of the treaty on which rest the Franco-British guarantee, how far will she run before other violations? If the Franco-British alliance does not resist the test which Germany is now putting it to, what will be the situation tomorrow? If the treaty is going to fall into tatters it is clear that even the base of the alliance disappears."

Britain Seeks Definite Undertaking.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Monday, April 12.—The Anglo-French situation, although improved, has not yet been cleared up. The British Government has asked the French Government for an undertaking that France shall take no independent action against Germany, outside of decisions of the alliance. The French Government has replied that they have no further action of this kind in contemplation, but they have given no undertaking, and until one is forthcoming Lord Derby has been instructed to attend no further meetings of the Ambassadors' conference in Paris. It is felt that without such an undertaking, proceedings of the conference, in view of recent events, must be nugatory.

"The British view," says G. H. Ferris in The Chronicle, "still is that permission might safely have been given to the German Government to take police measures in the Ruhr district, subject to guarantees. France thought that no guarantees would suffice, and at once took independent action. She still justifies it, but the opinion of London is that the success of the alliance, now and continuously, must depend upon unanimity of action.

"Until, therefore, independent action is no longer contemplated in Paris, it can hardly be said that the question has been cleared up and while one of the Allies is acting independently it is evident that the position of the British Ambassador in Paris in the conference of Ambassadors, which exists only for the purposes of concert, would be ambiguous and useless. It is hoped that any moment assurances may be received from M. Millerand through Lord Derby as to the future intentions of the French Government. In any case the British and French Premiers with their Italian and Belgian colleagues will have opportunities of discussing the matter at San Remo and it cannot be doubted that it will then finally be settled.

"Meantime it may positively be stated that the British Cabinet, after full consideration, is united in the opinion that the execution of the treaty depends upon (1) its being reasonably interpreted and (2) its being unanimously inforced. Any independent action of one power upon its own opinion and initiative is therefore felt to be a damage to the treaty which in circumstances more urgent than those of today might possibly have serious consequences."

Deplores Derby's Withdrawal.

The Daily News deplores the instructions given to the British Ambassador at Paris to take no further part in the conference of Ambassadors.

"That is a grave step for our own Government to have taken," it says. "It raises at once the possibility of similar action in regard to the conferences at present in progress in London and pending at San Remo. Logically it is perfectly justifiable, and on practical and psychological grounds it may be equally so, but that is a matter the public might be allowed to judge for itself from a perusal of the actual text of the notes. It was necessary to take definite exception to the French action and to express frankly the difference of view which raised a principle vital to the endurance of the alliance, but no effort ought now to be spared to clear away the misunderstanding once for all.

"An exchange of formal notes is certainly not the best way to achieve that. Neither can matters be allowed to drift till the conference meets at San Remo a week hence. Unless the Prime Minister is in a much more precarious state of health that there has been reason to believe it is extremely difficult to understand his decision to go off for a sea voyage at this particular moment."

Urges a British Declaration.

The Chronicle sees no reason to fear that the French Government on further reflection will be indisposed to concede the undertaking that France shall take no further independent action against Germany and points out the tone of the last French note, in saying that no further action of the kind was in contemplation, seems working toward an agreement. The Chronicle continues:

"What the French Government would seem entitled to is a counter-declaration on our side of our determination to enforce effectively the vital points of the treaty. They are not at present being enforced. Neither coal nor reparation is forthcoming. The armed forces of Germany are not being reducel—there is no sign of their being reduced—to specified scale. The German Government has sent into the Ruhr, contrary to the treaty, reactionary troops and officers whose actions they scarcely even pretend to control.

These are very grave matters and there is no reason to suppose the British Government belittles their gravity. An official declaration would, nevertheless, have a very favorable effect on French opinion, because its natural alarm at the course of events has been much aggravated by unofficial British advocacy of 'revision of treaty'—an advocacy which for some time has had the effect of encouraging all the instincts of evasion and intrigue beyond the Rhine.

"On these lines we may hope to see the standpoints of the two Governments harmonized. But the French Government must recognize that a pledge against further independent action is indispensable. Otherwise the alliance as an active and binding force would cease to function. On that issue there is no difference of opinion among the British Ministers, nor would there be any of any substance if they appealed to Parliament.

"Therefore, as consistent friends of the alliance and always anxious to see the fullest justice done in this country to the French standpoint, we earnestly hope that in the present instance the French Government will see its way to do full justice to ours."

The Daily Mail in a further attack on Lloyd George says:

"The Premier is always too prone, as he has proved more than once before the war, to allow himself to be cajoled by the Germans and their interested friends in this country.

"If he and they are going to pretend that the German signature to the Peace Treaty is as good as ever, he will not delude the people of this country, with all their bitter memories of the great war and the treacheries that led up to it, into agreeing with him. And he will not delude the people of France, who have only the width of the Rhine between themselves and the militarist plotters.

"The Peace Treaty has already been broken again and again, as the French note reminds us. France draws the line at armed invasion of the neutral ground and we heartily endorse her protest against any further concessions to 'our German friends.'"

The Daily Telegraph editorial article says:

"A very liberal use is made in Paris of the fact that British public opinion has declared itself strongly in favor of the measures instigated by France on Tuesday last. There is no question about that, but under what impression did British opinion declare itself in that sense? It certainly was not realized, and this ought to be clearly understood, that the French action represented the breaking away from the counsels of the alliance and the taking of an independent line to which the British Government had plainly and strongly declared itself to be opposed. It is altogether wrong to imagine the people of Great Britain were expressing approval of the proceeding which they knew to be emphatically discountenanced by their own Government.

British Consider Crisis Grave.

LONDON, April 11 (Associated Press).—Dispatches from Paris today are more optimistic regarding hopes for an amicable settlement of the Anglo-French difficulty over the occupation by French troops of German towns. But, according to a statement from an authoritative quarter tonight, the crisis bears grave aspects, firstly, because there seems to be no intention on the part of the British Government to recede from its firm demeanor against any independent action where the alliance is concerned, and secondly, because no sign is yet apparent that France is willing to withdraw her troops, but rather there is a disposition to extend her occupation.

This note indicates that the British Government is taking a clear and determined line, based on the absolute need of unity and loyalty in the alliance. It also seems to explain and confirm the oft-disputed version of the negotiations given by Chancellor Müller in the German Assembly, and adds a certain weight to the view expressed in many quarters in recent days that the French Government was hastened into independent action by the military chiefs.

The final test for every manufacturer's product

Is your reputation crumbling on the dealer's counter?

YOU may have perfected the finest product of its sort on the market—you may have an enthusiastic sales force, and a big advertising appropriation—

But all your efforts are wasted unless your goods can meet the final test—unless consumer demand pulls them across the dealer's counter.

Success or failure in this final test may depend entirely upon your package.

If your product is dressed in a dull, drab package of inferior workmanship, it's handicapped in the race with its competitors. You must have a package which carries a message of superiority to the most casual eye—the sort that stands out on the dealer's shelf—the sort that inspires confidence and a desire to buy.

More important still is the matter of protection. Once your product has left your factory, the protection of its quality depends upon its package. No matter how careful the processes of manufacture, you'll never achieve success unless your product reaches the consumer with quality unimpaired. Goods that deteriorate in transit or on the shelf are the sort a dealer has to put on the bargain counter to get rid of—the sort that ruin a manufacturer's reputation.

Solving package problems for the leaders in every industry

To manufacture an attractive, dependable package for your particular product demands careful study and long experience. The Robert Gair Company, after years of experience in solving package problems for the leaders in every industry, is especially qualified to offer you expert assistance and advice.

We can work out the most economical size and shape for your package. We can decide the style best suited to your particular product—whether it requires a moisture-proof, label-wrapped carton or a printed folding box. We can adjust your package to whichever automatic filling or packing system you use. We can give you unrivaled service in securing an artistic design and insuring its perfect reproduction.

Packages for a billion dollars' worth of merchandise

The Robert Gair Company has been closely identified with every step in the astounding growth of package merchandising during the past half century. This broad experience explains why last year over a billion dollars' worth of merchandise was carried in Gair folding boxes, in Gair shipping cases, under labels made by the Robert Gair Company.

We control the whole process of manufacture, from wood-pulp to finished product. We operate our own paper mills, make our own inks and glues, maintain our own art, engraving, printing, lithographing departments. more sugar!

TODAY more sugar is the cry of all civilization. Every sugar plantation on earth is straining to answer it.

When machinery took the place of manual labor Fulton became the right hand of the cane sugar industry the world over. The Fulton Iron Works' development, since 1852, embraces the modern history of the cane sugar industry—and the corresponding growth of a pioneer manufacturer into an institution of world dimensions—linking the name Fulton with the industry which it fathered, just as the same name marks history in water transportation.

Unique in the world in one respect, it is the only institution devoted entirely to the making of cane sugar mills—and with the development of the mill itself it has developed a distribution almost unique in extensiveness (with but one or two peers in all industry, such as the Standard Oil Company) and it has established a world-wide service—in the universal distribution of duplicate parts for quick replacement—which is a vital service unmatched in the industry. That is to say, a service that carefully maintains its equipment, wherever it may be, with its engineers and representatives in every quarter of the globe where cane sugar grows—a service that represents insured efficiency.

"Its work as wide as the sugar industry"—its installations practically cover the field or a majority of the acreage; Fulton may fairly be called a part of the very industry itself and a basic producing element. Because primarily Fulton's extraction is much greater than any other equipment, and because a Fulton equipment outlives every other, with its efficiency assured against serious interruption through organized world service, its values are not only elemental to the industry as a process, but enter into the value of plantations themselves. A plantation equipped with Fulton has a permanent value built into the acreage—and Fulton equipment is a basis of estimate, a test of value.

Fulton is standard in America, Mexico, Nicaragua, Argentine, Brazil, Hayti, Cuba and the other West Indies, British Guiana, Hawaii, Formosa, Philippines and everywhere that efficiency demands the highest methods of science in cane sugar cultivation. Because it embodies and represents within itself the growth of the whole mechanical science of cane sugar extraction, and because its great corps of engineers, embracing practically the roster of that science, are alive to every new condition of the industry and constantly engaged in the study and perfection of the means and economies of the process, Fulton is living up not only to the past and the present, but the future. Anticipating a greater tomorrow, it is building on the sound principles on which it has already made a universal success. Its institutional size and service of today insure an even greater potential Fulton, apace with the growth of the sugar industry.

FIND WOMAN'S BODY EMBEDDED IN ICE

Possible Murder Mystery Indicated by Discovery in Mohawk River Near Schenectady.

THINK QUICKLIME WAS USED

Portions of the Body Are Missing—Coroner Believes It Came from Up Stream.

Special to The New York Times.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., April 11.—A possible murder mystery was uncovered here today when portions of the body of a woman were found embedded in a cake of ice on the banks of the Mohawk River, not far from Rotterdam Junction, where the Schenectady pumping station and wells are located.

The head, both feet and one arm had been severed and have not been found.

A chemical analysis is to be made of a whitish substance covering the body to determine whether it is quicklime. Coroner A. G. Baxter said that, provided lime had not been used, the woman had been dead more than a year.

The body was found by three boys, Cutler Westcott, Cornelius Vanpaten and Edward Hannibal, who first saw it about two weeks ago. Believing the bones in the ice were those of a dog, they made no report until yesterday, when one of them told his father about it. The Coroner was summoned and the body was chopped out of the ice.

It is the opinion of Coroner Baxter and others who saw the body today that it had been washed down the river.

RADICALS HISS SWEET.

Applause Silences Negroes as Speaker Assails Lawbreakers.

Speaker Thaddeus C. Sweet told the New York News Charity Bureau on East 135th Street yesterday afternoon that he stood for the enforcement of the law under the Constitution, and criticised "the growing disregard for law in this country." A radical group of the negro audience tried to hiss and boo Mr. Sweet into silence, but were drowned out by applause from the others.

Another speaker, Charles W. Anderson, former Collector of the Port of New York, also was hissed because he supported the Assembly leader's stand on the Socialist expulsion. He continued to talk, however. When he asked why the negroes of the South had been unjustly disfranchised the derision turned to applause.

WOMAN HELD AS GAMBLER.

Mrs. Kenney Denies She Is Bookmaker, and Says It Is a "Frame-Up."

Mrs. Etta Kenney, 30 years old, of 87 Buffalo Avenue, Brooklyn, was arraigned in the Gates Avenue Court, Brooklyn, yesterday on a charge of bookmaking. She was held in $500 bail for a hearing April 20.

The complaint was made by Detective Dennis McClunn of the Eleventh Inspection District and Detective George Keifer. They allege that they tapped the telephone wire leading into Mrs. Kenney's home for three days and that Mrs. Kenney accepted bets from over 100 persons on horses running at Bowie. The detectives allege that on Friday last between 2 and 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon Mrs. Kenney accepted $274 in wagers. Mrs. Kenney denied the charge, saying she was the victim of a "frame-up."

Are You Moving?

The present day removal activities in New York, the feature of which is the transfer of so much business from downtown to uptown, would amount to a phenomenon were not the reasons so well understood.

These reasons are, primarily, the influx and increase of population; the rise in rents downtown; the crowding out of small space holders to meet the demands of big business; last, and by no manner of means least, not only the accessibility of the Fifth Avenue section of the Terminal zone from all points of the compass, but the attractiveness of the neighborhood itself.

The buildings are new and handsome, there is light and air, and scarcely a field of trade or professional activity that does not speedily find itself at home in this neighborhood and in its own element. Even the lawyers are forsaking their time-honored precincts without inconvenience either to themselves or their clients.

The Harriman National Bank would like to remind the newcomers in this neighborhood that it is a most desirable thing from every standpoint to transact as much business as they can with the neighborhood in which they are doing business, thereby increasing the value of the neighborhood and thus best serving their own interests.

The economic convenience of banking nearby, particularly when such additional conveniences are offered as our extended hours of business for bank and Safe Deposit Vaults, speaks for itself.

Would YOU Light YOUR Office with Candles?

"If you can conceive of any modern office being lighted with candles, then you will understand why up-to-date firms continue to spend thousands of dollars on form and process letters, which are such transparent imitations that nobody will read them.

"Five years ago, or before the advent of Hooven, this class of correspondence had to be tolerated. But now that hundreds of firms have demonstrated the advantages of Hooven letters, it is safe to prophesy that in five years more there will not be one firm in a hundred that will risk insulting the intelligence of their correspondents with form and process letters."

PAUL M. HOOVEN

FIVE YEARS ago today the Hooven Automatic Typewriter began a new era in the production of quantity correspondence.

The year 1915 marked the perfection of a machine, which produces in quantity actual typewritten letters, each one an original—each one written especially for the person who receives it. A machine which cuts out 80% of your postage waste and strikes four names from your payroll for every machine used. And yet astonishing as it may seem Hooven letters cost far less than the process or form variety.

One concern we know, sent out 50,000 "process" letters at a cost to them of $2,201 and received just 1,397 replies. In other words each letter that was read cost $1.57. And they thought they were saving money, because they figured only the first cost.

There wasn't anything wrong with the letter either except—it wasn't read. Ninety-seven per cent of those fifty-thousand letters went to waste because the recipients knew them for just what they were—imitations.

Back in 1915 the first Hooven Automatic Typewriter was sold, and the first job on Letter Service was produced.

Wm. Salomon and Co., Bankers, were the purchasers of the first machine, and the first letters were typed for the Merchants' Association of New York. Is it not significant that these two first purchasers have ever since used Hooven letters? And that among the hundreds of others to whom this almost human machine has convincingly demonstrated its worth are found such names as—The New York Lubricating Oil Co., The Pacific Bank, The Kelly Springfield Tire Co., Pace and Pace, The Silent Partner, The National Employment Exchange, and hundreds of others.

Are these not splendid indications of what Hooven can do for you?

The work of Hooven can well be termed a modern miracle, when you consider that regardless of the number of letters it produces, each and every one of them is read and accepted by the recipient as a personal and individual communication, and has just as much selling force and receives just as much consideration as though you had dictated it yourself. And therein lies the reason upon which Mr. Hooven bases his prophecy that by 1925, form and process letters will have taken their place in history along with the quill pen and the stage coach of our forefathers.

It will pay you to investigate Hooven. There is a representative who is an expert in mail problems ready to tell you what the Hooven can do in your business.

A phone call or letter places his knowledge at your disposal without any obligation to buy.

In those days, the value of furs was determined by individual bartering. Today, universal fur values are established at world-influential Fur Auction Sales.

The New York Fur Auction Sales Corporation —a Governor of Fur Values

FURS have never played so prominent a part in modern industry as they do today. Never have they been more widely accepted, never have they been more universally demanded by women of fashion the world over.

The industry that was so mighty even before this universal call of fashion is today gigantic in strength. The result of this development has been the natural elevation of that center most suited as the leader to satisfy this increased demand.

New York's Fur Dominance

WHERE business wealth concentrates, there will be found the pivotal point of that business. When the raw materials of a mighty industry are distributed in the center that consumes and utilizes the largest proportion of those raw materials, then is the world assured of a sound basis of valuation.

With New York raw fur dealers supplying raw furs in greater quantity than any other center in the world, with its manufacturing furriers creating styles that America and all the world adopt as authentic, with its extensive resources, its gigantic power and its tremendous consumption—New York has naturally created the recognition of being the Fur Market of the World.

New York's Next Sale

APRIL 19th

and the days following

CATALOGS will be issued and the warehouses at 48-50-52 Great Jones Street opened for the inspection of merchandise beginning April 14th.

Establishing World Fur Values

SMALL wonder then that New York should be the home of the New York Fur Auction Sales—a central clearing house reflecting the strength of this mighty industry—a veritable governor of fur values.

The values that are established three times a year at its tremendous sales by the world's leading buyers, at once become the standards by which fur values are judged. And the establishment of this mighty power in a market such as New York, assures the fur world of an expression of real economic worth.

America today holds the dominance of the world's fur power. New York is supremely important in the maintenance of that position . . . and the New York Fur Auction Sales stand as an institution of primary importance in that world market. America! New York! The New York Fur Auction Sales! All are inseparable units of the mighty fur industry—all are dedicated to its continued growth.

IMITATION RESEARCH OF COLLEGES SCORED

Carnegie Foundation Report Blames Such Expenditures in Part for Low Salaries.

WANTS RESULTS PUBLISHED

Says Statement of Last Twenty-five Years' Achievements Should Precede Appeals to Public.

Great sums have been expended by American colleges and universities upon "imitation research" and before appealing to the public for new funds on an enormous scale they should render a statement of the results of their expenditures in the last twenty-five years, says Henry Smith Pritchett, President of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, in his annual report made public yesterday. Blaming such expenditures in part for low salaries, the report says:

"Much of that which has gone on in American universities under the name of research is in truth only an imitation of research and upon it great sums have been expended.

"College salaries also have been diluted enormously by the tendency of most college faculties and governing bodies to bid for students by extending the curriculum over the whole field of knowledge, a process which means great increase in the number of teachers and the consequent leveling down of salaries."

In many institutions, Dr. Pritchett says, important branches of study are taught by ill-prepared and ill-paid teachers, and security of tenure results in indifferent and inefficient teachers being highly overpaid, while good men are underpaid. The average salary of the college professor in the United States and Canada is probably larger than the average pay of any other professional group, the report says, although of the 1,000 colleges in the United States and Canada fully half have no means to pay salaries beyond a bare living.

Referring to endowment campaigns for increasing salaries, now being conducted by many institutions, the report says:

"There could be no more wholesome contribution to education today than to ask our universities to take stock of themselves before appealing to the public for funds on an enormous scale, and no process would be more helpful to the profession than to ask the governing bodies of these institutions to render a sincere and critical statement of the results obtained in education in our higher institutions by the expenditures of the last twenty-five years. Such a self-examination and such a scrutiny intelligently conducted would render a greater service to education than the mere addition of new millions to be used in making new professorships, to add new departments or even to be used in modest additions to the present salaries."

Many worthless law schools are flourishing, according to the report, and "their ill-trained products are enticed into a career for which they are not fitted with resultant direct injury to their clients, to the community and themselves. In addition these schools exert an unfortunate influence upon bar examiners, rendering these latter fearful of making their own standards what they term impracticably high. The better law schools are at once deprived of the valuable check that adequate bar examination tests, keyed to their own method of instruction, would provide, and are tempted to meet competition from inferior schools by compromising their own ideals."

The report urges reform in secondary teaching, saying that the average secondary teacher today is one who has taken a college course for its own sake and then concluded to go into teaching.

By the end of its fourteenth year, on June 30, 1919, the Carnegie Foundation had distributed $7,000,000 in retiring allowances and pensions to 852 persons. Of the total expenditures, $5,600,000 went to seventy-three institutions. The resources of the Foundation now amount to $21,045,000.

PEASANTS BAFFLE LENIN.

He Complains That Capitalistic Tendencies Survive Among Them.

MOSCOW, April 9.—In an address today to the Congress of Russian Trades Unions, Nikolai Lenin, the Bolshevist Premier, declared that the complete elimination of capitalistic tendencies was contingent on the education of the peasant classes.

He said large groups of peasants constituted a "petite bourgeoisie," in which such instincts were still alive. He declared that consciousness of their new social status was hindered among the agricultural population by their lack of education.

Why I bought an

AEOLIAN-VOCALION

A true phonograph story in three chapters

CHAPTER I

What the Name "Aeolian" Meant to Me

I have had my Vocalion two months. Yet I spend more time playing it today than I did when it first came.

A friend of mine who is thinking of purchasing a phonograph said to me recently, "What made you decide to buy the Aeolian-Vocalion?"

"The Aeolian name," I replied, after a moment's thought, "always comes to me when I think of music or musical instruments. Of the score or more of my friends who have bought from The Aeolian Company, not one has been disappointed; not one but believes his instrument the finest in tone, the most dependable and durable that he could have found anywhere. So I have grown up to look upon The Aeolian Company as one of the broadest, fairest, business houses I know of—the home it seems to me, of things musically artistic."

"But did you buy a phonograph just because you approved of the house that sold it?" laughed my friend.

"No," I replied, "but I would not have dreamed of buying any phonograph without at least first seeing the one The Aeolian Company made."

CHAPTER II

How the Vocalion First Impressed Me

I was impressed first of all with its looks. It was so shapely, so unostentatious, yet so carefully finished. I thought it the best-looking phonograph I had ever seen. I visualized it in one particular spot in my living-room and it looked good to me. I'm not ashamed to admit it.

Then the minute I heard it, I was struck by its naturalness of tone. Whether the obliging young salesman played the William Tell Overture or a record of the wonderful voice of Rosa Raisa, or a jazzy piece of dance music, it seemed as though here, at last, I heard a phonograph that sounded like the real instruments and voices. I didn't have to ask the salesman who was singing. I knew it was Rosa Raisa. I recognized the rich, organ-like tones immediately.

Other advantages and features of the Vocalion were explained to me, but I decided on the strength of those two first impressions.

CHAPTER III

A Feature That Makes My Phonograph More Interesting Today Than When It Arrived

After I had had my Vocalion for a few days, the fact dawned on me, that it was becoming more and more fascinating as time went on. With this Graduola, you can really play the music—express it in your own way. By pulling it out slowly you get the effect of increasing distance—of a gradual descrescendo until you have the softest pianissimo; while by a sharper movement you can accent any notes you wish. The Graduola adds so much to the pleasure of owning a phonograph!

Let me show you with this little southern lullaby, "Ma Little Sunflower, Goodnight," sung by James Stanley.

I accent just a note here, a phrase there, subduing the voice if I choose in this one part to bring out the wistful beauty of the violin obligato. The second verse I play softly, shading it gradually to a faint, caressing whisper. The singer could never have recorded it so, yet how charming the effect, and just the way James Stanley would doubtless handle his fine baritone if he were here.

You can vary the expression with the Graduola in a hundred different ways and herein I suppose, lies the secret of the undoubted power of the Vocalion to hold your interest; it makes the instrument and records subject to your moods; an instrument upon which you can play and express yourself musically. The greatest pleasure in music, you know, is participation. And the Graduola enables you to participate in the playing of the Music yourself.

Do not purchase a phonograph without seeing, hearing and PLAYING the Vocalion

THE SCREEN

Maurice Tourneur's production of "Treasure Island" came to the Rivoli yesterday afternoon. Those least familiar with Stevenson's story will enjoy it most, because, while it has many excellent scenes and some good acting, it falls so far short of its original that any comparison of the two must emphasize its defects.

The first false note is struck when Miss Shirley Mason appears as Jim Hawkins. She does all a girl can with the part and in a number of scenes has something of boyish charm, but at no time is she the sturdy lad depicted by Stevenson, and every now and then her distinctly feminine mannerisms destroy the last illusion.

Much of the weakness of the picture is due to its deviations from the story. Stephen Fox is credited with the adaptation, and, apparently, he or some one felt that he could improve on Stevenson. This is the only thing that can account for many of the innovations of the picture. One of their principal offenses is in robbing Jim of the initiative and venturesomeness that make him the real hero of the story, who directs its course of events, and reducing him to the state of being merely a convenient agent for bringing about predetermined results.

For example, in the story it is Jim's own restlessness and disgust at washing dishes while good men and pirates are at war on a treasure island that impells him to slip away from the stockade and cut the cable of the enemy's ship—and every one who remembers the story at all will recall the excitement and momentous outcome of Jim's "Sea Adventure." In the picture Dr. Livesey sends the dutiful Jim on an errand to the ship, and his subsequent adventures are thrust upon him. The boy of the motion picture is never the young adventurer of the story, nor is he as true to the type that any real boy would imagine.

There are many other departures from Stevenson's original, some of them simply needless and some as ineffectual as unwarranted. Several of them violate even the most liberal laws of probability, as, for instance, when the scenarist makes Jim a stowaway on the treasure ship, who hides in an apple barrel from the time the vessel sails until the island is in sight, surely a month or more.

In the book Jim tells his own story and fills it with his personality, but in the picture the story is told about him, and the author, though he made a too conscious effort to do so, succeeded in giving little of the spirit and atmosphere of the original, and least when he came to writing subtitles.

Some recasting of the story was, of course, necessary for purposes of condensation and adaptation to the screen, but Mr. Fox seems to have been inspired with a desire to write his own movie rather than translate "Treasure Island" into moving pictures.

The redeeming features of the screen work are its many stirring and interesting scenes, and the acting of a number of those in the cast. In picturing the old treasure ship, the people and places associated with it, and the details of their turbulent lives, Mr. Tourneur has again shown himself a skilled and resourceful cinematician. The most vivid acting is done by the dependable Lon Chaney in two rôles, first, as the blind Pew, and then as the surly Merry. Charles Ogle, as Long John Silver, is genuine, but fails, through lack of opportunity or appreciation, to reveal the smooth and sunny side of the old pirate's character. The other pirates are convincing in makeup and manner, but the characters of Captain Smollett, Squire Trelawney and Dr. Livesey are negative.

The picture is well presented, with a prologue of tavern singing and an interpretive musical accompaniment. Many may find it entertaining if they are not aware of what it might have been.

Also on the Rivoli program is "Work," a Chaplin revival, and an interesting Pathecolor, slow motion picture of an athlete in action.

The ebullient, magnetic Nazimova is at the Capitol this week in "The Heart of a Child," adapted from a novel by Frank Danby, and extraordinarily well directed by Ray S. Smallwood, who, let it be said at once, seems to be a director who appreciates that his medium is moving pictures, and seeks to do everything possible in them. In many places he uses pictures effectively where others would use text dully.

The story is about a little English cockney girl who skyrockets herself through various levels until she becomes the wife of a Lord. It is interesting, for the most part, especially with the dynamic Nazimova enlivening it, and the fact that it is preposterous will not worry many. A number of players in the cast do noteworthy work, especially Claire Du Brey as an unsympathetic Lady Dorothea, but Charles Bryant, as the lordly hero, somehow doesn't seem to fit.

The two most entertaining numbers on the Strand's anniversary program this week are another of Max Fleischer's out-of-the-ink-well cartoons and a scenic by Burton Holmes entitled "Snowbound," with quotations from Whittier's poem of that name and Emerson's "The Snowstorm."

Norma Talmadge brings her talent and ever pleasing person into a photoplay entitled "The Woman Gives," adapted from a novel by Owen Johnson, which is so artificial in construction and so filled with banal and stilted subtitles that it fails to hold the interest, despite its settings and the acting of Miss Talmadge and John Halladay. It was directed by R. William Neill, who has done better work.

"The Cost," derived from David Graham Phillips's story, with Violet Heming in the leading rôle, is at the Rialto this week, and "The Virgin of Stamboul," with Priscilla Dean, remains for its fourth week at the Broadway.

MUSIC FESTIVAL CLOSES.

Schumann-Heink Sings; Tetrazzini Among 4,000 Auditors.

Ernestine Schumann-Heink sang at the final concert of the Music Festival yesterday afternoon, though her name was not in the printed bill, while Luisa Tetrazzini, who had been announced there, sat as a silent listener in a box among an audience of 4,000 that filled the Seventy-first Regiment Armory.

The chorus of the Oratorio Society opened the afternoon by singing "The Star-Spangled Banner," and the orchestra of the Symphony Society finished it with part of Haydn's "Farewell" symphony, each player blowing out a lighted candle as he left his desk and stepped down from the stage. Then the hall lights went full on amid a babel of sound, while Conductor Walter Damrosch made a brief speech of thanks and a wreath was presented to him, and Schumann-Heink and the chorus showered him with flowers as they sang "Auld Lang Syne."

In a two-hour program, Mme. Schumann-Heink won a royal welcome after two seasons' absence; she gave first with orchestra the air of Vitellia from Mozart's "Titus," a favorite of the famous contralto in former years, and she received the greatest ovation of the day after a group of little songs with piano. Among these were Carpentier's "The Home Road," Ward-Stephens's "Have You Seen Him in France," Pasternack's setting of words and harmony to the bugle-call of "Taps"; there were also Lieurance's "Indian Love Song," with violin obbligato by Nina Fletcher, and others by Secchi and Arditi, accompanied by Mrs. Katharine Hoffman. An added encore was the Irish tune of "Danny Boy."

Raisa Sings at Hippodrome.

Rosa Raisa, returning in better voice than when she sang here with the Chicago Opera earlier in the year, appeared in a mixed concert program last evening before an audience that filled most of the regular seating capacity of the Hippodrome, without the overflow crowd sometimes seen on its stage. Mme. Raisa was much applauded in airs from "The Marriage of Figaro" and from "Trovatore," a group of her native Russian songs, to which the house demanded two encores, and an Italian version of Frank Bibb's familiar "Rondel of Spring." With Giacomo Rimini, a baritone, she gave duets from "Mignon" and from Verdi's "Luisa Miller." The program also included piano solos by Winifred Byrd.

HAMMERSTEIN FUND FOR ROME ACADEMY

Impresario's Widow Tells of Plan for Fellowships for American Students Abroad.

It was announced yesterday by Mrs. Oscar Hammerstein that the memorial to Oscar Hammerstein would be in the form of two musical fellowships in the American Academy in Rome—an institution for the cultivation of creative genius in America. The American Academy will add to its fellowships in architecture, paintings, sculpture, landscape design and classical studies annual fellowships for musical composition. To finance this, and to place the Academy upon a permanent basis, the directors of the Academy have just launched a campaign for a million dollar fund.

"As soon as Major Felix Lamond had presented to me the musical aims of the Academy," Mrs. Hammerstein said at her office at 151 West Thirty-eighth Street, "I knew immediately that to become a founder of the Academy would have been the sort of memorial my husband would like to have reared to him. To become a founder—which gives one the privilege of financing two fellowships a year for the life of the Academy—one must contribute $100,000. In order to accumulate this sum, we are going ahead with a series of benefit concerts and entertainments—the first of which has already been announced to take place at the Hippodrome the evening of May 2, featuring Mme. Tetrazzini and as many of the members of the old Manhattan Opera Company as we can get together.

"In deciding to make this memorial to Mr. Hammerstein something that will raise the musical standard of the entire country, we are only carrying out Mr. Hammerstein's dearest ambitions for America. During his life, it was his pet dream to establish a national opera, truly American in every way."

Sothern and Marlowe Here April 26.

The announced return of E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe to New York will take place at the Shubert Theatre on Monday, April 26, when they will begin a four weeks' Shakespeare season. "Twelfth Night" will be the program of the first week, "Hamlet" during the second, and "The Taming of the Shrew" during the third, while a mixed program will be offered during the final week. There will be no mid-week matinees. Theda Bara, in "The Blue Flame," will end her engagement at the Shubert on April 24.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"East Is West" will be produced in London on May 24.

George L. Bickel, Lou Holtz and Lester Allen have been engaged for George White's "Scandals of 1920."

"The Man Who Came Back" was produced at the Oxford Theatre in London last Thursday night, with Mary Nash in her original role.

John Murray Anderson, producer of "What's in a Name?" is planning the production of a second "Greenwich Village Follies," and will later stage a serious play.

"Poker Ranch," a melodrama by Willard Mack, is to be produced by William H. Wellman and James P. Sinnott.

Tom Lewis has been added to this week's bill at the Palace.

MUSIC

By Richard Aldrich

Harold Bauer's Recital.

In the program of his second piano recital, which was largely attended yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall, Harold Bauer followed the prevailing fashion among the great for an abundance of lighter things. Mr. Bauer's selection of these, however, was more musical and more significant than some other selections. He began with Brahms's sonata in F minor, which he played in a peculiarly robust, poetic and individual style, finding a large utterance for the first movement especially, and some exquisite tonal effects in the andante and the "retrospect" that follows the scherzo (allegro energico), though not noted on the program. Some charming old pieces followed, harpsichord pieces by Rameau, Couperin and Leonardo Leo; the "new" gavotte attributed to Beethoven recently played at a concert of the Beethoven Association in the original form for four hands by Mr. Bauer and Mme. Samaroff, which he himself arranged for a solo, and a "Capriccio" by Johann Schobert, of insinuating grace. Schobert was a German in Paris when the boy Mozart visited that town; and either the boy or his father thought so much of him and his music that they published as Mozart's first four piano concertos four reworkings of sonatas by Schobert. And then the father Mozart wrote severely and unfavorably about him in his letters home, though Wolfgang took a different tone.

Mr. Bauer played in a manner characteristic of the Polish dance three mazurkas by Chopin, the first two of which are "without ending," that is, were supposed to be repeated indefinitely according to the needs of the dancers. Only the first, however, is "dansant," and is decidedly so. Mr. Bauer ended it amusingly by letting it fade away to nothing. The A flat impromptu and the Polonaise Fantaisie, op 61, in which there is much fancy and little of the pomp and movement of the stately aristocratic dance, and which Mr. Bauer played with a deeply penetrating imagination, followed.

He closed with a modern group comprising his own arrangement of a pastorale by Cesar Franck, originally meant for the organ, and pieces by Liszt, Laparra, Debussy and Ravel, the last being represented by his "Ondine," dedicated to Mr. Bauer. There was throughout the recital much applause for the player.

Last "Faust" and "Parsifal."

"Faust" will open the final week of the Metropolitan opera season next Monday, with an "all-American" cast, including Mmes. Farrar, Ellis and Howard, Messrs. Harrold, Whitehill, Chalmers and d'Angelo. Mr. Wolff will conduct. The last special "Parsifal" will follow on Wednesday afternoon, April 21, with Matzenauer, Harrold, Whitehill, Rothier, Didur and others, Mr. Bodanzky conducting. A large audience attended last night's "opera concert," when Mischa Elman was heard in Mendelssohn's violin concerto; Rosalie Miller sang a soprano air from Massenet's "Le Cid," and Mr. Whitehill gave, in English, "Wotan's Farewell" from "The Valkyrie."

GET THIS HEALTH HABIT:

Drink a glass of pure water as soon as you get out of bed; drink a small glass of pure orange juice just before you eat breakfast; for breakfast heat two Shredded Wheat Biscuits in the oven (to restore their crispness) and eat them with hot milk or cream. All the nutriment needed for a half day's work—the mind clear and alert, the liver and kidneys active, the stomach sweet and clean. Try it for six days and see how much better you feel.

ONE BIG UNION.

Theoretically, nobody knows from whom "the orders" have come for this I. W. W. strike. All the more sinister is the fact that those orders have been so meekly and generally obeyed. With nothing but an ulterior purpose, to enforce no demands, in satisfaction of no wrongs, for the sake of wrecking the orderly deliberation and process of labor unions, and with the red hand of the Communist, the Leninist, the I. W. W., merging them all into "one big union," the massed proletariat, lords of the State, the most menacing, judged by its first fruits the most destructive, of American strikes has begun and prosperously gone on, so far as the aims of the "architects of disaster" are concerned.

Most of us have heard about, too few of us have seriously pondered, the process of radical "boring into" the labor unions. FOSTER and FITZPATRICK, the steel strike and the coal strike, were imperfectly apprehended by a too good-natured public. Now that public has something to think on that no man or woman, capable of thought, can help thinking on. It is not merely that, when the cost of the necessaries of life is sky-scraping, perishable food is perishing by the mile and the million at the fiat of the revolutionists. The geographical situation of New York has long been studied closely by the American disciples of LENIN.

Even a little local famine is instructive, and we of New York know what to think of it. The "anonymous" makers of this strike, the givers of "orders," the would-be masters of communication and transportation, gods of the granary and of movement, now reducing millions of twentieth-century Americans to ascription to the glebe, the serfdom of the Middle Ages and of nineteenth-century Russia—these disciples of the gospel of hate and hell are unconsciously teaching Americans a resolve, a patriotism that transcends merely personal present inconveniences and sufferings foreseen.

These constrictions and mutilations of the free activity and movement, the essential liberty of action and life characteristic of America—these banded oppressors—tell us of Russia. What has been done there is more than enough monstrous and intolerable. Now it is to be done here.

It will not be done here; here it will not be submitted to, not even when our free labor unions have been destroyed. It will be submitted to and done only when Americans have forgotten all their traditions, institutions, history, hopes; when a nation of freemen has been terrorized into degeneration and cowardice. There is "one big Union" here. Its name is the United States of America. It will lay strong hands on aliens and economic perverts that try to "bore into" it.

"GRABBING" THE PORT.

The Board of Estimate is to hold a hearing today to which protestants against the proposal to unite the New York and New Jersey halves of the national port are particularly invited. It is right enough that the Board of Estimate should hold a hearing to find out what public opinion is, in order that the board may find out what its own opinion is. The proposers of the port treaty wanted this done betimes, and many weary months ago invited criticisms of their plan, which has been revised several times, with attention to all objections or suggestions from whatever source derived. There have been many responses, from the most respectable representatives of civic thought and interests, and not all have been favorable.

New York can speak officially only through the Board of Estimate, which has given a sample of its quality by stubbornly refusing to consider the subject. At the end of this too long delay the board has nothing to say for itself, but speaks through official spokesmen. The Mayor speaks most authentically, says that the plan "is "the greatest steal ever attempted to "be put over," and

> This is another method of grabbing the Port of New York. If this bill goes through the port is gone. There is nothing left of the City of New York except debts.

It is true that the Port of New York would not belong exclusively to the City of New York, under the plan, and that the Board of Estimate would lose its power of obstruction and maladministration. As matters have been going, competing ports have been gaining advantage over New York City's portion of the national port. The treaty proposes to annex New Jersey's undeveloped portion of the national port to the New York portion, and to make the united halves greater and more efficient in national service than they can be made if kept apart and developed in whatever manner. It is not possible to make any objection in principle which would bear publication. That would remain true even if there were local profit, instead of local loss, in the subordination of national to local selfishness.

The objection put forward on behalf of the Board of Estimate is that the details of the plan are not known, and that the city should not commit itself prematurely. Very well. Let the Board of Estimate propose a plan which shall not alienate New Jersey, and which shall bind both New York and New Jersey in co-operation to adopt some plan, any plan, in joint and national interest. Otherwise let the board hold its peace regarding the suggestion to propose a plan without consulting New Jersey, whose half of the port has some points of superiority to New York's half, and which supplements what New York lacks.

It is a pity that New York's officials are so much more vocal than intellectual, and mistake stubborn inaction for inflexible honesty in the protection of public interests against the dishonesty and incapacity of the Chamber of Commerce, the Merchants' Association, and others too numerous to mention. It is lamentable that the policy of the Board of Estimate so often justifies proposals to remove from its control subjects which are peculiarly suitable for its action. The only sort of action demonstrated by the board in many and diverse cases is abuse of those who propose anything.

UNITY IS INDISPENSABLE.

The French reply to the British note refusing to take part in the advance to Frankfort deals with essentials. It is an answer to the conventionally worded communication from one Government to another, and consequently ignores the remarkable statement to the public by which Mr. LLOYD GEORGE's subordinates made a bad matter very much worse. The French remind their allies that from the first they have held that the action of the Germans on the Ruhr called for a response, that they felt that it was an affair in which all should be concerned, and that if nobody else would act, nevertheless "France was obliged to say, 'That is enough.'"

How can we trust a German promise to withdraw the troops when Westphalia has been pacified? The French remind their allies that the Germans successfully defied the Entente's demand for the surrender of war criminals; that reparations have come but in part; that very little of the stipulated provision of coal has been delivered. To those who are compelled to study the German mentality as thoroughly as the French have had to do there seems to be only one way to get the German troops away from the Ruhr. Occupy German territory, as the Treaty provides, and then evacuate when the Germans evacuate—Frankfort for Essen, Hanau for Duisburg.

But the French Government agrees with the official profession of the British that it is an "essential necessity" to maintain unity of the Allies for the application of the Treaty. Further:

> This close concert of France and England appears to France equally indispensable for the equitable solution of the vast problems which are presented at this moment in the world—in Russia, the Balkans, Asia Minor and all Islam.

Here is the chief consideration—as the Belgians realized when they sent a battalion to Frankfort; as the Italians realized when they sedulously avoided, in refusing to co-operate in the occupation, any language that could give offense to France or encouragement to Germany. Mr. LLOYD GEORGE cannot play a lone hand in Russia or in Turkey; no nation can play a lone hand in any of the major problems of world politics today. French interest and British interest often conflict; French inclination and British inclination are often divergent; but harmony between the two will advance the aspirations of each more successfully than either could hope by acting alone. Germany, we all said two years ago, must be either powerless or free. She is not yet wholly powerless, and only in part free. If she were free now she might be nearly enough powerless; but until she is free from the elements of reaction which still affect the policy of her Government, she is potentially dangerous. It would be a great mistake for any of her neighbors to leave another to face that danger alone.

VOLUNTARY TRAINING.

The twenty-four Republican and the twenty-four Democratic Senators who voted to substitute voluntary for compulsory universal military training in the army reorganization recognized, if they are to be taken seriously, that military training of the young men of the country who are not in the regular army or in the National Guard is desirable and should be encouraged; but it is to be feared that if these Senators had believed that young Americans would volunteer for training by hundreds of thousands there would have been few votes in favor of Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN's amendment. On the part of some of these Senators, perhaps many of them, it was not a wholly conscientious vote—their hearts were not in it. They rejected the substance of civilian military training, but embraced the shadow. The evasion simply means that they know the logic is on the side of the cause advocated by honest friends of preparedness like Mr. CHAMBERLAIN of Oregon and Mr. WADSWORTH of New York. But the pacifists, the pro-Germans, the radical labor men and the Bolsheviki, and, it must be admitted, a mercenary and calculating class that does not want to lose the services of the young men during even a brief period of military training, were opposed to the system proposed in the Senate Army bill. These pseudo and little Americans poll a vote that is worth truckling to. It is, of course, true that some of the Senators in the opposition have convinced themselves that compulsory training would not be a good thing for the State. Their sincerity is not to be questioned, but they are only a corporal's guard. Most of the obstructionists were merely politicians.

Senator HARRIS of Georgia planned to negative the proposal of voluntary training by offering an amendment to the effect that no person should be eligible for training until he had been a citizen for at least ten years. The Senator should blush for his subterfuge and for wasting the time of the Senate. Apparently Mr. HARRIS would have military training begin at a time of life when the physique has begun to deteriorate. How his proposal would commend itself to an enemy of the United States! Mr. CHAMBERLAIN of Oregon unmasked more than one Senator when he said that "some "of the distinguished men who are "leading this fight against universal "training led the fight against con-"scription during the war, and would "have led America to defeat." That is true, but the Senators referred to, who are well known, would deny treachery to their country. Nevertheless, they would find it difficult to prove that they do not put politics before patriotism.

Little of value is to be expected from voluntary military training. An army of millions could not have been raised by enlistment during the war; it would, therefore, be fatuous to maintain that any considerable number of young men between the ages of eighteen and twenty-eight would present themselves for four months of instruction in drill and tactics during the Summer months. When General HANCOCK was a candidate for President he said that the tariff was a local question. It is just as true that compulsory military training is an emergency question in politics. All the politicians are for it when the country is at war, but when "the star of peace returns" the politicians, with an eye to the pacifist vote, are against preparedness that requires a young man to learn how to defend his country.

THE GERMAN SHIPPING PROJECT.

A conference of "seventeen of "America's most distinguished busi-"ness men" has been called by Admiral BENSON, Chairman of the United States Shipping Board, to meet in Washington next Thursday. They are to give "their aid and ad-"vice as to the best way to handle and "dispose of the $3,000,000,000 worth "of property owned by the Shipping "Board." Will any one of these distinguished business men, even if most of them are great industrialists and not practical shipping men, advise the board that any part of that $3,000,000,000 fleet should be used for the restoration of the German merchant marine and the old methods and monopolies of the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd steamship lines, those commercial and political annexes of Junkerism?

The Shipping Board has begun to allocate its ships to the old agents of those powerful organizations. Thereby it is working, unconsciously but none the less effectively, for the rehabilitation and domination of the German commercial fleet on a hundred routes, the re-erection of the most potent commercial-financial-political-propagandist concern known to history. Thereby it is using American money to destroy American foreign trade and the American merchant marine, expensively built for other and national purposes.

"It is believed," says a Hamburg dispatch to THE TIMES, "that the "Hamburg-American Line will place "its extensive organization, all its "docks, warehouses, agencies, in the "service of these Americans, who "have more ships than use for them, "and that thus all or more of the "sixty different lines which before the "war operated under the name "'Hapag' will be resuscitated with "great benefit both to America and "Germany."

With great benefit to Germany, yes. The German foreign trade will be put on its feet. The German shipping organization, ostensibly in American service, will work steadily and exclusively for German interests. The American ships will be "scrapped" as the great German lines build new boats. Let us help American, not German, shipping and exporters. Surely many or most of the seventeen distinguished business men, called to consult with the Shipping Board, will remind it of its obvious duty. They will gently take it to task, perhaps, for being gulled by German promises, for failing to comprehend German psychology, simple enough now to be read by the wayfaring man.

Captain CUNO, Director General of the Hamburg-American Line, and two other German steamship men arrived at this port last week. They, too, are going to consult with the Shipping Board, after consultation with their own men here, about the placing of American vessels on German sea routes—until and as a condition precedent to the resumption by Germany of her old superiority over the United States in sea-borne trade.

AMERICAN CANDIDATES.

Mr. EMERY POTTLE writes to The Tribune to inquire about Mr. HOOVER. Somebody, in a letter published in that paper, had malevolently insinuated that Mr. HOOVER was as American as anybody could be who had lived so much abroad, and Mr. POTTLE wants to know why and wherein Mr. HOOVER is not American. It is well and generally admitted that no candidate who is not at least 100 per cent. American has the ghost of a chance to be elected to any office this Fall, but perhaps there is something American about the tolerance which permits the interpretation of 100 per cent. to cover everybody from THADDEUS C. SWEET to ROBERT MARION LA FOLLETTE. It may be assumed that if anybody is American enough to get on a ballot he is 100 per cent. American, at least for electioneering purposes. But the various definitions of any percentage of Americanism are still somewhat insufficient.

The argument so loudly trumpeted by the opponents of Mr. HOOVER, that an American who knows anything about foreign countries cannot be a real American, has been accepted by a good many persons in times past. The implication that a man who knew anything about other nations would not have a very high opinion of our own is not altogether flattering to national pride, but to some minds it must be "shown" that Mr. HOOVER's acquaintance with foreign affairs is not a liability rather than an asset, even at a time when we must have a President possessed of some knowledge of world politics. However, for those who hold this view there is an ideal candidate offered in the person of HIRAM JOHNSON. For him the great issue of the campaign, the issue so transcendent that he repeats it in the same words in every one of his speeches, is that you can't bury the American flag and trample on its grave. Nobody who would commit that heinous offense can be a 100 per cent. American; it follows, presumably, that if you are not for Mr. JOHNSON you are not a 100 per cent. American. This sort of logic may be somewhat strange, but it is no stranger than the theory that General WOOD's Americanism is impaired because for the better part of his life he has worn the uniform of the United States Army.

The charge that Mr. HOOVER is of imperfect patriotism is, of course, intended only for persons incapable of thought but with a vast capacity for suspicion; but a more subtle form of attack suggests that a man who has lived so much abroad cannot understand the American people. That is a serious charge, but how many Presidents, or how many individuals of less distinction, understand or have understood the American people? LINCOLN, perhaps; ROOSEVELT understood certain moods, certain divisions of the consciousness; ANDREW JACKSON understood the people who elected him. But it would be rash to say that anybody except LINCOLN really had a thorough understanding of the American soul entire, and it might be a little hazardous to say it even of LINCOLN. WALT WHITMAN thought he understood us, but he flattered us. It may be that MARK TWAIN and P. T. BARNUM understood the mass of America better than any of our Presidents, but Whitmans and Mark Twains and Barnums, being artists, are ineligible for high political office. The President elected next Fall will be chosen from a group of men who know the people in varying degrees of imperfection, and that has been pretty much the case with all Presidential elections. But perhaps an exception should be made for Senator JOHNSON; he says that all he wants is to give America the privilege of deciding whether or not her own boys shall die in foreign trenches, instead of leaving the decision of quarrels with some European nation. Reliance on that argument shows that the Senator has a thorough understanding of at least one national trait—the inclination to make decisions of importance without finding out the facts and to sign or reject important documents without taking the trouble to read them.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Mere Man Talks of Servants.

That Justice DAVIES of the Municipal Court possesses what is called a judicial mind might be doubted if one knew only that he has been giving consideration to the domestic servant problem, for such minds are supposed to keep at higher altitudes than that, and to be a little scornful of questions not presented in due legal course and with due legal definiteness. There are, however, such things as obiter dicta—generalizations related to, rather than connected with, the case at bar—and it is a series of these that Justice DAVIES, in the very midst of the landlord-and-tenant whirlwind blowing about him, has contributed to the interminable controversy over household work and household workers.

In these dicta the Justice clearly manifests that his mind is judicial and wont to hear and weigh opposing contentions before reaching an opinion, for he declares that responsibility for the present much-lamented woes of homes, both with and without servants, is a divided one, with employers and employed about equally to blame.

On the one hand, Justice DAVIES asserts that those who nowadays are delicately called "maids" are, as a class, among the most ruthless of profiteers, ranking near if not beside the worst of landlords, and in seeming seriousness he says that their extortions deserve and soon shall have official investigation! What, if anything, will follow the investigation he cautiously refrains from disclosing, but it is not quite easy to imagine the sort of compulsion that is going to make the rulers of kitchens, no matter how clearly convicted of profiteering, stay when they want to go or work for less than they can get.

That living costs have increased for them less than for anybody else is a strong point made by the Justice, and with proper severity he reprehends their frequent refusal to serve in families where they are most needed—in families with children, that is.

A Remedy Indeed Desperate.

But Justice DAVIES does not direct all of his criticism against the extortionate servants. The mistresses, he hints, and almost says, have done and are doing as much as the maids to create and to aggravate the ills of which they so bitterly complain, and they, too, with profit, might be made the objects of official investigation. The chief fault charged against them by the Rhadamanthus of the Municipal Court is that of yielding weakly to demands they know to be exorbitant and of paying high wages to incompetents, on the false assumption that without a servant life is impossible and that a bad one at any price is better than none. The result of this is that some servants can ask for as much as they choose, do as little as they choose, on such conditions as they choose to lay down, and thus appreciably increase the high cost of poor living.

The remedy or relief for this situation would be, the Justice thinks, for many of the women who now have servants to do without them, thus decreasing the demand and enabling the women who really cannot take full care of their homes to get on more reasonable terms the service they ought to have.

That sounds like a good suggestion, and yet—and yet—well, any general acceptance and action on it would have to be preceded by one of those sudden changes in human nature that are expected or hoped for only by idealizing optimists, and they are not doing much business just now. The honor and joy of doing housework can be preached till the end of time—as they have been, apparently, since its beginning—but most women who can escape it probably always will continue to do so, with very little regard to problems and the solution thereof.

Planning to Save Much Money.

What affects to be, and possibly is, a serious and promising effort to reduce living costs has been started down in Birmingham, Ala., and the plan is one which, if really followed, certainly will cut down anybody's expenditures to a very appreciable extent. Like every sound device for that purpose, however, it involves personal sacrifices, and what some will call hardship, and therefore knowledge of human ways inspires some doubt as to its prolonged or wide popularity.

What the Birminghamese propose is the general joining of what they call the Overall Club, and the wearing by all the members, through all their waking hours and no matter where they go, of the blue denim garment made so familiar by the thousands and thousands of American toilers, who show a queer inclination, just now, to deny the name of honest worker to anybody except themselves.

To do that would be simple and easy, and, as just said, it would be effectively economical, at least until the increased demand for overalls had caused, as it surely would, a big advance in their price. But the blue overall, though a variously estimable means of protection and concealment, lacks aesthetic charm, and gives no opportunity for the display of personal taste. It is distinctly, and too distinctly, utilitarian, and clothing, to be more than tolerable, must be more than that.

Nobody need be ashamed to wear overalls—indeed, nobody would be whose feelings are worthy of consideration; but there is no thrill—no sense of preening, as it were—in overalls, even when they are new. And, come to think of it, new overalls are seen as rarely as dead mules. Are the clubmen of Birmingham sure that new overalls are obtainable, that they do not begin by being old and shabby, and run a rapid course until they reach the stage of stained raggedness which is apparently their normal condition?

THE CANDIDATES ARE OUT.

It takes no seer to read the signs,
No guess at what's "between the lines,"
No trumpeting nor shout.
You read it in his beaming eye,
His hand-clasp as you pass him by—
"The candidates are out."

'Tis good to know that though the price
Of bread and coal and "gas" and ice
Goes soaring to the skies,
The candidate's bright, smiling face
Will make at least one cheerful place—
Regardless of the rise.

For him no luxury of blues
As he the vagrant vote pursues,
Mile after weary mile.
Though other faces droop and gloom
With impress of impending doom—
The candidate will smile.

Good luck, old fellows! Try your wings!
God gave that right to striving things,
From mockingbirds to men and kings—
Let naught your courage daunt.
If from the ranks you hope to rise,
Don't wait and wish to win the prize—

JOHNSON'S VOTE.

His Strength Held to Lie in Red and "Separate Peace" Groups.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read with appreciation your comment upon Senator Johnson's sweeping victory in the Michigan primaries, and I fully agree with your conclusions as to the voting elements which gave the Senator his tremendous advantage over General Wood in the City of Detroit and in Wayne County. But I think you have overlooked two of the most important contributory causes to Senator Johnson's victory in that highly organized industrial community. According to the census figures, more than 300,000 of Detroit's adult population are of foreign origin and, while I have not available the statistics to show how many of these are of Russian birth, it is clear from developments elsewhere that a great number of them must be Slavs.

In this connection you have probably noticed from the testimony taken before the sub-committee of the United States Committee on Foreign Relations, that Martens of the self-styled Soviet "Embassy" in this country selected Detroit as the only city in the country for the establishment of a branch of his so-called "Embassy," and that Detroit was the meeting place of the secret session of the Russian Socialistic Federation, before which Martens appeared to develop and corroborate his title as "Ambassador." In line with these facts, it is wholly pertinent to recall the comment which has lately appeared in some periodicals which affect parlor socialism, or even a more extreme phase of radicalism, assailing the Senate committee for its so-called persecution of Martens, and attributing its cause to the friendship of the committee's Chairman, Senator Moses, to General Wood's candidacy. These publications were freely circulated in Detroit prior to the primary and, without doubt, contributed largely to the extreme activity among the Red element in that city in behalf of Senator Johnson.

The inquiry naturally arises whether similar tactics in Senator Johnson's behalf will be practiced in the East. The New Jersey primary takes place on April 27, and there are communities in New Jersey where the same element which was aroused in Senator Johnson's behalf in Detroit will be found in large numbers. Happily, the issue in New Jersey is more clear-cut than it was in Michigan, because neither Lowden nor Hoover appears upon New Jersey's ballot and the contest is direct as between General Wood and Senator Johnson.

J. W. DAVIS.

Newark, N. J., April 8, 1920.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Johnson is campaigning for the German vote (and getting it) by promising a separate peace with Germany; for the Irish vote (and getting it) by "lambasting" England, and for the Socialist, Communist, Bolshevist and I. W. W. vote (and getting it) by being "agin the Government," which just now happens to be represented by President Wilson.

You need only study the returns from the Michigan primaries to learn the source of Johnson's strength in that State. The same is true everywhere. Germans, Irish and all the different brands of revolutionaries are for him heart and soul.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your editorial article in THE NEW YORK TIMES this morning, commenting upon the fact that a British aviator succeeded in alighting in his airplane upon the deck of a British warship, you state that it is difficult to believe that an airplane with rigid and immovable wings could be brought to a stop on a landing place as small as the part of a warship's deck that could be offered to it. It might interest you to know that an American aviator performed this feat quite a few years ago. The late Eugene Ely alighted upon the deck of an American warship either in San Francisco or San Diego Bay in one of the old-fashioned Curtiss "pusher" biplanes. His momentum was checked by a series of ropes stretched across the deck to the ends of which were attached bags filled with sand. A hook upon the landing gear of the plane gathered up these ropes and bags and thus brought the machine to a stop.

Lost Time in New York.

I was in New York at the opening of new time this season, and I predicted on leaving that it would cost New York City $200,000,000 worth of business this year from Southern men who will divert their trade to more sensible Baltimore and Philadelphia.

The country business man is a creature of habit and routine. He finds himself all upset on entering New York. His train timetable is different from his business time and he loses an hour, a whole hour, of valuable time. He sets his watch to be up with New York and finds that he lacked just a half hour of finishing up his work planned when he left home. Had New York kept the regular time he could have completed his work and been on the train and home by midnight. Instead he pays a ten-dollar hotel bill to stay in New York and remain awake all night on account of noise. Next morning he finishes up his few minutes of work and business and goes to catch his train connections by his watch to find he is one hour ahead of time—lost time. He arrives home to find he missed a whole extra day from his business, missed a deal with a hundred-dollar profit, and paid out a ten-dollar hotel bill to gratify New York's desire to be different. Next time he will use better judgment and buy in Baltimore or Philadelphia.

Wholesome Unrest.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Arthur Woods, formerly Police Commissioner of New York, recently delivered an address at the Harvard Union entitled "American Citizenship on Trial." Let me quote the following paragraph from Mr. Woods's address, which seems peculiarly fitted to the circumstances of the day:

"We often hear that it is mostly foreigners who are causing the unrest which we read about so much, which is such a serious element in the situation in the country today. Unrest is a queer sort of thing. I caught myself a few minutes ago using the word 'agitator,' and then I quickly tried to change and say 'evil agitator,' and I hope that it was not noticed that I once used the word 'agitator' alone, because agitators are thoroughly wholesome things, and unrest is a thoroughly wholesome state of mind. If we don't have unrest, if we don't agitate for better things, if there is not a wholesome discontent, we shall not make progress. Discontent is nothing in a certain sense but another word for ambition, and if we have not ambition, we don't get far. What we mean when we talk about unrest, when we object to unrest today, is the form of unrest which seeks to attain to a state of rest and peace by revolutionary methods, by not observing the rules of the game."

The Russian Easter.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The papers recently repeatedly stated that the Russians were surprised by the Japanese at Vladivostok while celebrating Easter.

Please note that the Russian or Orthodox Easter this year comes on the 18th of this month, which means that either the Russians "got mixed in their dates" or the reporters reported the wrong things.

PEACE MOVE IN SENATE.

Lodge Plans to Have Resolution Referred to His Committee.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The fight over the Republican resolution to establish peace with Germany without ratification of the Treaty of Versailles, adopted last week by the House, will be shifted tomorrow to the Senate, with the prospect of an indefinite controversy. The vote in the House was 242 to 150, and the resolution is to be transmitted formally to the Senate tomorrow for reference to the Foreign Relations Committee.

Senator Lodge plans to bring the resolution before the committee on Wednesday. Action before next week, however, is not expected.

Considerable revision of the resolution is expected. Several influential Republican Senators favor modifications. The measure may be limited to a simple declaration that the war is ended, although a statement of American policy is favored in some quarters on the Republican side.

Senate Republicans are expected to show practically solid support for the resolution as it comes from the committee, leaders say. The Democrats, Administration spokesmen say, are as certain to be solid in opposition.

Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, the Administration leader in the treaty fight, was en route tonight to Nebraska for the Presidential primary campaign. Before leaving Washington he said he expected that no action would be taken by the Foreign Relations Committee until he returned. He also predicted a long fight in the Senate over the peace resolution and was hopeful of some Republican votes against it.

Some Senators said they would not be surprised if the President returned the treaty to the Senate in the course of the debate on the peace resolution. Republican leaders are planning to avoid interference with the remaining appropriation bills, giving them the right of way as they are presented. They hope, however, to clear up all pressing business, including the peace measure, before the recess planned about June 1 for the political conventions.

OFFER NEW TREASURY ISSUE

Short Term Certificates at Higher Interest Total $250,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Secretary Houston today announced that he had offered for subscription, at par and accrued interest, through the Federal Reserve Banks, treasury certificates of indebtedness of relatively short maturities and bearing the higher interest rates of 5 per cent. and 5¼ per cent.

There will be a combined issue of two series, both dated and bearing interest from April 15, 1920. One series will be known as Series F, 1920, payable July 15, 1920, with interest at 5 per cent. per annum. The other issue will be known as Series G, 1920, payable on October 15, 1920, with interest at the rate of 5¼ per cent. per annum.

The combined issue will be for $250,000,000 or more.

Secretary Houston authorized the following statement, in connection with the announcement of the new issues:

"Secretary Houston said that recent changes in the situation which he had had the advantage of discussing with the Federal Reserve Bank governors' meeting in Washington during the past week, has led him to the determination that it would be wise to meet the current requirements of the Government, enlarged as they are by expenditures in connection with the return of the railroads to private control, by the issue of Treasury certificates of relatively short maturity and bearing interest at higher rates. Accordingly he was announcing an issue of 5 per cent. certificates of three months maturity and 5¼ per cent. certificates of six months maturity."

Secretary Houston announced that subscription for the issue of Treasury Certificates of Indebtedness of Series E, 1920, dated April 1, 1920, maturing July 1, 1920, closed at the close of business Friday, April 9. Final reports have not yet been received, but preliminary reports indicate that the aggregate subscriptions approximate $200,000,000.

ANDERSON ATTACKS POLICE.

He Says the Department Has Not Been Doing Its Duty.

"I will go to jail before I will apologize for telling the truth about the bi-partisan bunch of wet nullificationists which so far have been in control of the Assembly on the liquor question," declared William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, at the West Side Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon. "If the Assembly wants to 'protect its dignity as a deliberative body' let it in fact be a deliberative body and exhibit some dignity," he continued. Mr. Anderson repeated his attacks on the Assembly for proposing to investigate the Anti-Saloon League and the attitude of members on prohibition.

He then declared that the Police Department has not been doing its duty, but that under prohibition the officers will be required to do their duty. He said that the liquor interests would receive no help from the Supreme Court of the United States; that the prohibition law could not be repealed, and that their only hope would lie in the capture of a Congress that would give a liberal enforcement act.

BELIEVE POLE DASH FAILED.

Amundsen Unlikely to Reach Furthest North, Says Danish Paper.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, April 10.—Today's Morgenbladet expresses the belief that Roald Amundsen's expedition has given up its attempt to reach the north pole and has gone into Winter quarters far more to the east than was planned. It is believed the explorers could not have reached last Fall the point from which it was planned to start driving toward the pole.

Professor Nansen says he does not understand this. The paper thinks that Amundsen will only finish the northeast passage, and may investigate the country north of Alaska and then return some time this Spring or in 1921, undoubtedly bringing valuable material for scientific observations, which have often underlined scientific work. The main thing is not sport in such expeditions, the paper says.

CHAIRMAN GLYNN WINS.

Barnes's Attempt to Replace Him with Gleason or Gould Abandoned.

A movement to displace George A. Glynn as Chairman of the Republican State Committee, first by Lafayette B. Gleason, the Secretary, and then by Representative Norman J. Gould, Eastern campaign manager for General Wood, has ended in failure, it was learned yesterday. Mr. Glynn is expected to be re-elected unanimously at the meeting of the new State Committee, chosen at the primaries, at the National Republican Club on Thursday.

FAVORS A MANDATE FOR FREE ARMENIA

TO STUDY FINANCIAL ASPECTS

Supreme Council Will Be Asked to Make Arrangements for Provisional Credits.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 11.—The League of Nations finds itself unable to accept a mandate for Armenia because it lacks the machinery for administering such a charge. To administer such a mandate would require both military and financial resources, neither of which the League possesses. The Council of the League believes it can find a mandatary for Armenia if some one else will pay the expenses. It will recommend that the members of the League make collective arrangements to meet Armenia's financial needs.

As for the assumption of guardianship of the racial minorities in Turkey, the Council of the League believes it is within its province to accept this duty, but cannot definitely commit itself as to ways and means until the Turkish treaty has been fully drafted.

These two important decisions were made known at the public session of the Executive Council of the League held in the Luxembourg Palace this afternoon. They were reached in the two days' private sessions preceding the open session.

From the action of the Council it is very clear that a way is left open for American acceptance of the Armenian mandate if the United States desires it.

It appears that in the opinion of the members of the League Council the Allied Supreme Council did not take into account the League's lack of resources at present. The resolution on Armenia announced today makes this very plain, and the enemies of the League are saying that it proves that the organization has more bark than bite.

Armenian Decision Read by Fisher.

The decision on Armenia, which was read by Herbert Fisher, the British Minister of Education, begins by saying that on March 12 the Allied Council, sitting in London, asked the Council of the League if it would accept on behalf of the League, as provided in Article 22 of the covenant, the protection of the future independent State of Armenia. Here is the text of the Council's reply:

"The Council of the League is of opinion that the best means to an end on all hands admitted to be desirable would be the acceptance of a mandate for Armenia by a civilized State under the League of Nations. Such a solution would, it is understood, be welcome to the Armenians, would offer the best earnest of efficient and prosperous administration, and would be in conformity with arrangements which have recently been planned under the League of Nations in other parts of Asia in which political conditions are not entirely dissimilar.

"It may be asked, however, whether any State is likely to accept such a responsibility. The Council of the League is of opinion that the answer to this question will depend partly on the military measures which may be devised to liberate the territory and to protect the frontiers of the new State and partly upon finance.

Financial Aid for Mandatary.

"The Council did not consider that it fell within its province to examine the military situation in Armenia or the measures necessary to secure the maintenance of peace in that country. With respect to finance it was of opinion that if arrangements could be made whereby the mandatory State were relieved of the financial liabilities consequent upon its acceptance of a mandate it was not to be anticipated that insuperable difficulties would arise in finding a mandatary for Armenia.

"The new State will need credits to tide it over the first years of its existence, and credits imply financial guarantees. The Council of the League is prepared to submit to the Assembly of the League that its constituent members should consider provisions of collective guarantees.

"Meanwhile, in view of the fact that the Assembly will not meet until Autumn, the Council of the League is entering into communication with the Supreme Council with a view to seeing what provisional financial arrangements can be made to facilitate that solution of the problem which commends itself to the general sense of the Council of the League as being likely to lead to the most satisfactory result."

With regard to the protection of racial minorities in Turkey the Council showed itself disposed to do what it could for their benefit. The decision on this point was read by Ambassador Gaiffier d'Hestroy for Belgium.

Protection for Turkish Minorities.

The resolution began by telling how the Allied Supreme Council has asked the Council of the League to guarantee protection to oppressed people in Turkey and then said:

"The Council at once appreciated the importance of the problem for which it was asked to find a solution. The fate of 2,000,000 non-Mussulmans was at stake.

"The Council had unanimously decided that its mission and the expectations of the civilized world require it to accede to this reqquest. It considers that it would be carrying out the great task for which it was constituted by contributing in every possible way to prevent the repetition of the abominable crimes which have so often been committed in the territory of the Ottoman Empire and thus prevent the recurrence of the war which these massacres may bring about.

"It believes, however, that it may find itself confronted with responsibilities of which it is unable to measure the scope. It could not find a practical solution until the clauses of the Peace Treaty to be concluded with Turkey have been definitely fixed. Therefore the Council of the League of Nations has decided to inform the Supreme Council of its keen sympathy with the recommendations it has submitted and to inform them that it is ready to enter into communication with them with a view to determining what measures are necessary to guarantee the execution of the clauses for the protection of minorities."

Count Donin-Longare, the Italian Ambassador, reported on the question of prisoners of war in Siberia. He said there were between 120,000 and 200,000 prisoners of many nations in Siberia and that they were in desperate straits. It was decided to name a commission to study means for their repatriation. Dr. Nansen and Henry P. Davison may be asked to assume this task. These prisoners belong to Germany and Austria as well as the allied nations.

Consideration of the status of Danzig resulted in the sending of a telegram to Sir Reginald Tower, High Commissioner for Danzig, approving his plan for the coming elections in the district of the free city.

While the subject was not discussed at the public session, it is learned that the League finds itself in debt to the extent of some £35,000 for the past three months. The League being without funds, Sir Eric Drummond, the Secretary General, consented to have this burden carried in England until the next meeting of the Council, next month in Rome, when its financial situation will be considered.

CRISIS IN FORTUNE BARED BY CROKER

Appealed in Vain to Richard, Jr., He Says, When His Last Dollar Vanished.

TELLS OF DOMESTIC WOES

Reveals Constant Wrangling with First Wife, on Whom He Settled His Wealth.

REVIEWS TURF TRIUMPHS

Relates, Also, How Present Mrs. Croker Made $50,000 for Him While He Lay Ill.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., April 11.—Richard Croker today told an amazing story of years of domestic turmoil, of the relinquishment of a fortune to his first wife and their children, of the shrinking of his holdings, and of a time when, after wielding almost autocratic power as leader of Tammany Hall, he found himself without a dollar in bank and appealed in vain to his son, Richard, Jr. In this remarkable human document Mr. Croker tells of paying $30,000 for his daughter Ethel's divorce and of giving Richard, Jr., $2,500 to get back from Ireland with. He speaks pathetically of his dead son Frank as the only one of his offspring who "really wanted to use me right." He declares the present Mrs. Croker believed she was marrying a poor man and also tells how, when he was ill last winter she, on her own initiative, made a profit of $50,000 for him. The narrative touches on his racing victories, from the proceeds of which he says he was at one time forced to live. It closes with a detailed account of some $2,000,000 made since his second marriage in Florida real estate.

Mr. Croker withdrew from Tammany Hall about twenty years ago. He said he had been involved in a constant domestic wrangle, and that he finally came to a partial settlement of it by agreeing with his wife, through their son, Richard Croker, Jr., who represented them both, that they would disagree permanently, and that he would allow the first Mrs. Croker and their children an income of $35,000 a year. He turned over to his son as trustee at that time, he said, securities that would produce an annual income of about $28,000, and the remaining $7,000 a year due under this agreement was to be made up by him. This sum, to a total of $35,000 annually, Mr. Croker says he continued to pay to the end, Mrs. Croker's death occurring in 1914. Before that time, he went on, the strain on him of keeping up the payments was so great that he called upon his attorneys for an opinion of what position he would be in if he could no longer make them.

Lived on Turf Earnings.

"After that time," said Mr. Croker today, "or for at least a period of ten years, I lived absolutely upon the earnings of my stables. Except for my investment in Glencairn, my home, I had turned almost everything I had over to my family, and if it had not been for Orby, my Derby winner, I could not have lived.

"Besides the money I turned over to my family in this annual allowance, my children frequently asked me for more money, and if I could get it I always gave it to them, in accordance with what had been my habit all my life.

"My daughter Ethel's divorce alone cost me $30,000. I not only put up this money, but I went to the Archbishop and got permission for her to be remarried to the nice boy she now has for a husband. She had got married to a groom she met at Durland's Riding Academy, named Breen. I don't remember what his first name was, but I got her out of that mess and arranged so that she could be married to Tom White of Cedarhurst, L. I., who is making her a good husband. He is a real good boy, a good man.

"After doing all this for her, the way she takes of repaying me is to furnish Howard with a long affidavit attacking my mentality and attacking my wife. In this affidavit she says she heard through a friend of Howard that I was going to be married again. I took her with me the first time I ever called on my wife. That's an illustration of the little twists that occur all through these affidavits; also this man might have been a friend of Howard but he was more her own friend. It was her own sweetheart, Ted Donovan's son, who told her. He used to come every day to see her at our house at 5 East Seventy-fourth Street, which was kept open expressly for that purpose—for her to entertain her beau in.

Discusses His Daughter.

"Ethel complains in her affidavit of my not telling her my affairs. She told me but little of hers. I didn't know even whom she married. In 1915 she cabled me 'I'm married,' and we didn't know who the man was until we got back to this country in 1916. I thought, of course, it was Donovan, because he came every day, while White came only once a week. She asked me one time which one to take, and I told her, 'If you marry Donovan, he'll be the boss and you'll sit in the corner. If you marry White, I don't know whether you'll do any sitting or not, although he's a nice boy.' She evidently wanted to keep moving.

"My son Frank, who was killed at Ormond, is the only one of my sons I can look back at and feel really wanted to use me right. I think he did. The last words he ever said to me were that it was the ambition of his life to repay me the money I had loaned him to go into business with.

"Speaking of the various gifts I have given my children, in addition to the $720,000 my attorney told of the other day, I will say that these gifts were going on all the time and I did not attempt to keep any track of them. Only this morning I ran across a canceled check for £500 that I gave Richard to come home on when he came to Ireland to see me and said he did'nt have anything to get back with.

Says Children Ignored Loans.

"I remember Richard writing me to ask if he could not give Ethel and Howard a couple of thousand dollars a year more, as they did not have enough to live comfortably on in the city, and that they would repay this out of their mother's estate when it was settled. I told him to go ahead and later when I was getting short and the estate was settled I asked that these advances be repaid. The way he carried on! He thought it was terrible that I should suggest it. The check for $2,500 I gave Richard was on the last visit he made me, when he was going home. Some time earlier I made $10,000 profit in a business transaction, got a draft for it and sent him that to invest. I don't know what became of it. The trip before that he had his wife along and they left an overdraft in his bank, the Hibernian Bank of Dublin, that I had to pay.

"After I was married and got down to Palm Beach, there was one time when I didn't have a cent I could put my hands on. I wrote Richard and asked him to advance me $10,000, but he wouldn't do it."

"Didn't you pay any personal attention to your financial affairs?" Mr. Croker was asked.

"Not much, not at that time. At the time I had the settlement with my family through Richard I simply turned about everything I had over to him, for him to manage the estate, and then I went to Wantage, England, and next year I went over to Ireland and built.

Recounts Racing Triumphs.

"I was lucky, and for the most part I lived from my stables. Orby alone earned me from $23,000 to $25,000 every year. If it hadn't been for him I don't know how I would have got along. He gave me all my ready money. I had luck with my other horses, too. There was a mare called The Banshee that I bought for £500, and cleaned up £3,000 in three months. She was a filly, and was going to race for a £500 stake. I had a horse entered. I went to the owners and said my entry was certain to beat his, but to make sure I would buy his horse, so as to own them both. She showed up so well that I withdrew my horse, and won £1,500 with her at a 20 to 1 shot. Then I sold her for a big price. She was delicate, was high strung and would leave her oats, but she was good for that time if she was handled right. I told the jockey to jump off and not let her be headed, and he did just as I told him and won. She never won another race, but of course I didn't care, as I was no longer her owner."

In view of his statement that he told the present Mrs. Croker at the time of their marriage that he had no fortune, Mr. Croker was requested to explain his remarks of a few days ago indicating he now had a fortune of $2,500,000.

"Did you acquire that amount of money since your marriage, six years ago, and does the estimate include what stands in your name only, or does it also include the property you have placed in your wife's name?" he was asked.

"I said I would sell out for $2,500,000," Mr. Croker replied. "I meant that to cover everything I possess and everything my wife owns. We consider the estate as a unit. I have gone over the matter again, and think that $2,000,000 would cover it. Most of this money my wife and I have made in Palm Beach real estate.

Offered Bride "a Shack."

"Mrs. Croker, when I married her, did not even know that I had a home in Ireland, or that I had a house down here. I didn't mention the Irish estate to her, and I told her I had a little shack down here, a bathhouse I called it. She knew I had some funds. She did not look upon me as a rich man, which I was not at that time.

"What did you have at that time?"

"I had my estate in Ireland which cost me $150,000, I had a string of horses there, my house in Palm Beach, about $5,000 in cash and the securities that I had turned over to Richard. When I finally got Richard to open the box we had held jointly in the Equitable Trust Company—this was when I took away his power of attorney—there were two blocks of stock in it, nothing else. This was all that was left of whatever property I had.

"There was a block of Wabash stock which I afterward sold for $60,000, but at that time he gloated over the fact that the Wabash had gone into the hands of a receiver. He said Andrew Friedman had told him to buy it. Then there were 5,000 shares of Westinghouse. I sold this at from 35 to 43, for an average of about 40, which would figure $200,000. Perhaps my estate in Ireland was worth at that time $200,000, so that I was then worth, all told, we will say, about half a million dollars, but nearly half of it was not an investment—it was more or less of an expense.

Decides to Make Money.

"I talked the matter over with my wife, and we decided it was time I was making some money. I sold the stock and raised every dollar I could elsewhere, and with this I started in to buy real estate here. If I had had the fortune my children say, I would have bought one-half of Palm Beach County. I raised $50,000 on my horses. I was so short at this time that on one occasion I did not have a dollar in the bank. That was when I tried to borrow $10,000 from Richard. A lot of this land I bought for $5 a front foot, some for $25, and some for $40. What I have left of it is worth from $150 to $250 a foot.

"My wife, through her own initiative and her own judgment made me a profit of $50,000 in one deal last Winter, at the time I was so ill, when my son Howard was here. I had been trying early in the Fall to buy a thousand feet of land on the ocean in the center of my holdings. The owner lived on the Pacific Coast. While I was so ill—I had been in bed for weeks—his agent notified me the owner had decided to accept my offer of $50,000 for the tract. I had no ready money, was sick, and declined to take it up. My wife followed up the deal, found it would take two months to get the papers back and a search made, and bluffed the deal through, not knowing where she was going to get the rest of the money from. Before the papers were ready she had it sold for $100,000 to a Philadelphia woman, and the two deals were closed at one time, one deal financing the other. That is more than my children ever did for me, and the profit she made of $50,000 in less than sixty days is more than we have spent in all living expenses combined since we were married.

"I bought a small piece of land for $22,500 and sold it to Otto Kahn for $42,000 and I have made a number of other fine sales. Richard tried to keep me out of my investments here, and he and Howard are the ones that are saying I my estate, instead of having my wife to be appointed to take care of me and my estate instead of having my wife exercise so much influence over me. I must say I can't see their case."

The Heart of a Woman

By MRS. JIMMIE THOMPSON—GREELEY 579.

A million old maids is too many. For the soft and gentle heart of a woman yearns for that affection which is meant to be hers.

That is why Mr. Joseph Klaw introduced me to the New York public, so that I might meet the lonely maids of this city in my Temple of Laughter and Marriage, the Princess Theatre, and tell them how they may best win their way into the sanctuary of some man's affection.

Mr. Klaw said to me: "Is it true that there are many lilies withering on their stems?" and I said, with a bright smile of hope: "Yes, there are many such, but they need not be so. You, Mr. Klaw, have blazed a path of light to happiness.

"In this hilarious comedy of yours at the Princess Theatre you have presented to any (who will pay the box office price) the secret of happiness and marriage."

Do not forget, my good friends, the Princess Theatre, West 39th Street, with its ample cushioned seats. Any evening at 8:30, Wednesday and Saturday matinees at 2:30. Greeley 579.

Flowers and Human Things

By DR. BERTHOLD A. BAER.

Some time ago I read that it takes about two hundred thousand rosebuds, weighing about seventy-five pounds, to gain one ounce of attar of roses, the most expensive perfume in the world.

"Flowers," said Longfellow, "flowers—how like they are to human things."

No one ever obtained lasting success lightly. No great achievement was built up overnight. The evolution of man and things was an everlasting fight with nature.

The Funeral Church, Broadway at 66th Street, is the result of a thirty years' growth. Mr. Frank E. Campbell, its founder, by elimination and application, has built the greatest institution of its kind in the world.

The care of the dead is like the care of a rare flower; they require knowledge, love and understanding.

Does it not seem to you more than a mere incident that with The Funeral Church is connected one of the best-equipped Floral Shops in this City? ©1920

HOOVER PLEA NETS $1,600,000 FOR JEWS

Tells of Typhus Menace at Launching of New York Campaign for War Sufferers.

3,000,000 CHILDREN IN NEED

Louis Marshall and Judge Elkus Picture Plight of Stricken People—Large Contributions Made.

Although the American Relief Administration, in an endeavor to prevent the spread of typhus in Europe, recently obtained the entire assignment of anti-typhus material, drugs, machinery, disinfecting plants and motor cars, including all the tremendous equipment that went with each of the continental armies, this equipment is probably not one-third of the amount required "if typhus is not to spread gradually eastward and westward across the whole of Europe."

This statement was made last night by Herbert Hoover, at the Hotel Astor, where more than $1,600,000 was subscribed at a dinner to launch the campaign known as the New York Appeal for Jewish War Sufferers. About 1,000 men and women prominent in all walks of life attended the dinner and listened to the appeals of Mr. Hoover, Louis Marshall, Abram I. Elkus, Associate Judge of the Court of Appeals, and Judge Otto A. Rosalsky, on behalf of the stricken Jews of Europe.

The menace of typhus was the note struck by all the speakers. Mr. Marshall declared that typhus menaced 6,000,000 Jews of Europe.

"In New York City there are 6,000,000 men, women and children," he said. "Imagine that each and every one of these 6,000 000 is without food, clothing, shelter, medicine, nurses, without help; imagine that these six million include you, and your children and your friends and then you will begin to understand what it is that has brought us together and why we propose to find ways and means to help these unfortunate people."

Judge Elkus described the ravages of typhus as he witnessed it when Ambassador at Constantinople, and of his own experience when stricken by it.

Mr. Hoover, who received an ovation when he arose to speak, said that when the veil over Eastern and Central Europe was torn asunder there was revealed a mass of suffering humanity such as the world has not seen since the Thirty Years War. He said it was felt that unless special care and food were provided for them the degeneration of child life would be such that at least one generation in all that area from Lithuania to the Mediterranean would be lost.

Today, he said, 3,000,000 children are still dependent on American charity. The child-feeding service must still go on another year, he added, if the child life of Central Europe is to be maintained.

"Suffering," he said, "is unknown in the United States under the terms that it comes home to every town and village through Poland, through Czechoslovakia, Austria and Hungary."

There was an outburst of applause when Mr. Hoover remarked that the relief organization notified those Governments that were persecuting Jews that the relief work would not continue if the persecutions did not cease.

Subscriptions amounting to more than $1,600,000 followed Mr. Marshall's address. Among the large subscriptions were the following:

Washington Heights Congregation	$117,000
Mr. and Mrs. Felix M. Warburg	100,000

BERLIN, April 10.—Though momentarily the Government has defeated the Red danger in the Ruhr district, political Germany is so complicated and difficult that even a stronger Cabinet than Hermann Müller's could hardly cope with it. To judge from newspaper reports in the Ruhr district it is no longer a question when Bolshevism will arrive in Germany. It is present already, and has asserted itself for three weeks. Murder, rapine, robbery, arson and general destruction and torture were more or less methodically employed by the Red army "to prepare the country for the new freedom" now preached by fanatical prophets on the Rhine, Spree, Elbe and Main, and in the Bavarian capital.

Pages would not suffice to record the terrible crimes of the Red Guard as reported by German newspapers of all shades. Already there are indications enough that the Government soldiers have proceeded not more leniently, their advance in some parts of the Ruhr districts having caused the workmen to leave work and fly by thousands, fearing military revenge. It was the one course left to the Red army. The Government soldiers found the bodies of their comrades captured by the Red Guards fearfully mutilated, and too often the Red Guards, throwing away their arms, mingled with the masses of the peaceful working people, greeting the advancing troops, while others fled to the woods and mountains, and at night plundered and destroyed the pacified districts.

Another Uprising Feared

Enormous quantities of explosives, rifles, guns and munitions have been removed by the Red Guards to secret arsenals at Barmen, Elberfeld and Solingen to await a more opportune time. If nothing else was accomplished for Bolshevism this time, at least the possibility of organizing a Red army in the heart of Germany was demonstrated, and the Bolshevist leaders declare openly the experiment will be repeated with more success next time, which, according to THE TIMES correspondent's reliable information, will be around May 1, "if the plans of our friends beyond the western frontier and in Russia mature," as they say.

The French policy toward Germany, it is declared, although not intended, effectually serves these plans. The French Government has now demanded that all local volunteer corps be disarmed and dissolved immediately. These corps in many places form practically the only protection against lawlessness and Bolshevism and were composed of members of all political parties, from the regular Socialists to Nationalists. Old generals served with rifles, but officers were only selected from the rank and file. No officer of the old Imperial army was permitted to serve as such in the volunteer corps.

As immediate dissolution was demanded it has already begun, despite the protests from Bavaria and other parts of Germany, which assert that without the volunteer corps it is only a question of weeks when Bolshevism will overrun those parts. It was intended to form an armed workmen's force in place of the volunteer corps as the regular Socialists, Independents and Trade Unions had demanded, as protection against any future Kapp putsches. They were to be armed with police clubs and revolvers. Opposition from the Central Democratic Party was strong against arming one class of the population against all others. So this plan was dropped by the Government with the excuse that France would not permit even this substitute for the volunteer corps.

This complete disarmament of orderly citizens, coupled with the reduction of the army leaving the country helpless if Bolshevism breaks loose in many places at the same time, is joyously welcomed by the anarchist elements all over Germany as insuring ultimate success.

Plauen Dictator Threatens.

Hölz, the Robin Hood of Vogtland, received German reporters at Plauen yesterday and declared:

"The movement in the Ruhr district collapsed because it was badly managed. Many fugitives who came here told me they received neither food nor pay. Next time there will be no volunteer corps to hinder the preparatory operations and the regular army will have its hands full. If they come here I am not so foolish as to rely on military residence, but shall immediately burn all houses of rich citizens and factories. Then the Government army will answer with terrible bloodshed, which in turn will be repaid by a general strike.

"But if despite all this provocation the troops should refrain from frightfulness we shall invent reports of atrocities that will cause the population to turn against the soldiers, and then you will find us quickly drifting into Russian conditions with proletarian dictatorship. Everything must be torn down before there is room for a new humanity."

Bremen, Stralsund, Munich and Stuttgart all have their Hölzes, who only wait for the moment when all orderly citizens are disarmed.

To add to the already insurmountable difficulties, the reactionaries, too, see their chance coming much quicker than ever they hoped before. Despite the Government's denial, Vorwärts today confirms Independent Leader Däumig's statement in its leading article, saying: "Doubtless there is still danger, but we must seek it in Pomerania where the incorrigible reactionary elements are preparing another desperate coup against the republic."

This new anti-republican danger is already asserting itself in an unequally disguised manner. Last night the Government's press representative gave vague information of a deputation of soldiers and members of trade unions from the Ruhr district having visited the Chancellor's palace, making certain demands concerning a thorough cleaning of that district of the Red elements—demands which in themselves were so logical and imperative that the deputations' visit to Wilhelmstrasse seemed quite superfluous. It turns out, however, that these military visitors were accompanied by a few members of the so-called Christian Workmen's Associations, which lean toward the reactionary parties. The Ruhr district deputies demanded that what they called the "Nebenregierung," or power that pulls the Government, be eliminated, meaning the Socialist Party and the trade unions, "which have their finger in all important matters," the deputies told the Chancellor, continuing:

"The Western German people are tired of Berlin's dilatory ways. The people say they can govern themselves better without Berlin. Besides, the troops demand thorough cleaning of the Ruhr district of Bolshevist elements and severe punishment of Red culprits, not by courts hundreds of kilometers behind the front, but on the spot."

The so-called Labor Deputies accompanying the military ones seconded the statement, adding that the soldiers deserved the heartiest thanks. It must be remembered that the Socialist parties and trade unions recently demanded the evacuation of the Ruhr district immediately order was restored, the punishment of the military Kapp putschists and the replacement of the volunteer corps by armed workmen's forces.

Without investigation of the merits of these demands this much is quite certain: the militarist party now sees in the laborers the principal enemies whose strength must be reduced by all means. Since this people in the Ruhr district again begin to feel themselves masters of the situation the Government realizes they wield a power without which the Cabinet is impotent.

Berlin Cabinet Pessimistic.

The Cabinet has held three sessions since yesterday afternoon discussing various phases of the situation, and the members were evidently very much discouraged when they parted. Though the newspapers see in America's, England's and Italy's attitude some ray of hope the Government remains decidedly pessimistic.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent hears that most of the members of the Cabinet expressed the opinion that France was determined to make Germany defenseless, even at the risk of general anarchy, and that judging from reports received from England and Italy neither of these countries was willing to interfere nor would America go beyond expressing disapproval. In these circumstances the Cabinet seems affected by resignation amounting almost to apathy.

THE TIMES correspondent asked the new Minister of Justice today why none of the Kappists had been arrested.

"We have arrested twenty-one men, Baron von Falkenhausen and twenty officers," he replied.

"But where are Kapp, Lüttwitz, Jagow and all the rest whose imprisonment would appease all good republicans," asked THE TIMES correspondent.

"We haven't caught them yet. Possibly they have reached Hungary, but my men have traced them to Pomerania and East Prussia. Some may be caught within a few days, but those hidden in East Prussia are difficult to capture because of the Polish corridor between. We may send a ship to East Prussia, but even then it will be difficult and not without fighting can we capture these men, because they have their friends whose estates are armed and will not surrender them.

"But we are doing everything possible to bring the monarchist conspirators to trial and have put a price of 10,000 marks on each man's head. We should have them all in prison by this time, but the French interference has so seriously disturbed our political machine that the wheels which had just begun to run regularly once more are at a standstill again. The whole Cabinet is thoroughly discouraged and under the impression that nothing it can do now will save Germany from falling victim to the red danger a few weeks or months sooner or later."

Hoelz Holds Up Train.

PLAUEN, Saxony, April 11.—Governmental threats to deal severely with Max Hölz, the Communist leader here, have provoked audacious reprisals, and he has formed the "Plauen Division of the Red army," to which recruits are attracted by the payment of 25 marks a day in wages.

Barracks in this city were occupied yesterday by Hölz's forces, which later took over the railroad station. They searched all the hotel guests for arms last night, and stopped the Berlin-Munich Express, searched the train and forced travelers to produce their passports. The train was then allowed to proceed. A Leipsic newspaper man who had in his pocket an article he had written relative to Hölz was taken from the train.

400-Mile Railroad Captured By Japanese in Siberia

HONOLULU, April 10.—The Japanese have captured the entire Ussuri Railroad between Vladivostok and Khabarovsk, according to a cable dispatch received from Tokio by the Shinpo.

The Ussuri Railroad from Vladivostok to Khabarovsk is about 400 miles in length. It runs directly north and south and passes through the important towns of Nikolsk and Ussuri.

BERLIN GOVERNMENT ORDERS ARMY REDUCED

French Say Order Does Not Constitute Disarmament, and Wait to See it Obeyed.

PARIS, April 10.—The German Government has notified all States of Germany that beginning today, in conformity with the treaty of peace, the German Reichswehr must be reduced to 200,000 men and asking the States to act in accord. The States also are instructed to disband the Einwohner guard in compliance with the allied demands.

The French attitude is that such action does not constitute disarmament, and in view of past experiences it will wait to see if the notice is obeyed.

It is stated officially here that two days ago Muller informed a meeting of German journalists that the military commanders had got beyond control of the Central Government.

BAVARIA REFUSES TO DISSOLVE GUARD

Threatens to Break With Central Government—Secret Conference of Southern States.

MUNICH, Bavaria, April 10.—Bavarian citizen guards will not surrender their arms, and declare if the French wish to disarm them they must come here and do it.

"We will not surrender our rifles, not even to the devil," asserted Lieutenant Colonel Wörmer at a meeting of the guards here today.

Other speakers, among them a Lieutenant General, seconded Wörmer's statement, declaring the dissolution of the citizen guards would be "equivalent to suicide."

Dr. Von Kahr, President of the Bavarian Ministry, declared there could be no negotiation as far as he was concerned, and that he would stand or fall on the issue of dissolving the guard, as is demanded by the Interallied Control Commission. He has directed the Bavarian Minister of Commerce, he said, to inform Berlin that Bavaria purposes to assert her rights, even at the cost of a break with the Central Government.

STUTTGART, April 10.—Ministers of South German States held a secret meeting here today, Bavaria, Baden, Württemberg and Hesse being represented.

Ostensibly the meeting was called for a discussion of commercial relations, but it is believed it concerned issues recently contributing to widening the gulf between these States and the Central Government, in which Bavaria has been a dominating force.

REICHSWEHR SEARCH DUISBURG FOR ARMS

Reds Had Made All Arrangements for Destruction, but Evidently Feared Reprisals.

DUISBURG, April 10.—It is difficult to forecast the course of events in this region during the next few days. There is a wealth of rumors and more or less contradictory information, but the various parties concerned—the Whites, workers, local authorities, Belgians and British—maintain an attitude of great reserve regarding their intentions.

Generally speaking, the position is stationary. A small Reichswehr force entered Düsseldorf this morning in armored automobiles, which gave rise to a report that it had occupied the town, but I am informed this is incorrect and that it withdrew again in the early afternoon.

According to what I have seen today in traveling about by local trains and street cars the Reichswehr have not advanced beyond the line they have been holding for nearly a week, about half way between Duisburg and Düsseldorf. The latter town is policed by volunteer citizen guards with rifles, but without uniforms, in most cases, or helmets. The same statement applies to the country eastward from Düsseldorf, toward Elberfeld and Barmen in the Ruhr neutral zone.

Reports of an advance southward by the Reichswehr from the line of the Ruhr River, which were current yesterday appear today to be erroneous, although the Government troops have doubtless pushed out scouting parties, as in the case of Düsseldorf. Whatever Berlin may say to the contrary, conditions in that neighborhood do not warrant the intervention of the Reichswehr, as everything is perfectly quiet, and in most places work has been resumed to a great extent. Some workers have given up their arms to the local authorities. Others have probably hidden them and their red brassards. Anyway, there is no sign anywhere of armed workers or of revolutionary action.

Food is everywhere very scarce. Indeed, it has been suggested to me by members of the working class that the German Government is deliberately preventing the sending in of supplies to the area south of that held by the Reichswehr, in the hope that the starving population may raid provision stores and thus afford a pretext for further intervention.

Today I went by street car through Mülheim to Heissen, on the road to Essen, in company with the Manchester Guardian correspondent, William E. Ryall, who has been in the Ruhr almost since the revolt began, and who is acquainted with the majority of the workers' leaders, whose headquarters were for a time at Mülheim. This is now Reichswehr territory, and soldiers, armed to the teeth, were numerous. The majority were Bavarians, but there were some Württembergers. The former belonged to a regiment that had shown especial barbarity in repressing the Spartacide revolt in Munich last year, and those with whom I talked spoke of the insurgent workers as dogs who must be thrashed into submission.

Bavarian Hints at Executions.

In this neighborhood and at Duisburg, a house-to-house visitation was in progress for the discovery of arms. When rifles or revolvers were found the proprietor of the house or room was "thoroughly kicked, beaten and arrested," according to a Bavarian sergeant, who added: "I supose they will get off with a term of imprisonment; but when we find grenades or machine guns, then it is 'kaput'"—and he made the gesture of aiming a rifle.

The White forces in the region of Duisburg and Mülheim were variously estimated at from 3,000 to 10,000 men—I am inclined to think the former figure more nearly correct—and a young manufacturer from Dortmund whom I met last night in the train declared that there were 20,000 quartered in and around Dortmund. The soldiers and their sympathizers made a great to-do about the plundering done by the rebels and the destruction they had wrought, but we saw little evidence of it, though there were occasional broken windows and walls chipped by bullets.

In the disorganization of defeat, and the rebels' fury at the breaking by the Government forces of the Münster agreement, and owing to very real hunger, there has doubtless been a certain amount of pillaging by the rebels. Their leaders had, however, posted notices strictly prohibiting anything of the sort under pain of death. I am informed that the death penalty has been inflicted in many cases. This statement is corroborated by Mr. Ryall, who actually saw a looter shot by a rebel patrol in the neighborhood of Essen.

One object of our trip was to locate a rebel leader whom Mr. Ryall had met at Mülheim. This man was in charge of the organization to blow up the mines—for this and the destruction of bridges, viaducts, &c., had been carefully prepared.

The leader in question at that time declared that if the Reichswehr's advance continued—this was during the Münster negotiatings—the rebels would certainly destroy the mines. He produced a plan showing the various points where explosives were said to have been laid, and explained that he had squads of men at his disposal with whom he would communicate by telephone when the time came. He had prepared one special code-word for each region. He said he had only to whisper it through the telephone for the destruction to begin.

Why the plan was not carried out is unknown. Either the rebels' courage failed them at the last minute, or, what is more likely, they realized that the destruction of mines, &c., would give the Government and the Reichswehr precisely the excuse they needed for the occupation of the whole Ruhr basin and even more savage reprisals than they had committed.

We were unable to locate our man at Mülheim. His friends either refused to reveal his whereabouts through fear or were really ignorant of his movements. They said they believed, however, that he had succeeded in escaping.

On my return to Duisburg I was told by the town commandant that he understood that the Allies had agreed to extend permission to the Government troops to remain in the Ruhr region beyond April 10—perhaps for three months more. He did not seem very sure of this and agreed that it was hardly likely that the French would make such a concession, but thought America and Great Britain might have insisted upon it. Personally he was of the opinion that if the French would evacuate Frankfort and the other town if the Reichswehr withdrew, the best solution of the Ruhr problem would be the policing of the whole area by a mixed force of British, Americans and Germans under an Anglo-American commission with one military and one civil German member.

Naturally he was reluctant to admit French or Belgians to membership on this commission; but, apart from that, the suggestion appears feasible enough and was certainly the most reasonable proffered by any white German I had met.

Anyhow, there are no signs yet of the Reichswehr withdrawing—rather the contrary.

It is reported this evening that the Belgians have prepared a force of about two regiments for the immediate occupation of Düsseldorf in fulfillment of their decision to co-operate with the French.

The seizure of Düsseldorf would strengthen the German contention that the real object of the French is to lay hands on the richest prize in Southwest Germany. Moreover, the fact that the French themselves particularly refrained from entering the Ruhr in order to avoid the bloodshed that might so easily occur in that already disturbed region and prevent complications with their allies—these reasons were given me on the very highest authority—would seem to indicate the unwisdom of the Belgian action if it is really contemplated.

Open National War on Big Lotteries; Fourteen Arrests, $100,000 in Tickets Seized

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 11.—What is declared by local police officers to be the start of a nation-wide campaign against four big lottery companies operating throughout the country was taken here today, when fourteen Columbus men were arrested and put in jail on charges of selling lottery tickets or promoting a lottery.

Lottery tickets valued at more than $100,000 were seized, the police say.

The four lottery companies are said to be the Honduras, the Cuban, which is declared to be conducted through the National Bank of the Republic of Cuba; the Metropolitan, whose headquarters are in Montreal, but whose printing establishment is said to be in Toledo, Ohio, and the Alaskan.

According to the local police, they learned of the lotteries when salesmen asked a policeman to buy tickets. The police state the tickets were offered for sale at fro m50 cents to $10 each, and that the prizes offered ran as high as $10,000 and $20,000.

Those arrested included one general agent of one company and thirteen others who acted as salesmen for the various companies.

Sargent Gobble, said to be a general agent for the Honduras company, is among those held. Others arrested included Clarence D. Krauss, Dennis Good, a local sportsman; August J. Kaiser, a grocer, and Philip Eichenlaub, William Weilbacher and Conrad Bauer, former saloon keepers.

The police here said arrests were expected soon in Toledo, Cleveland and other Ohio cities. Information regarding the lotteries has been placed in the hands of Federal officers.

JOHNSON IS SURE OF BEATING HOOVER

Manager Asserts Senator Will Not Visit California Before May 4 Primaries.

FIGHTS WOOD IN MARYLAND

That State Added to List in Which He Will Be Candidate—Expects Nebraska Victory.

Senator Hiram W. Johnson is so little worried by the fight being made against him in California by supporters of Herbert Hoover for delegates to the Republican National Convention that he does not intend to return to his home State before the primaries on May 4, Angus McSween, Senator Johnson's Eastern campaign manager, declared yesterday at his headquarters in the Hotel Pennsylvania. Mr. McSween said that reports to Senator Johnson from Califronia were very reassuring and that he would win easily. This is contrary to information received by the Hoover National Republican Club here, whose officers have stated that they expect Mr. Hoover to carry California.

"We recognize that the purpose of the effort in California in behalf of Mr. Hoover is to hamstring Senator Johnson," said Mr. McSween. "If Hoover should carry California, it would not bring him one jot nearer the Republican nomination, but it would do infinite harm to Johnson.

"We recognize that the Hoover campaign is an anti-Johnson campaign. In California, Mr. Hoover's support comes largely from the old reactionary Republicans, led by The Los Angeles Times."

That Senator Johnson has adopted a policy of fighting the candidacy of General Leonard Wood wherever opportunity offers was indicated yesterday, when Maryland was added to the list of States in which he will enter the primaries. General Wood has already been entered in the Maryland primaries on May 3, and Mr. McSween said that petitions for Senator Johnson would be filed before the expiration of the filing period on April 24.

Senator Johnson was in Chicago yesterday on his way to Nebraska, where he will speak all this week in preparation for the primary on April 20. He will put in four days next week in Indiana, where he is a candidate in the preferential primaries against General Wood, Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois and Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio. On April 23 and 24 Senator Johnson is expected to return to New Jersey, where he has a contest against General Wood, and will go the next week into Maryland. In the meantime Senators Borah of Idaho, Kenyon of Iowa and McNary of Oregon will speak for Senator Johnson in New Jersey.

Mr. McSween said that he expected Senator Johnson to carry Nebraska against General Wood and General John J. Pershing, the third entry, adding that the Johnson managers were more confident of victory there than they had been in Michigan. He admitted that each of the four contenders had a chance in Indiana, and said he hoped for victory in New Jersey.

Senator Johnson has decided not to speak in Ohio until after the primaries there on April 27, as the fight in that State is definitely between General Wood and Senator Harding. Information reaching here from a neutral source was to the effect that while Senator Harding might obtain a small plurality over General Wood in the preferential vote, the latter was almost certain to elect at least one-third or one-half of the delegates. Such a result in Senator Harding's own State, it was said, would be a decided victory for General Wood.

Following announcement that General Wood would speak in New York for the purpose of making his views on public questions clear to the delegates from New York, Mr. McSween stated that Senator Johnson would return to New York and address a meeting for the same purpose. The date of the Johnson meeting has not been fixed, but will be after the close of the primary fights in which he is now engaged.

NEW PARTY MEETS IN JULY.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, April 11.—Howard Williams of New York, Vice Chairman of the Committee of Forty-eight, who has been in St. Louis since Thursday arranging for the campaign to be conducted by his organization in Missouri, said today that the national convention of the new party would be held between July 1 and 15, probably on July 4. He said the choice of a convention city had narrowed to St. Louis and Indianapolis.

Mr. Williams will leave tomorrow for Denver, to open headquarters for the Committee of Forty-eight in the Rocky Mountain States, and will then go to San Francisco to establish Pacific Coast headquarters.

PENROSE RETURNS TO PARTY COUNCILS

KEYSTONE VOTE IMPORTANT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Restored to full health and prepared to assume his place in the councils of his party, Senator Boies Penrose is now on his way to Washington from Florida. He will arrive tomorrow, see several Republican leaders and continue to Philadelphia, where, after a few days' survey of political conditions, he will go to New York to be in touch with the national situation.

In the opinion of most of the Presidential candidates, their future is bound up in the decision Senator Penrose may make before the convention or after the early ballots, when a possible deadlock develops and the situation favors a compromise.

Although Pennsylvania has two compromise possibilities in Senator Knox and Governor Sproul, Senator Penrose has not indicated his attitude toward any of the leading active contestants. He has assumed a safe attitude in selecting in Pennsylvania dependable delegates, who are committed to Governor Sproul as a "favorite son." Some of his rivals have built up sentiment for General Wood as a second choice, and if General Wood continues to gain in strength in the coming elections Pennsylvania's vote may be cast for him on the second or third ballot.

Senator Penrose has taken the general position that he will favor the man who gains the widest and strongest popular support, provided he is certain that man can win in the regular elections. If he has a personal preference it is probably Senator Harding, but it is known that he is disappointed with Harding's showing and does not intend to resort to the same methods as in 1912 to force his own views on the convention.

Pennsylvania, with ner 76 votes, may control the situation at Chicago in a compromise development. Peculiar conditions surround the two dark horse contenders from that State. Senator Knox is most friendly to Senator Johnson, who, it is thought, would throw his delegates to him to break a deadlock. On the other hand, with Governor Sproul not unfriendly to the claims of Wood, having shown it by appointing Gifford Pinchot as Pennsylvania's State Forester, the Governor may inherit many of the Wood delegates in the same situation.

Senator Penrose is not discounting this situation and because of it may preserve an apparent neutral position throughout the primary elections.

TURK NATIONALISTS SNUB BRITISH ENVOY

Will Not Negotiate Until Allies Quit Turkish Soil, Colonel Rawlinson Is Told.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 10 (Associated Press).—Turkish Nationalists refuse to negotiate with the British until allied forces have been withdrawn from Turkish soil. Colonel Rawlinson of the British Army, who recently went to Erzerum to confer with Kiazim Pasha, Nationalist leader there, suggested he would act as intermediary in conversations intended to harmonize the Constantinople Government and Kemal Pasha, head of the Nationalist movement, but was told:

"When Adana, Smyrna and Constantinople, now wrongfully occupied by the Allies, are evacuated the Nationalists will enter into official relations with the British."

Kiazim Pasha made this reply, it is understood, after communicating with Angora, where the Nationalist Congress is now assembling.

This will be an all-Moslem meeting, according to reports from the interior, in which Afghanistan, Azerbaijan and other Mohammedan territories not part of old Turkey will be represented. It is expected to open before April 15, and it is said a frank declaration that the members are rebelling against the authority of the Sultan will be made.

It will be contended the Sultan has no religious power while the Allies retain control of the Caliphate. No orders issued by the Sultan will be respected, it is said, as the Angora Government holds they are made under British direction, and it is expected plans for the creation of an independent Caliphate will be discussed.

Disquieting reports have been received from Batum, where Georgians, who have been opposing allied occupation, threaten to join with Bolsheviki and take over the whole region.

While the Azerbaijans pretend to be unfriendly to the Bolsheviki, it is believed here that they will ally themselves with the Reds, and that, with both the Georgians and Azerbaijans cooperating with the Bolsheviki, the Armenians could scarcely resist them, as they would be completely isolated from the Entente.

EXPECTS GOV. COX TO BE THE NOMINEE

McADOO CHIEF OPPONENT

Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana Delegates Nucleus for Cox, Aid Asserts—Davis and Meredith Contenders.

A nation-wide movement for the nomination of Governor James M. Cox of Ohio by the Democratic Party has been started and is progressing favorably, according to George White of Marietta, Ohio, former Representative in Congress and assistant campaign manager for Governor Cox. Mr. White said yesterday at the Waldorf-Astoria that Governor Cox would start with the forty-eight delegates from his own State, where he is unopposed, and the twenty-six delegates from Kentucky, to which Thomas Taggart of Indianapolis has promised to add all or most of the thirty delegates from Indiana.

"With these and other votes as a nucleus," said Mr. White, "we expect to make Governor Cox's qualifications and availability so clear to the delegates at the San Francisco convention that we will bring about his nomination."

Mr. White said he regarded William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, as the man whom Governor Cox would have to beat. He said there was considerable sentiment for both Mr. McAdoo and Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer among Democrats throughout the country, but that the latter's chances had been seriously hurt by the result of the Michigan primary.

Incidentally, it was learned that two aspirants, hitherto not frequently mentioned, are likely to be serious contenders for the Democratic nomination. One is John W. Davis of Clarksburg, W. Va., Ambassador to Great Britain, who already has been indorsed by the Democratic State Central Committee of West Virginia at the request of Governor John J. Cornwell. It was said that a broader movement for Ambassador Davis would be started soon.

Friends of Secretary of Agriculture E. T. Meredith were said to have expressed a desire to put him forward for the nomination. Secretary Meredith, whose home is in Des Moines, Iowa, and whose publication, Successful Farming, has one of the largest circulations of any agricultural paper in the United States, is said to be the choice of William J. Bryan, who will admittedly have great influence at the Democratic National Convention, if he wins his fight for election as delegate at large from Nebraska against Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock. Mr. Meredith has already been elected a delegate at large from Iowa, the delegation from which State is uninstructed.

"Governor Cox will undoubtedly have the delegates from the neighboring State of West Virginia if the candidacy of Ambassador Davis does not develop," said Mr. White. "Governor Cox also has many friends in Pennsylvania, but we don't know yet whether we will make a fight for delegates in that State against Attorney General Palmer. As we view it, Mr. Palmer was very seriously hurt in the Michigan primaries, where he ran fifth with the organization behind him."

Mr. White said that his errand to New York was personal and that he had not seen any of the local Democratic leaders here, but stated that there was a "very friendly feeling toward Governor Cox" among the Democrats in New York State. He said that Governor Cox was now in Alabama, and that considerable support for him was expected from the South.

The recent statement of the Rev. P. A. Baker of Westerville, Ohio, General Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, that Governor Cox would not be acceptable to the "drys," has led to a belief that it will be upon him rather than upon Governor Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey that the Democrats favoring a liberal enforcement of the Federal prohibition amendment, like those of New York and New Jersey, will unite.

ILLINOIS DEMOCRATS BACK GOVERNOR COX

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 11.—There is a strong movement among the Democrats of Illinois to throw the support of this State's fifty-eight delegates to Governor Cox of Ohio in the National Convention at San Francisco.

Roger Sullivan, leader of the Democratic Party in the State, holds the situation, it is said, in the palm of his hand. It had been understood that Mr. Palmer would get the Illinois block, but a trend toward Cox has been very evident.

Some Democrats in Illinois do not want the League of Nations as a campaign issue. This attitude, it is said, is not restricted to the leaders, and the hope is generally expressed that some way may yet be found for an agreement between the President and Senate which will put an end to the fight over the treaty before the national election.

Attorney General Palmer's candidacy in Illinois has been hurt by the fact that he did not make a strong showing in Michigan, and that there is evidence that the vote of the workers would be against him, partly because of the injunction proceedings in the coal strike. There is a feeling here that a defensive campaign would be necessary if Palmer were nominated. The same situation applies to the McAdoo candidacy, but in another form. Some feel that Mr. McAdoo would be attacked because of the fact that he is the son-in-law of President Wilson and a campaign issue made of the charge that his election would keep the Wilson family in the White House.

BOURBON PRINCESS DETAINED AS SMUGGLER

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, April 11.—Princess Marie Beatrice Massimo of Bourbon has been taken into custody at Mondane for attempting to smuggle art objects out of Italy.

She was travelling from Rome to Paris on a train de luxe when suspicions were aroused at the frontier station which led the Italian customs officers to search her sleeping compartment. There hidden beneath a matress they brought to light a valise containing two precious paintings and forty-five mediaeval miniatures valued at about $100,000.

These works of art have been sealed and sequestrated, and the fate of the Princess depends on the decision of the Italian Ministries of Fine Arts and Finance.

The Italian law forbids the removal from the country of all works of art except those of the modern period.

Paderewski Turns from Music To Re-enter Politics in Poland

GENEVA, April 11.—Ignace Jan Paderewski, former Premier of Poland, will resume his duties as a member of the Polish Diet, at the special request of the Poles. M. Paderewski today made this statement to The Associated Press.

The date of the return of M. Paderewski to Poland has not yet been definitely settled, but it probably will be at the beginning of May. M. Paderewski intended to retire from public life and devote himself exclusively to music, but changed his mind recently.

BILL MAKES STATE SUPREME ON RENTS

Assemblyman Amos Wants Three Commissions with Ample Authority.

PROVIDES FOR BUILDINGS

Permits Construction and Leases to Net State 5 Per Cent. on Its Outlay.

Assemblyman W. C. Amos of Manhattan is endeavoring to obtain the passage of emergency legislation which would place in the hands of three rent commissions in the State the power to fix reasonable rents and other powers of a drastic and far-reaching nature with respect to the housing situation.

In speaking yesterday of the measure he has introduced Mr. Amos declared it the "most immediately effective bill" thus far presented for the consideration of the Legislature. Among other things, he said, it would construe the new rent laws and do away with a variety of interpretations by different Municipal Court Justices.

The bill declares that all rented property is affected with a public interest and says the provisions are made necessary by after-war conditions "resulting in rental conditions in cities dangerous to the public health and to the public peace." Among the provisions are the following:

The establishment of three rent districts in the State, with a rent commission for each district, each commission to consist of three members appointed by the Governor. The principal office of the commission of the first district would be in New York City, the second in Buffalo and the third in Albany.

Special power delegated to the commission in New York would include the appropriation by the commission of any or all dwelling houses in New York which have been vacant for more than six months, such dwellings to be converted into apartments conformable to the Tenement House law and to be considered as condemned. The owners could start proceedings for compensation within ten years of the time the bill became law.

The commission would have the power to lease any unimproved real estate in the city for not less than fifteen years and construct dwellings on the property, and the apartments would be rented to the people at terms enabling the commission to realize 5 per cent. on the cost of the property.

Power would be granted to purchase portable houses and tents which might be installed in parks to accommodate homeless families. The bill would authorize the city to issue $5,000,000 in bonds for this purpose. Profits realized in the real estate operations would go into the teachers' salary funds.

The bill provides for public hearings at which landlord and tenant would appear. If the commission should determine rents unreasonable and unfair "it shall determine and fix such fair and reasonable rent * * * which will permit the owner or lessor to obtain a fair return upon the true value of the property."

The commission would have access to all books, accounts and other papers it desired to investigate. On its own initiative or upon complaint it would determine whether "the rent, charges, service and other terms and conditions of a lease or other contract for the use or occupation of any rental property are fair and reasonable."

Arthur J. W. Hilly, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering, who is organizing a group of volunteer lawyers to assist in advising tenants as to their legal rights in controversies with landlords, has received promises of assistance from many members of the New York bar. Leo Kenneth Mayer, counsel to the committee, announced that the following lawyers have volunteered their services and that they have been accepted as members of the volunteer legal corps:

Charles Kapit, 369 Fulton Street, Brooklyn; John A. Schwab, 256 Broadway; Louis Martin Levy, Times Building; John J. O'Connor, 55 Liberty Street, and John F. Frazier, 120 Broadway.

LEGION BENEFIT CROWDED.

New Amsterdam Performance Raises $12,000 for Drew Post.

The New Amsterdam Theatre was crowded last evening for the program given in the interests of the S. Rankin Drew Post, American Legion. The committee in charge, having craftily provided against the usual number of eleventh hour cancellations which are so familiar a part of benefit entertainments, was overstocked with talent and early this morning the program was still running on. The treasury reported an increase of $12,000.

This legion post, which is largely recruited from the newspaper and theatrical business, is named in memory of that son of the Drew-Rankin clans who was killed in action in France. Several members of the two famous stage families shared in the performance given last night—Ethel Barrymore resplendent in the ageless Barrie play, "The Twelve-Pound Look," and Lionel Barrymore and Doris Rankin, given at midnight before an audience that would not budge until their part was done, the great last act of Augustus Thomas's "The Copperhead."

Then Mr. Thomas himself called the honor roll of the post—prefacing his speech with some little reminiscence of a time thirty-one years back when a play of his called "The Burglar" was running in New York. Maurice Barrymore was the star and in his company were Sidney Drew and Gladys Rankin. The Drew-Rankin marriage took place during the run of the piece, with the playwright serving as best man. Then he was godfather of the baby who grew up to be killed in France.

Dorothy Donnelly of Chaumont and Coblenz told some good stories of her overseas days, Clifton Crawford told a few stories in his fashion and Georges Carpentier let himself be seen—indeed, by merely bowing and smiling made friends with every one in the house. These were some of the high lights of a long program that had very few painful moments and, while not all the promised numbers were given, it was just as well.

Because of the present shortage of newsprint paper, resulting in the limitation of pages in The New York Times, it is necessary to omit from this issue 24 columns of advertisements, as space allotted to news cannot be encroached upon.

CLAIM LOWDEN LEAD ON EVE OF PRIMARY

Governor's Supporters Declare He Will Carry Illinois by Big Majority.

WOOD MEN ALSO CONFIDENT

Expect to Win in Chicago and Gain Delegates Elsewhere in the State.

JOHNSON NOT ON BALLOT

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 11.—Managers of Governor Lowden's campaign are claiming tonight that their candidate will carry not only Illinois but the City of Chicago in the primaries on Tuesday. They declare that the Governor is developing great strength at the finish, and that there has been a reaction against the Wood campaign.

General Wood's managers hope to get a shade the better of the fight in Chicago, and by their showing down State reach a position to lay claim to from twelve to fifteen delegates. They feel that such a showing would be satisfactory. Some of the more enthusiastic maintain that the State will provide one of the sensations of the pre-convention campaign, but they are not in the majority.

Mayor William Hale Thompson apparently is keeping his pledge not to interfere and fight Governor Lowden in Cook County, where the Mayor seems to be in control. He has sent out his sample ballots to the voters unmarked, and, so far as has been learned, has not given any secret instructions to his followers. This situation will be at least more helpful to Governor Lowden than if the Mayor, who has frequently fought the Governor, went out to beat Lowden. It is on this attitude of Thompson that the Lowden forces are largely basing their claim to the lead in the City of Chicago.

Johnson sentiment has been stirred up by the Hearst newspapers, and the "I'm for Hiram" vote may be considerable. It is predicted that most of the Johnson vote will be drawn from the strength of General Wood. Johnson's name is not on the ballot and his supporters must write in his name, which probably will prevent the vote from becoming a deciding factor.

No Sign of Hoover Sentiment.

A small vote also may be written in for Harding and Hoover, but there is no outward evidence of a strong Hoover sentiment in the talk in the hotel lobbies and among the political leaders.

Mayor Thompson is appearing as a trouble maker in at least one regard, and his action may cause considerable delay in obtaining the final result. He has directed that the first unofficial reports, which heretofore have been flashed by telephone to the newspapers by the City News Association, shall first be sent to the Mayor at the City Hall.

The reason given for this is that the Mayor wants no garbled reports to go out. Some hold, however, that the Mayor simply wants to cause the newspapers all the inconvenience he can.

Chairman L. L. Emerson of the Lowden Campaign Committee made this statement tonight on the outlook:

"Governor Lowden will carry Illinois. He will carry Chicago. But his friends want to show the people of the nation that Illinois knows and has confidence in its Governor and is not deceived by specious campaign charges. Governor Lowden's campaign committee hopes there will be a great outpouring of voters Tuesday and that the Republicans of Illinois will send an endorsement ringing across the States that will leave no doubt that the State of Lincoln and Grant backs another great son for the Presidency."

Wood Expects "Creditable Showing."

Just before starting on his trip into the East today General Wood gave this statement to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent:

"I feel that the showing on Tuesday will be a very creditable one. There has been great interest, much enthusiasm and a very cordial spirit shown. A deep interest in the general constructive program outlined was apparent everywhere. In fact, I could not have had a more cordial reception than that which has been given me by the people of Illinois, and it is a reception which I very much appreciate.

"We covered the State from end to end and side to side, visiting every Congressional district and dealing not with politics but with those broad, constructive policies which I think must characterize the work of the Republican Party in the future."

The bitterness which has marked the closing days of the campaign—a bitterness which may have its reflection on the action later of the delegates, no matter who obtains the advisory approbation of the voters—is illustrated by a statement issued today by Nathan William McChesney, Chairman of the Leonard Wood Illinois Campaign Committee, in which he takes up the allegations that Lowden workers have been raising religious and fraternal issues in an effort to defeat General Wood. He declares "a vicious attempt to inject the religious issue into the campaign," and denounces it as an "underhanded political trick."

Attitude of State Newspapers.

It is difficult to obtain any comprehensive survey of the situation from the newspapers of the State, because practically all of the influential organs outside of Chicago are supporting Governor Lowden. About the only exception among the Republican ranks is The Galesburg Mail, owned by Senator Charles F. Hurbirgh, which has openly espoused the cause of General Wood. The Macon Journal has helped the Wood cause along, and The Rockford Republic on Wednesday printed a special Wood issue, setting forth the claims of the Wood managers, but without editorial comment.

Practically all of the other Republican papers of the State outside of Chicago are backers of Governor Lowden, and he also has received support from The Peoria Journal, Democratic. This has strengthened the Governor's cause materially.

In Chicago General Wood is supported by The Journal, independent, and Governor Lowden by The Post. The News and Tribune are looked upon as neutral, or, at least, have not consistently taken sides. The Hearst newspapers are making a hard fight to aid the Johnson cause.

Wood supporters hold that with practically all the newspapers down State supporting Lowden, the use of considerable advertising space to place the claims of their candidate before the people was essential.

General Wood left today for the East. He will spend Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in Massachusetts, and Thursday he will tour Delaware. Friday he will make addresses in Philadelphia, and on Saturday he will make three speeches in New York City. The following week will be spent in Ohio.

Governor Lowden has practically completed his campaign here. He will make a brief address at the Hamilton Club tomorrow.

RED SOX BEAT GIANTS IN LAST GAME OF SERIES BY TALLY OF 2 TO 0

CONSOLATION PRIZE TAKEN BY RED SOX

Boston American Leaguers Win Final Game of Spring Series from Giants, 2 to 0.

ABOUT 15,000 FANS ATTEND

Russell and Hoyt, New York Discards, Hold Local Men Helpless, and Menosky Whales Ball.

The Giants and Red Sox closed their long Spring series at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon and for the Giants it was a quiet finish. After serving as a doormat during the greater part of the series the Sox flashed some real baseball in the finale and bumped over the McGrawmen to the tune of 2 to 0. The series ended with the Giants showing ten victories against five for the American Leaguers. Close to 15,000 fans yelled themselves hoarse for a run or two by the Giants, but it was a wasted effort.

A pair of New York pitching discards, Al Russell and Waite Hoyt, made the Giants' attack fold up like an opera hat whenever a run threatened. Aiding and abetting the ex-Yankee and the one-time Giant flinger was Mike Menosky, who contributed half of the eight hits made by the Red Sox and made possible both runs scored by the carmine-hosed troupe. Mike's opening smash was only a single, but it pushed a runner around from first base to third, in position to score on an anaemic infield hit. In the ninth Menosky closed his almost perfect day by deporting one of Fred Toney's twisters into the upper section of the right-field stand.

A hairline decision in the fifth inning kept Menosky from chalking up five hits. In the fifth Mike smacked a bounder toward right field and George Kelly made a good pickup. In the race to the bag Kel's long stride prevailed against the fast-stepping Menosky, who was taking his final step as long George's long foot bumped against the canvas. Mike got four hits in five chances and also stole a base, a performance which would be twice as pleasing to Menosky if it could have been delayed until after next Wednesday, when hits get into the official records.

Klem Versus Red Sox.

A clash between the entire Boston squad, including Paddy Livingston and the bench-warming division, and Umpire Wilyum Klem was one of the high lights of the afternoon. Catcher Devine shot a ball over to Hack Eibel on first base in the seventh inning in an effort to catch Frank Frisch napping, and instead he caught Klem napping down near second. Frisch went into the bag so fast that his momentum carried him a foot beyond it, and Eibel, after tagging him on the arm, held the Fordham Flash in his tracks. Wilyum Klem, down near second base and in a poor position to take in all the proceedings, declared Frisch safe. His idea proved to be that Eibel had pushed Frisch's hand off the bag. From the infield, outfield and the bench players in red hosiery moved Klemward. These American Leaguers have not been trained to regard Wilyum's decisions as the last analysis and they barked at Klem as Johnny Evers used to bark in the old days. Johnny looked on the scene from a grandstand box and longed to get into it.

Klem refused to put the case up to his brother umpire, Dick Nallin, and Paddy Livingston, who had carried this suggestion from the bench, simply tossed another brand into the conflagration when he proposed it. Dick had enjoyed a fine view of the play, but naturally declined to embroil himself in the controversy without being invited by Klem. Such is professional etiquette among the umpires. Klem threatened to chase several of the Red Sox to the bastile, and he finally made good the threat on Harry Hooper, Red Sox captain, who delivered the last argument for the defense. Hooper's reception from the fans as he made his way to the clubhouse, via the bench, showed that the jury was not entirely with Judge Klem. Hiller, an infielder, finished the game in right field.

Frisch Shows Fine Line of Wares.

Frank Frisch's all around work was the bright spot in the otherwise drab performance of the Giants. The Fordham Flash grabbed tabasco grounders, raced to the stands for pop fouls and otherwise disported himself up to all the notices that had traveled the wires from Dixie to Manhattan during the training campaign. In the fourth inning he gave the big crowd a scare when he raced into the concrete wall behind third base for a foul from Hooper's bat. There was a shudder as Frisch hit the wall. The concrete got a clean knockdown, but the peppery youngster was up again without taking a count. Besides starring on defense, Frisch led the Giants with the stick, getting three of their seven hits. He was the only home player to reach third base.

Russell had two troublesome innings before he passed out of the picture at the end of the fifth inning. With one out in the second frame Kauff lashed a single to centre and Frisch beat out a slow roller to Foster. Long George Kelly, a dangerous hitter, was unable to improve the layout, in fact, he put an end to it with a grounder to McNally, which was converted into a double play, with Scott as pivot man. In the fifth Russell hit Frisch and Kelly followed with a single to right field, on which Frisch hurried along to third, Kelly taking second on Hooper's throw to the plate. With second and third occupied and none out the outlook was promising, but Russell got that side-arm spitball working properly and retired the side in order. Smith and McCarty, the latter batting for Douglas, hit short flies, and Burns lofted to Hendryx.

Waite Hoyt Twirls Well

Waite Hoyt, former Flatbush schoolboy and later a member of the Giants, was in no real difficulty during his four innings on the mound. The Giants had a runner on the bases in each frame, due to an error and three singles, but second base was the deadline.

The Sox went to the front in the opening frame, while Phil Douglas was pitching. With one out McNally drew the first of five passes handed out by Shufflin' Phil, and Menosky sent McNally to third with a single to left. While Tim Hendryx was outsprinting a dinky roller along the infield lawn McNally counted. This ended the scoring against Douglas, although the Sox had the bases filled with one out in the fourth inning on a double by Foster, a pass and a single. In the fifth Douglas walked Hendryx and Eibel with one out, but nothing developed.

Fordham Students Will Honor Frisch at Polo Grounds Today

Frank Frisch, who stepped from the college ranks into major league baseball and made good as a regular from the start, will be honored at the Polo Grounds this afternoon when the Giants, with whom Frisch now is starring, will meet the Fordham teams, of which he was formerly a member. The entire student body of Fordham will attend the game at the Polo Grounds, the day being designated as "Frank Frisch Day" in honor of the young star. When Frisch steps to the plate for the first time the game will be interrupted for a presentation which will convey to the former collegian the esteem in which Fordham holds him, and the best wishes of the students for his future in baseball. Frisch was one of the greatest athletes who ever played at Fordham, as he was a star in baseball, football and basket ball.

BRAVES LET LOOSE AVALANCHE OF RUNS

Open Jersey City Season by Burying Donovan's Skeeters Under Score of 12 to 1.

Baseball came into its own yesterday afternoon in Jersey City with a game between the Boston Braves and Bill Donovan's Jersey City Skeeters, in which the major leaguers romped around the diamond to a one-sided victory over the Donovanites by 12 to 1.

The home athletes were shy in practice, having had only three days' work preparatory to their clash.

Jersey City tried out three pitchers, Carrigan being the only one of the trio to show the goods. He went through three innings without a run against him, and only one hit. The Braves were favored with a generous supply of passes during the service of Mitchell and Daly, which, with some effective hitting in the final stages, enabled the Braves to roll up their one-sided total.

Fillingim and Oeschger were on the mound for Boston, and Jersey City was limited to five hits. The lone tally was registered in the second inning. Captain Paddy Bauman broke the ice with a hard drive to left field. Tom De Noville's sacrifice helped, and on Wilson's out at first and a hard grounder which bounded off Holke's shins Bauman finished up at home with the first run of the game, and the Jerseys' last.

Sullivan led in the scoring for the Braves with three runs. Cruise and Ford set the pace at bat for the visitors, with a double and a single each.

Catcher Hank Gowdy received a badly split finger as the result of a foul tip off Wacha's bat in the fifth inning, and will be out of commission just at the start of the big league season.

YANKS POUND BALL AND BLANK ROBINS

Game Ends When Crowd Swarms on Field in Brooklyn's Ninth—Score Is 11-0.

To all intents and purposes, the ball game at Ebbets Field yesterday afternoon lasted just two innings. The Yanks mustered nine hits and nine runs in those two passionate frames and had the game packed away in their bat bags then and there. After that, it was just an exhibition, in the course of which Huggins's earnest workers added two more tallies for good measure, the while Brooklyn was rolling up a doleful collection of ciphers. This made the final count 11 to 0 and the game total in the series now stands: Brooklyn, 9; New York, 6.

As a matter of fact, yesterday's game ran one putout short of nine innings. With two Robins out in the latter half of the ninth, the crowd, which numbered about 16,000, took things into its own hands, decided that it could wait no longer for a close-up of Babe Ruth, who had monopolized the calcium after his usual fashion throughout the fray, swarmed upon the field and made the completion of the contest impossible. Umpire O'Day had some idea of trying to shoo the crowd back to its seats, but, with half of it on the field, a case of 8,000 to 1, he decided that the third putout could be taken for granted. Valor had no chance with discretion in a case like that.

Yesterday was one of the Yankees' good days. They had everything and the breaks just suited them. Hits eventuated when they were needed and Quinn and Shawkey came through with a highly superior brand of twirling. On the other hand, Robbie's men had just about what their end of the score indicated. The game was no contest, but it afforded a merry afternoon for all that, and the fanatics who submitted to the lure of the weather and the pastime obtained their money's worth in action.

Babe Ruth's Revenge.

The Brooklynites in the stands "rode" Babe Ruth all the afternoon, and indulged in violent explosions of ecstasy in the fourth inning, when Mamaux struck the fence-buster ignominously out, the Babe allowing the third one to drift passively over the plate before taking his seat amid a highly realistic imitation of pandemonium. However, Ruth, who accepted it all good-naturedly, had his ample revenge. He annexed two hits in the course of the ceremonies, one of them, a triple, bearing the Ruth trademark for distance and rate of traveling; received two passes, one of them intentional, and had but the one strikeout to mar a perfect afternoon. Ruth's triple, in the sixth, which incidentally scored Peckinpaugh, reached the fence in deep left center before there was a chance of fielding it.

The Yankees allowed no grass to grow in Ebbets's pasture before proceeding to put the game on ice. Vick started the holocaust with a double to right, and Peckinpaugh singled him to third. Vick scored on Pipp's sacrifice fly and Ruth followed with a lucky single that brought Peck over the platter. Ruth's offering was a high fly to right centre, which either Myers or Neis could have grabbed, but which both neglected through a mistaken conception of politeness. Lewis singled to centre, scoring Peck, and, when Myers made a poor throw to third, Ruth added another counter. Meusel rubbed it in, so far as Sherrod Smith's case was concerned, with the fifth hit of the inning, a single to centre, which set Lewis home with the fourth run. Meusel was caught off first and Pratt's fly to right put a temporary period to the Yanks' jamboree.

In the second frame, however, the Hugmen resumed their hectic hitting just where they had left off and, with a couple of bases on balls intermingled, garnered five more runs before they decided to let Smith go for the day. Ruel, first man up, broke the ice with a one-base effort and Smith was unable to find the plate for Quinn. An infield hit by Vick filled the bases, and Peck forced Ruel at the plate. A single to centre, inserted by Pipp at this juncture, scored Quinn and Vick. Smith decided to have as few dealings as possible with Ruth in the situation that then confronted him, and Babe was made a present of first. The ruse gained him small comfort, however, for Duffy Lewis followed with a two-ply knock to left that cleared the bases.

Pipp Triples in Vain.

Thereafter the Yankees were content to proceed without further devastation until the sixth, although Pipp showed symptoms of an outbreak in the fourth when he tripled to left centre after Peck, who had reached first on an error, had been thrown out trying to steal. Pipp was stranded, however, when Ruth's strikeout provided the crowd with its most joyous moment of the day, and Lewis fouled out.

In the sixth, Vick opened with a single, but was caught off first a few moments later. Peck sauntered, and Pipp flied out to Hood. Ruth then sent Peck around with the burning triple aforementioned and scored himself a minute later on Gleich's single to right. After that the Yanks concluded to call it a day.

Three Reasons for Optimism.

Optimism is an inherent quality in the baseball fan. He can see bright days ahead even when there is no real basis for such vision, and in this respect he may be said to represent the superlative degree in optimism. When there is real reason for such a feeling the fan fairly bubbles over with hopes, and that seems to be the condition now prevailing among the baseball followers in Greater New York.

At no time since New York was first represented by three teams in the major league pennant races have all three been held so highly at the start of a season as are the Giants, Yankees and Dodgers, who are to start on their pennant campaigns next Wednesday. Each has been changed considerably since the opening of the 1919 race, and even the critics of other major league cities, who might be expected to be prejudiced in favor of home entries, include all three teams as prospective contenders. New Yorkers who have been closely following the happenings in Southern training camps are fully satisfied that all three clubs should be in the fight all the way, with possibilities of two being pennant winners.

The Giants are stronger in the box than they were a year ago this time, as Nehf was then with Boston and Toney had not reported. The McGraw pitching staff certainly shapes up as one of the best ever identified with the Giants and the catching staff is probably the best in baseball. The outfield has no superior in either major league, and there is good reason to suppose that the infield will gradually mold itself into a strong quartet, fully competent to do its part in a successful campaign. The club is well supplied with hitters, has plenty of speed, and under the aggressive leadership of McGraw is bound to be a factor.

The Yankees, though they will miss Frank Baker and were sorely hit in the injury to Fewster, bid fair to be one of the most spectacular teams of the year. This 1920 aggregation has plenty of color, which other Yankee teams have lacked; it has the most powerful array of hitters ever gathered on one Yankee team, and its pitching staff ranks with the best. Lack of speed is the only charge that has been made against the team and there is much truth in the assertion, but tight pitching and hard hitting will offset this weakness. The pitching staff had no Carl Mays a year ago this time and there was no Babe Ruth to strengthen the attack. Pennants have been won by teams that did not carry the strength of the 1920 Yankees, and this may be their year.

Across the bridge Wilbert Robinson has a well-balanced aggregation, one good enough to take the measure of the Yankees in nine of the fifteen games these clubs have played this Spring. The rearranged infield has shown itself a big improvement over the old, and the pitching staff is better today than at any time since Robinson first took charge of the club. It is a team with great possibilities, and unless some unlooked-for breakdown occurs the Dodgers should be in the thick of the pennant fight all the way.

Woes of the Rowing Mentors.

The average college oarsman would barter his chances of making the crew for the proverbial song. These are days of terror for him, the coach's glance in his direction awes and frightens him. One day he is a link in a great, powerful machine and his thoughts dwell on the coming race, when he shall be the centre of all eyes, and the next day he finds himself ordered into the junior or even the third shell. No rowing squad is escaping the upsets, the unexpected changes in the boating, the caprices of a coach who is trying out various combinations. Harvard has had more than its share of reverses and shakeups, Yale has followed close behind in shifts of its 'Varsity oarsmen, and at Princeton and Columbia not a man knows from one minute to the next when a rival will have succeeded to his seat.

A week from next Saturday, when Navy will be rowed, is far too near at hand to suit Coach Bill Haines of the Crimson. He faces an uncanny condition of affairs at Cambridge. Ten days ago he made drastic changes. Cox Williams, Stroke Olmsted and Burden were demoted to the second crew, yet in a special race on the Charles River Basin his newly formed 'Varsity was beaten decisively. Then the three came back to the first crew, while Cox Peirson, Pond at No. 7 and Stroke Jenney were shifted to the junior eight. But, lo and behold, again the second crew defeated Haines's 'Varsity only the day before yesterday. Old Harvard advisers and oarsmen, Bob Herrick, Francis Higginson and Paul and Lathrop Withington, are on the scene with counsel, and it would seem that Haines needed all of it.

Coach Guy Nickalls, despite the twofold Yale victory at Philadelphia, sees room for improvement. Last week he found cause to demote McHenry and Flagg, who were in the 'Varsity boat that beat Penn, to the junior crew and to advance Hord and Walker to the first eight and shift Shieffelin. Even this failed to satisfy him after a couple of days, and now Cowles replaces Shieffelin and Driscoll succeeds Walker.

Yale apparently will have its hands full on April 24, when Jim Rice appears on the Housatonic at Derby with his Columbia crews. The New Yorkers have one of the heaviest squads in years, and it remains to be seen what effect the newly adopted practice season on the Harlem will produce. Rice has made several changes within the last few days, sending Saacke to the 'Varsity and, after shifting other oars, ordering Helwig into the junior shell. His latest cause for a knowing smile is the news that two veterans, Kraus and Mulligan, are to resume rowing, having arranged their class schedules to allow them more time.

Princeton is having a package of trouble, too. With Captain Lamont, the stroke, out of action owing to an injured knee, received in an interclub basket ball game, the pacemaking seat is proving hard to fill. Bryan, the No. 3 regular, has also been sick recently and has not rowed regularly. Creswell, Campbell and Sandell are stroking the 'Varsity, junior and third boats, respectively, but nothing is definite, and changes are anticipated.

A Chief Menace for Herron.

Two unusually significant decisions have been made within the last few days. Unless all signs fail—and such a thing has happened in golf from time to time—the centre of interest in the national amateur championship at Roslyn, L. I., in September will focus on two men. One is the chubby, boyish, modest champion, Davie Herron, and the other is his senior by a few years but still hardly more than a youngster, Francis Ouimet. Within a few days both have said they would not compete in the national open at Toledo. The Engineers' Club is their destination this season and the amateur crown their goal. Their intent and purpose are plainly ominous to the score of other headliners, Jones, Kirkby, Gardner, Evans et al., who have similar aspirations. Ouimet, slowly but surely recovering from his poor health of last year, prefers to enter only one great tournament. Herron, new at the game of meeting the leaders on the links with something in his possession that they want, will let his attack on the open championship wait another season or two while this year he devotes all his ability and strength to proving that his victory last August over his home course was by no means a flash in the pan.

At this time probably nine golf followers out of ten, face to face with this pair, would wink knowingly and choose Ouimet. It remains to be seen what wisdom is theirs. The champion has let golf pretty much alone this Winter. His clubs have been shelved at Oakmont. Ouimet got his start two weeks ago at Pinehurst and before leaving had nestled under his arm the trophy of titleholder of the North and South tournament. To many this is the start of his great comeback.

The Woodland marvel has held both national crowns, first in 1913 when he humbled Vardon and Ray in the never-to-be-forgotten playoff, and then in 1914 when he took the amateur title away from Jerry Travers after the Jerseyman had held it for two years. Last season found him struggling against ill-health when he fell before Wood Platt at Oakmont after defeating Chick Evans in the previous round, but he did sufficient to demonstrate that he was still in the running. He won the Massachusetts amateur title from Jesse Guilford and, what was more, defeated W. J. McLuckie of Montreal, the Canadian champion, in the international matches at Hamilton.

Ouimet is paying strict attention to what friends tell him of the difficulties of the tricky Engineers' course, and although he missed a chance Friday for a round, he will be back here again shortly for his first inspection of the championship site. It is becoming more and more evident that all the great golf of the year is not to be played at Toledo, especially if Ouimet is not to meet the great Vardon and Ray, who are coming again to this country.

Riders Whom Turf Will Miss.

While the members of the License Committee of the Jockey Club have undoubtedly acted for what they considered the best interests of the sport in denying licenses to various jockeys, it is unfortunate that what promises to be one of the greatest seasons ever experienced on the metropolitan turf will dawn with an actual scarcity of good riders.

It is quite certain that the patrons will miss such jockeys as Johnny Loftus and Bill Knapp, who though they may have offended the racing officials at times, are certainly skillful riders. It will probably be a long time before another rider as capable as Loftus is developed, and in the maintime more good horses than have been seen here in a decade before will be in the hands of incompetent boys for the most part. The lack of any considerable number of good riders was complained of last year, and the situation is certainly not improved any by the absence of at least two of the real headliners.

In racing as in baseball, however, the stars of tomorrow are always in the making, though they may not come in for recognition until they suddenly get their opportunity. The situation this year is far from a hopeless one. During the Winter season a number of lightweight boys who were scarcely noticed around the New York tracks last season have developed into very promising riders. Rodriguez, Coltiletti and Carmody in particular have won much praise for their work on Southern tracks. It is entirely too much to expect that any one of this trio will take the place of either Loftus or Knapp this year, but they do promise to raise the general standard.

In addition to these there are a number of experienced riders, who, though not the equal of Loftus or Knapp, will have the mounts in the most important stake events, and from them may come a truly good rider of the first class. Among these are Clarence Kummer, Jimmy Butwell, Andy Shuttinger, Fairbrother, Fator, Ensor and Cliff Robinson.

Many horsemen regard Kummer as one of the most capable riders of the present list. He showed remarkable improvement toward the end of last season and at Empire City had no trouble in winning the prize offered for the most successful jockey. Kummer is light enough to accept many mounts, is a good judge of pace and can make a strong finish. Buddy Ensor is another boy who has plenty of ability when he wishes to apply himself to his work, and Fator may win back the popularity which he enjoyed at mid-season last year, only to lose it by some stupid rides later. However, until more good riders are developed than are in sight at present many good horses are doomed to meet defeat for the lack of competent jockeys.

Remedy for H. C. of Yachting.

One problem in the sphere of sport which has no clear-cut answer is, What is an amateur? The broad dividing line, generally accepted, is that the amateur, in sport, is one who does not compete for money, and yet that is not an all-inclusive answer, for there are certain sports in which cash prizes are the rule, as, for instance, horse racing, in which many prominent owners of thoroughbreds are recognized as thoroughbred amateurs, although they compete for cash purses. An even more interesting exception to the rule is afforded in the sport of trapshooting, in which the amateurs are at liberty to compete for cash, while the professionals are not permitted to accept cash prizes, though they do receive their cash in the form of salaries from the gun or ammunition concerns employing them.

Yachting has been considered a decidedly amateur sport in this country, and cash prizes have been frowned upon by the governing bodies, although the cost of maintaining and racing a yacht makes it about the most expensive of all sports. The term Corinthian is generally applied to the amateur yachtsman, and he likes to live up to all that the term implies.

However, the financial situation in England appears to have had its effect upon the attitude taken on the amateur question. The London Field in a recent issue says: "It is much to be hoped that next season yacht clubs will adopt the plan of giving money prizes for yacht races instead of cups. Owing to the increase in the wages bill and the general expense of yacht racing, the sport will be better encouraged by this system. The owner of the vessel will then receive a certain amount in cash to set off against the expense of racing. Nobody will find fault with this proposal, which was strongly advocated at the recent Y. R. A. meeting."

While such a proposal may have met with a cordial reception at the hands of the Yacht Racing Association of Great Britain, still it is very doubtful if a similar suggestion would find much support among real Corinthians in this country, no matter to what heights the expenses incidental to yacht racing might mount.

MANAGERS IN CONFERENCE.

Huggins and Barrow Fail to Make Deal—Four Giants Released.

Miller Huggins and Ed Barrow, managers of the Yankees and Red Sox, respectively, engaged in a lengthy conference at the Yankees' offices yesterday and at the conclusion announced that no agreement had been reached on a deal between the two clubs. Manager Barrow is anxious to add Del Pratt and Ping Bodie, or either, to his Boston club in order to increase the batting strength of the Red Sox, while Huggins has made overtures which involved Oscar Vitt, a confirmed holdout.

It was said after the meeting that Barrow had come out decisively with the announcement that under no condition would he make a deal for the services of Catcher Wally Schang, the most notable holdout of the Spring. Schang is demanding a contract calling for $8,000 more than he received last season, according to report. Huggins declared yesterday afternoon that he is not dickering for Schang as he is satisfied with his catching staff as it is made up at present.

Four young Giants were cut adrift yesterday, making a total of eleven players let out by McGraw since he started the weeding out process a few days ago. The four have been released to the Waterbury Club of the Eastern League. They are Pitchers James McQuade, a former Fordham twirler; Catcher A. G. White, from Simmons College of Abilene, Texas, who joined the Giants during their stay at San Antonio; John Horle, a first baseman of this city, and George Armstrong, a third baseman from Vallejo, Cal. Armstrong came to the Giants on the recommendation of Fred Snodgrass and he showed much promise this Spring. It is possible that some of these players will be recalled at the close of the season.

CUSHING WINS WALK.

Leads M. Greenberg by Ten Yards Over Course of 4¼ Miles.

The liberal handicap of 4 minutes 30 seconds aided J. Cushing to victory yesterday morning in the Pastime A. C.'s members' handicap walking race over a course of about four and one-quarter miles. Cushing, setting the pace after the first mile, had just enough reserve strength to maintain his position against the determined challenge of Morris Greenberg, the scratch starter, who finished strongly, about ten yards behind the winner. Cushing's actual time was 36:43. Greenberg negotiated the distance in 32:15.

BURNS'S EYE PROVES KEEN.

Breaks 95 Out of 100 Targets at Larchmont Traps.

A. L. Burns' won the high scratch prize at the Larchmont Yacht Club yesterday with a card of 95 out of a possible 100 targets. It was one of the best scores that has been registered at those traps this season.

The race for the high handicap prize ended in a tie among eight gunners. On the shoot-off A. W. Fitzgerald and E. M. Dalley were again tied at the end of a 50 "blind" shoot. On the next string of 25 the former won by 25 to 23 targets.

GUNNERS BREAK 98 EACH.

Bennett Wins Shootoff From Lawrence at Travers Island.

A. P. Bennett and T. H. Lawrence tied for the high scratch prize at the Travers Island traps of the New York Athletic Club yesterday, with the excellent cards of 98 out of a possible 100 targets each. On the shootoff the trophy went to Mr. Bennett. The same pair registered wins on the Buermeyer Cup with a card of 49 out of a possible 50 targets each. The high handicap prize went to J. I. D. Bristol, who has been doing some great shooting this Winter.

As usual, legs on the usual weekly fixtures were won by the gunners with full scores of 25 targets. A scratch special was taken by A. P. Palmer with a straight score of 25.

It was not the only straight to be registered during the afternoon. In the Tournament Cup shoot A. P. Bennett, G. J. Corbett and A. Rowland all ran straight.

KRAMER OUTRIDES SPENCER IN MATCH

STAEHLE IN GREAT FORM

New Pro Makes Toronto Cyclist Go His Limit to Capture Invitation Race Which Closes Card.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., April 11.—Frank L. Kramer rode a sensational race here this afternoon at the Velodrome before a crowd numbering 17,000 in defeating Arthur Spencer, the Toronto star, in the third and final heat of a mile match. Spencer won the first heat and Kramer was awarded the second, Spencer being disqualified for switching. He rode Kramer fully four feet wide of the pole line and Kramer did not have a chance of getting around him. Referee Anderson's decision was just and met with the approval of the big crowd.

Kramer won the third heat decisively. He rode this heat just as he did the previous two, from the rear. Spencer went into the last lap in the lead, but Kramer backed off him and then went at him with a rush, going around the last turn. He circled Spencer easily and won in the stretch by four open lengths.

In the opening heat of the match Kramer could not get around Spencer because he was ridden high, but no official action was taken.

Spencer, although beaten in the match with Kramer, came back in the last race of the day and defeated six of the best riders on the track in a special one mile invitation. In this event he triumphed over John Staehle, Alf Goullet, Eddie Madden, Kramer and Ray Eaton, who finished in the order named.

Staehle, who only turned professional this year, rode a splendid race. With two laps to go, he just bowed his head and tore for home. Spencer tacked on to his rear wheel and enjoyed a splendid pull until he reached the home stretch on the last lap, when he was able to beat Staehle out at the tape.

Staehle, teamed with Gus Lang, defeated Harry Kaiser and Willie Hanley in two straight heats of a mile team match in the first heat. Lang outraced Hanley to the tape, while in the second heat Staehle, sprinting for his team, ran away from both Kaiser and Hanley, winning easily.

Goullet defeated Eaton without much trouble in the three-mile open. Eaton, who is the professional champion, did not seem to have much speed and could not ride around Goullet on the last lap. Hanley, Magin and Hill took the next three positions in this event.

Anthony Young of the Bay View Wheelmen defeated Fred Taylor of the New York A. C. in the two-mile Class A invitation amateur race. They fought it stride for stride on the last lap with Young just winning by inches. Burton Fenn, son of the one-time famous Willie Fenn, won the novice event.

Referee Plays Shrill Music During His Funeral Parade

The annual soccer match between Robins Dry Dock Superintendents and Lloyd's Surveyors took place at Todd Field, Brooklyn, yesterday morning. Whereas the struggle, a 2 to 2 tie, ended to the satisfaction of all concerned, both sides had it in for Bert Sommers, the referee, who, when play ceased, was pounced upon, pinned to the ground and then dumped into a pine box and made the central figure in a mock funeral procession.

To show he was very much alive, the victim of the prearranged joke blew his whistle incessantly during the march across the field and was finally a d somewhat unceremoniously spilled to mother earth. With a huge horseshoe for a background, the teams and officials were then photographed.

MOOREHEAD VICTOR OVER HARLEM ROADS

Wins Alpha P. C. C. Run After Hard Battle with Prock—Brown Takes Time Prize.

A well-timed sprint which carried him in front of his rivals gave R. Moorehead, Alpha P. C. C. runner, a victory yesterday in the Harlem Heights Athletic League's handicap road race, held over a course of about five miles, under the auspices of the Alpha P. C. C. Moorehead, who was allowed a handicap of three minutes, followed a fast pace until the last mile was entered, when he suddenly increased his speed and displaced W. Prock, unattached, as leader. For nearly half a mile the two runners continued in a battle for supremacy, but Prock weakened eventually and had to be content with second to his colored rival. Moorehead covered the course in 29:04. Prock, starting with an allowance of 4:45, was timed in 31:04. J. Hoban, Harbrook Heights A. C., finished third in 31:40.

The struggle for premier position rested among these three runners after the first mile. Hoban, closely followed by Prock, moved into the advance position soon after passing the mile mark and for slightly more than a mile set the pace. Prock then took the lead, while Moorehead held to a position back of Hoban. Up to the time the runners entered the final mile Prock set the pace.

When Moorehead made his spectacular bid for the leadership Prock relinquished the position, but clung to the heels of the colored runner for half a mile. At this point, however, Prock began steadily to lose ground, until at the finish he was almost a hundred yards back of the victor.

Harry Brown, Harbrook Heights A. C., carried off the fast time prize. Brown started with a handicap of 1:45 and raced home in fifth position. His time was 28:37. Harbrook Heights A. C. runners, compiling the low total of 25 points, annexed the team laurels. A field of twenty runners started and sixteen finished the full course.

MUELLER LEADS RUNNERS.

Brooklyn A. A. Distancer Easily Wins Swedish-American Race.

E. Mueller of the Brooklyn A. A. showed the way to the field of runners who participated yesterday in the invitation handicap road race of the Swedish-American A. C., held over a course of about four and one-half miles in Brooklyn. Mueller, who started with a handicap of 2:15, gradually picked up ground on his more liberally handicapped rivals until the field was about half a mile from the finish line. Here the Brooklyn A. A. runner went into the lead and retained his position to the finish. Mueller's time for the race was 26:30, and at the finish he enjoyed an advantage of more than sixty yards on E. Larson, Swedish-American A. C., who started off the three-minute mark.

James McNeil of the Paulist A. C. was the honor starter and earned the fast time prize. McNeil finished fifth in 25:33. This mark will go as a record for future races, in view of the fact that it was the first road race held over this particular course. The athletes of the Brooklyn A. A. carried off the team laurels with a total of 27 points.

St. Vincent Five Is Victor.

PRIMAVERA FIRST IN WALKING RACE

Wins Brooklyn Event with Quarter Mile to Spare—Remer Fails to Break Record.

Walking along at a pace which reflected not the slightest trace of weariness after his trying journey, Vincent Primavera crossed the finish line victor yesterday in the seventh semi-annual members' handicap road walk of the Brooklyn branch of the American Walkers' Association. Primavera, in receipt of the liberal handicap of thirty-two minutes, made the most of this allotment and broke trail for the greater part of the ten and a half mile journey. At the finish his actual time was 1 hour 51 minutes 3 seconds, and he was leading George Dittrich by the convincing margin of a quarter mile. Dittrich started seven minutes later than the winner and covered the course in 1:45:45. L. Eickstedt finished third, about a furlong back of Dittrich.

Primavera's liberal handicap allowance was a potent factor in his success. For about four and one-half miles Leroy Marks, starting with the limit handicap of thirty-five minutes, showed the way. At this stage of the race, however, Primavera forged to the front, and thereafter held his position even in the face of frequent challenges. As the race neared completion, these challenges became less frequent, but Primavera notwithstanding summoned all his strength in the closing mile and one-half and managed to work up an advantage of a quarter of a mile on the tiring Dittrich.

Dick Remer, veteran pedestrian and former national champion, made an unsuccessful assault on the course record. Remer started from scratch and finished eighth in the actual time of 1:27:05, a matter of 2:17 slower than the mark of 1:24:48 registered by Kurt Zulch more than three years ago.

The race started at Park Circle, Brooklyn, from which point the walkers followed Ocean Parkway to Coney Island. Reaching the island, the athletes retraced their steps over Ocean Parkway to the point from which they started. A crowd of several hundred witnessed the finish, while the spectacle attracted the interested gaze of many passers-by over the course. From start to finish of the race moving pictures were taken as part of the American Olympic Committee's program for stimulating interest in athletic activities.

Pos. Name.	Hdcp.	Actual Time.
1—V. Primavera	32:00	1:51:03

TITTERTON SHOWS WAY.

Unattached Runner Is First Home in Mohawk A. C. Race.

Frank Titterton showed his flying heels to eight rivals yesterday in the Mohawk A. C.'s invitation road race, held over the Elks' course in the Bronx, a distance of about five miles. Titterton held the lead from start to finish of the race and completed his journey with an advantage of about 100 yards on W. Deegan, St. Anselm's A. C., who finished second. The winner's time was 27:03. C. A. Holl, Mohawk A. C., finished third.

MRS. GAVIN UNABLE TO CONTEST ABROAD

Abandons Plan to Accompany Party of Three Golfers in Quest of British Title.

Three, and only three, American women golfers will play next month in the North of Ireland in the British ladies' championship. Mrs. William A. Gavin of this city, runner-up for the national women's title, and a former Metropolitan champion, said last night that she had been obliged to change her plans because of ill-health, and would not make the trip this year. Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow of Philadelphia, the Eastern champion, was to have accompanied Mrs. Gavin, but she also will not go. The sixth on the original list was Miss Alexa Stirling of Atlanta, champion since 1916, who made plans last Fall for a trip to the British Isles.

The group of three, entries for whom were sent abroad by the U. S. G. A. a couple of weeks ago, will sail Saturday on the Baltic. They are Miss Marion Hollins of East Islip, Long Island, the Metropolitan champion, who will default her title at Greenwich in June; Mrs. Clarence H. Vanderbeck of Philadelphia, former national champion, and Miss Mildred Caverley, also of Philadelphia, who was runner-up when Miss Stirling first won her crown at Waverley, Mass., in 1916. Since the date of the British title play has been moved forward to May 10, the three invaders will be forced to crowd as much golf as possible into the two weeks allotted to them after they arrive on British soil. English courses, notoriously windy and quite different from those on this side in other respects, will prove a puzzle at first to the Americans, none of whom has played before in a championship abroad. They plan to go to Newcastle, County Down, as soon as possible for practice rounds over the championship site.

Of the three, Miss Hollins and Mrs. Vanderbeck would seem to have a margin over Miss Caverley on the basis of performances last season. The New York girl spent several weeks this Winter in California and played over the Santa Barbara and Pebble Beach links, at the latter place with Herbert Fowler, the English links architect.

FORSAKE TENNIS FOR GOLF.

Briggs Beats Voshell by Long Putt on Home Hole at Pinehurst.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 11.—Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Briggs of the Pelham Country Club carried off all the prizes in the tennis players' golf tourney held here today. Mrs. Briggs led the women's field with a round of 102 and her husband took the men into camp with a score of 49, 41—90.

Briggs and S. Howard Voshell came to the seventeenth tee all even at 88. Briggs drove to the green and sank a long putt for the 90. Voshell's great drive went into the workshop behind the clubhouse and it cost him five strokes more to get out and down.

Alfred H. Chapin, Jr., of Springfield, Mass., finished third at 95, a stroke behind Briggs. Several others came in under the 100 mark.

C. Arnheiter Is Hard Pressed to Hold Lead to Finish.

A margin of a city block separated C. Arnheiter from his nearest rival yesterday in the members' handicap road race of the Pastime A. C. over a four and one-quarter mile course. Arnheiter, through the aid of a 2:45 handicap, showed the way over the last half of the journey, but he was forced to his limit in the closing quarter-mile in defending his position against the bid made by O. Phillipson, scratch starter. The victor's time was 24:25.

Triple Bill in Basket Ball Race.

The National City Bank five, leaders in the race of the Bank Clerks' Basket Ball League, will clash with Columbia Trust tonight at Arcadia Hall. Federal Reserve and Irving National will come together in the second half of the double-header and there will be a preliminary game for the girls' championship of the banks. The contending teams will be the girls of Federal Reserve and Guaranty Trust, who have defeated the girls of eight other banks.

Are Your Shipments Tied Up?

Ship by Truck

For Short Hauls

The shipping tangle which threatens the nation's business and jeopardizes the food supply of communities demands immediate practical solution.

Relief to the railroads in this crisis must come in the reduction of short haul tonnage. The motor truck presents the means and the motor truck is ready.

Firestone is meeting the issue by using the "ship by truck" facilities which are available. Our experience may point the way to others.

From every branch office of the company during this emergency all tire shipments within the short haul range will go by motor truck.

Tire stocks will be maintained to keep motor vehicles moving, and the terminal facilities of our railroads will be measurably relieved.

"Ship by truck" presents an opportunity for every manufacturer and shipper whose consignments to points within fifty or seventy five miles are not moving.

The Firestone Ship by Truck Bureau is at your service with collected information on trucks available, routes covered, etc.

GERMANS GET CREDIT FOR DUTCH FOODSTUFFS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 10.—News that some of the largest American banking houses have bought large quantities of marks in the last few days evidently has inspired the Dutch with renewed confidence in Germany. Negotiations for a large credit which had been practically completed but were interrupted by the German revolution have been resumed.

An advance credit for foodstuffs, including grain, frozen meat, herring and milk, amounting to 25,000,000 gulden was signed for today, and German representatives are already on the way to adjust prices. The foodstuffs are more especially for the occupied district, where large quantities of foodstuffs have been plundered by the Reds.

BEATEN BY MOB AT CHURCH.

Congregation Had Rope for Suspected Thief When Police Arrived.

Considerable excitement was caused at a midnight mass at the Russian Church, North Twelfth Street and Driggs Avenue, Brooklyn, and a threatened lynching was averted by the arrival of the police, when a man was accused of picking pockets of two men in the church. He is Jacob Halpern, 37 years old, of 253 South Second Street, Brooklyn. He was held in $5,000 bail each later on two charges of grand larceny.

The complainants are Charles Lovalax, 51 North Eighth Street, and Peter Polukvitch, 72 Clay Street. From the first man Halpern is alleged to have taken $960, and from the latter $65. The two men were among hundreds of worshippers at the midnight mass. Halpern is alleged to have entered the pew with them. Lovalax did not know his pocket had been picked until Polukvitch felt a tug at his pocket and saw Halpern leaving the church. Polukvitch shouted to those behind him to stop Halpern, and the excitement interrupted the mass.

Some one in the crowd yelled "lynch him." A rope was procured, and Halpern was being dragged to McCarren Park, a block away, when Patrolman John McDermott and Detective Joseph Miller rescued him from the crowd. Halpern was badly beaten. In court it was found that he had been arrested forty times, thirty-six on disorderly conduct charges and four times for larceny.

ROOT SAYS AMERICA OWES AID TO RUSSIA

Re-establishment of Democracy Depends on Refugees Now Requiring Help, He Declares.

BOLSHEVISM FREEDOM'S FOE

Princess Cantacuzene Joins in Appeal at Mass Meeting—Tells of Threats Against Her Life.

America is being called on to make good its plighted faith to the Russian people who are depending on America to help re-establish democracy in Russia, and to make that nation a member of the Society of Nations, said Elihu Root yesterday at a mass meeting for Russia at the Maxine Elliott Theatre.

The speakers, who included Princess Cantacuzene-Speransky, Congressman Burton L. French of Idaho, Elizabeth Marbury and Major Stanley Washburn, joined Mr. Root in making an appeal for the 1,000,000 Russian refugees who are destitute and suffering on the fringes of Russia and in other countries, having been driven into exile by the Bolsheviki.

The audience was asked to send contributions to the American Central Committee for Russian Relief, Hotel Buckingham, Fifth Avenue and Fiftieth Street. There was music by the Russian Cathedral Choir.

Mr. Root, who was Chairman of the meeting, said the day was significant for such a meeting, as it was the Russian Easter Sunday.

German Agents Corrupted People.

Russia started on the right path, he said, with universal suffrage, a constituent assembly and other democratic forms, but while the new Government was establishing itself the evil genius of Germany furnished agents and machinery which were corrupting the people with dreams of a millennium and of great wealth, thus paving the way for Bolshevism.

Bolshevism, the speaker declared, was established by hired troops paid for by German gold. It was a system of Government in direct opposition to the democratic form being established at the time and its aim was the existence of a class government of the proletariat.

Describing the flight of the bourgeoisie from the Russia of the Bolsheviki, Mr. Root drew a picture of the indignities and tortures inflicted on these people. They found themselves helpless in the Baltic provinces, he said, in Serbia, Turkey, on the edge of the Black Sea, in China, Rumania and elsewhere, comprising in round numbers a million people who fled for their lives before the cruel terror of the Bolsheviki.

Now, clad in rags, suffering from disease, lacking the necessaries of life, they are doomed to perish, he said, unless they were aided from the United States.

Enemy of American Freedom.

"The reason we should help them is that the cause of Bolshevism to which they refused to bow is an enemy of American freedom," he continued. "The fundamental principle of Bolshevism is the destruction of democracy and the substitution for it the government by a class instead of a government of all the people.

"Bolshevism has sent its agents to England, France and America to tear down these Governments and to substitute class Governments. It aims to bring about a red terror in these countries."

Mr. Root then said that it is on the refugees driven from Russia that dependence must be placed for the re-establishment of democracy in Russia and the making of that country a member of the Society of Nations.

The committee in charge of the meeting made public the following figures as showing approximately the number of Russians for whom relief is asked and the countries where they are at present: Finland, 260,000; Esthonia, 60,000; Poland, 50,000; shores of the Black Sea, 300,000; Serbia, 120,000, and Turkey, 50,000.

Princess Cantacuzene said that those whom it was desired to help were the refugees of Kolchak's and Denikin's armies. She told of receiving a cable dispatch on Saturday from the agent of the work in Europe reporting advices from Helsingfors that anti-Red riots had broken out in Russia and that Zinoviev, head of the Petrograd Soviet, had been reported killed.

The Princess told of propaganda against the organization in New York, and said she received threats on her life, which she considered very complimentary.

Short Time Bonds

Yielding 7% to 8%

Present conditions have resulted in a great deal of short-term financing because many Governments, Municipalities and Corporations needing funds are unwilling to pay present high rates of interest over a long period. This gives the investor an exceptional opportunity to get sound security coupled with a high rate of interest.

We shall be glad to send investors a list of such Short Time Bonds upon request.

FINANCIAL SITUATION

Rail Strikes Retard Improving Industrial Outlook—The Gold Arrivals.

The spread of railroad labor disturbances last week, with its threat of reaching into new territory before irresponsible walkouts terminated, added one more burden to the many which industry has had to shoulder in the last eighteen months. It needs no statistics to show that heavy losses of production and a severe retardation of distribution accompanies a great tie-up of transportation facilities. This is to be considered supplementary to inconvenience and actual physical suffering, which goes with a stagnation of the delivery into consuming channels of the necessaries of life. Prior to the refusal of Chicago switchmen to work ten days ago, the industries had been feeling considerable relief from the Winter difficulties of railroad shipments. The delivery and payment for goods long held in warehouses was gradually acting to relieve a congested situation of credit tied up in commodities. There were signs of price recessions in markets that had begun to receive increased quantities of manufactured products. It looked as though the Spring would progress with somewhat easier conditions for both producers and consumers. But the strikes, engineered for a purpose as yet obscure and in defiance of the authority of organized labor, have changed all that. Should labor insurgency be calmed within the next few days, it will require weeks before the roads are again able to report a resumption of traffic improvement which began with the passing of adverse weather conditions. The high cost of living problem is put further than ever from a practical solution and the high cost of doing business is made even higher than before. The one point of comfort in the exasperating situation has been the sober and helpful attitude of responsible railroad union officers and the thought thereby implied that when the present mess is straightened out the hand of conservative labor will be strengthened.

April crop forecasts come a long way ahead of actual yields and Nature frequently upsets calculations of farm results. Yet in the current period of inadequate grain production in Europe a favorable Spring outlook for American grain would be decidedly more comforting than the Winter wheat statistics issued by the Department of Agriculture a few days ago. It is estimated that the carry-over from last year's Winter and Spring crop of 940,000,000 bushels will be around 150,000,000 bushels. The department's survey indicates a yield of 484,000,000 bushels from the Winter planting, or a total available supply from these sources of 634,000,000 bushels, provided that further depreciation of the growing crop does not occur. That would about provide for home consumption and seed, but world demands are certain to be heavy and in this the Spring planting must figure. The success of the farmers in putting a large acreage in Spring wheat would seem, therefore, to determine the part which the country will play next Autumn and Winter in the export trade. Labor is short and reports from the major crop localities show that late planting will be the rule. The April showing of the poorest plant condition in fifty years is disconcerting, but the May and June statements, including Spring planting figures and growth, will be more enlightening in regard to the outlook.

Approximately $48,200,000 gold has been sent to New York by the British Government since the movement began a fortnight ago, and receipts of purchases made by bankers in the auction market bring the total of imports up to $51,400,000. This comprises as much of the metal as local bankers estimated would come in the initial stage of preparations for the Anglo-French loan maturity. A product of the gold movement and of renewed confidence in international conditions as affecting Great Britain primarily was seen last Monday in a quotation of 4.06¾ for sterling sight drafts, the rate shooting across the $4 mark for the first time in more than four months. The later reaction to 3.96¾ at the end of the week was not unnatural in view of the extraordinary rise which had previously occurred. The story of French and Italian exchange was quite different and not altogether explained by news of either foreign or local origin. Both declined to new low records, francs selling down to about 6 1-5 cents each and lire to approximately 4 cents in American currency, compared with a normal value of 19.2 cents. It could be argued that the reflection of French currency inflation and adverse balance of trade in low exchange was aggravated by the cost in money and in lessened production of increased military operations in Germany. But that factor did not affect Italian rates. Italian exchange is under Government control, which seeks to eliminate speculative operations. It may be, as some bankers hold, that the absence of a short interest in the lire market because of trading restrictions has helped to accelerate the recent decline.

Offerings of $50,000,000 Pennsylvania Railroad ten-year bonds and of $35,225,000 New York Central equipment paper at par, yielding 7 per cent. interest to the buyer, record the advancing cost of capital. It is fully in line with the rise this year of interest rates for commercial credits and for industrial working capital. In all directions, including the railroad, petroleum, manufacturing and public utility corporations, there is a pressing demand for fresh funds, and the credit reservoir has been so heavily drawn upon by Government transactions that the price has naturally stiffened. Seven per cent. for such railroad paper as that mentioned above carries one back to the '70s, with an important difference, however. In the earlier period railroad credit had been impaired by a mushroom financing of new properties which was attended with many failures. Now it is not a question of railroad soundness, but of capital shortage.

The stock dividend slogan had a decided influence in last week's stock market speculation. Six per cent. call money until Friday's rise to 10 per cent. worked to expand the operations of traders whose thought of profits was stirred by the prospect of having shares given to them free, provided they guessed the fortunate stock. The conjunction of these two factors was exactly right for pool managers, and the bulging qualities of a number of industrial issues showed them to be active participants in the market. The past has shown that severe reactions come sooner or later in stocks boosted by concentrated buying in which sound economic influences play only a minor part. The Stock Exchange took time by the forelock in the case of Stromberg Carburetor, heading off what looked like another accumulation of shares of a limited capitalization in a few hands. The Stutz Motor episode has imparted a lesson to the Stock Exchange management, without any apparent evidence, as yet, that overzealous speculators have taken it to heart.

STRONG POSITION OF THE OIL PRODUCER

The increase of over 500% in the consumption of auto-gasoline within ten years, which is about five times as rapid as the increase in production of crude oil, places the producer of crude in a much more favorable financial position than the refiner.

The situation can be permanently corrected only by the purchase of production outright by the refiner or through consolidation with such interests. This will likely be evidenced by large consolidations of independents.

In any event, the oil producer holds decidedly the strongest position in the industry.

MARCH, A RECORD IN STEEL OUTPUT RATE

Argues Production Capacity of 44,000,000 Tons Pig Iron and 50,000,000, Ingots.

STILL, BARS ARE SCARCE

One Chicago Concern Has Been Buying Iron Bars to Offer to Purchasers of Steel.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, April 10.—Output of both pig iron and steel in March was at a greater rate than in any year thus far. The production of pig iron was at a rate of 40,000,000 gross tons a year, while the production of steel ingots was at a rate of about 45,200,000 tons a year. The gain in March over January was 12 per cent. in pig iron and 11 per cent. in steel ingots. The particularly significant thing about it is that these outputs were made when the industry was suffering severely from coal and coke shortage. This means that the industry's capacity is larger than used to be estimated. Till recently the accepted estimates of capacity were 43,000,000 to 44,000,000 tons in pig iron and 49,000,000 to 50,000,000 tons in steel ingots. The March tonnages indicate that the pig iron capacity exceeds 45,000,000 tons and the steel ingot capacity is nearly 55,000,000 tons.

As the supply, measured by the March production, has been absorbed without any considerable tonnage going into railroad use or large construction work, it may be feared that when these demands come there will not be enough steel. But the March supply was 50 per cent. greater than production in the two best tonnage years before the war, when consumers of steel were active, whereas now some of the most important are very light consumers. The large production in March, with the additional fact that more steel was shipped than was made, would suggest steel becoming plentiful; but, on the contrary, there is inquiry in the market now for many descriptions of finished steel for early shipment, with buyers willing to pay large delivery premiums, and yesterday's spread of the switchmen's strike up the Monongahela Valley and other regions is threatening production.

The American Sheet & Tin Plate Company, subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, announced that early next week it will open its order books for second half contracts with manufacturing consumers and third quarter contracts with jobbers, at $3.35 for blue annealed sheets, 10 gauge; $4.35 for black sheets, 28 gauge; $5.70 for galvanized sheets, 28 gauge, and $7 per base box for 100-pound tin plate. These are the Industrial Board prices. Generally speaking, the minimum extra demanded by the independent producers is $10 a ton, while sales in small lots have been made at 3 or 4 cents a pound over the corporations prices. Consumers will be disposed to buy from independents at the extra prices except for quite early deliveries. A wide variety of opinion is expressed in the trade as to how long the price divergence will last. Some believe there will be two steel markets for some time to come.

Prices in the iron and steel scrap market are unchanged from those of last week, and in a general way the market is very dull, as regards sales to consumers but there is a fair volume of trading between dealers, and there is a fair absorption of scrap from producers or original holders. Mill inspections are very rigid, indicating that mills are in comfortable position as to scrap supplies, some with even more scrap than they need. As to heavy melting steel, if the mills had not overbought they could reasonably be expected in the market again at this time, but there is no sign of that. A common prediction is that the next buying movement will be in May or June. Dealers are unwilling to estimate how much scrap remaining from the war is still unconsumed, but it would appear that there is a large quantity, and the current outcome of scrap is rather large.

The pipe mills are running well and shipments are heavy. As pipe can be shipped in various kinds of cars, shipments have been substantially equal to production right along. The National Tube Company's production in March made a new record by a comfortable margin, and its shipments almost equaled its production. Prices are much steadier than formerly, being confined practically to two sets—the one based upon the 57½ per cent. pipe list of the leading interest, the other based upon the 54 per cent. list established by most of the independents. Demand for oil-country goods continues heavy, with mills sold far ahead. It does not look as if the pipe mills would be able to catch up with the oil trade's requirements this year.

The scarcity of steel bars for early deliveries is indicated by the large amount of business that is going to iron mills from buyers who usually take steel bars. One of the large distributing houses in Chicago has been buying iron bars to offer to buyers who ask for steel bars. An unusual movement occurred in the sale during the last few days of several hundred tons of iron bars for Pittsburgh to be made in the Chicago district. On the major portion of the tonnage 3.75c., Chicago mill, was realized, the price delivered Pittsburgh being 4.02c., but on some small sales two or three dollars a ton more was secured. The business went to Chicago on account of Pittsburgh mills being so well sold up; the sellers in this case will furnish delivery in about six weeks.

The large independents have not yet opened their books on bars, shapes and plates for the third quarter. Some third-quarter business has been put through by one or two mills in the case of customers of particularly long standing. Appearances are that buyers are not anxious to commit themselves for deliveries after July 1, and the mills are waiting until they show more enthusiasm. In the case of some classes of trade, action by the Steel Corporation is awaited. While it has made some commitments on bars beyond July 1, there are some classes of customers it has not covered for the third quarter. The independents have manifested no intention of meeting the Steel Corporation's price of 2.35c. on bars.

Small spikes are in good demand, with producers well sold up. The going market on early deliveries is 4.85c., of a cent a pound above the regular price on standard railroad spikes, now 3.85c., since the last of the 3.85c. sellers withdrew that price. The advance in standard spikes was due to the general stiffness of the steel market rather than to there being any particularly heavy demand. It is in small spikes that there is pressure for early deliveries. Heavy sheet production has put the consumers in much better position than recently, but has not entirely relieved the shortage, as sheet deliveries since the first of the year have on the whole been decidedly less than was counted on. The leading interest expects, with a continuance of its present good rate of operation, to clean up its commitments by the fore part of August.

There have been sales of tin plate lately at much above $7, but that may be regarded as retail business. The great bulk of the tin plate consumption is covered at $7, and among some of the independents in the last few weeks there has been a feeling that higher than $7 could be secured for tin plate, for second half, considering all the circumstances, but these manufacturers have been in the minority in point of tonnage capacity. The East is very short of tin plate, and there is little prospect of there being anything like heavy shipments East for some time, though the tin plate industry is operating, generally speaking, at about 95 per cent. of capacity.

Exports of unmanufactured wood pulp amounted to 50,789 cords, valued at $615,101, in January 1920, compared with 97,915 cords, valued at $972,129 in January, 1919. Exports of pulp wood for the ten months' period totalled $7,417,390 in value.

Common Stock of no par value, authorized and outstanding .... 100,000 shares

The Preferred Stock is exempt from the present normal Federal Income Tax. It is preferred both as to assets and as to dividends. Dividends are payable quarterly on the first day of June, September, December and March. The Company has no bonded or mortgage indebtedness. Its charter provides that beginning 1923, and annually thereafter, the Company shall set aside not less than $25,000 per year for the retirement of the outstanding Preferred Stock, which shall be purchased in the open market or called at $107.50 per share and accrued dividends. The stock is additionally safeguarded by the further provision in the charter which provides that no mortgage indebtedness may be created without the consent of 75% of the holders of the Preferred Stock. The Company further agrees not to release the $150,000 Preferred Stock remaining in its Treasury except to provide purchase money for additional real estate, plants or plant equipment and inventories, and then only in case the net earnings, after all charges, including taxes, shall have been in excess of $100,000 for the previous year.

Application will be made in due time to list these shares on the Chicago Stock Exchange.

LEGALITY, ETC.

All legal matters pertaining to this issue have been passed on by Messrs. Adams, Childs, Bobb & Wescott, of Chicago, for the Bankers, and Thomas A. Barker, Esq., of Louisville, Kentucky, for the Company. The books of the Company have been audited by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Company, and the appraisal was made under the direction of the American Appraisal Company.

PURPOSE OF THIS ISSUE

The purpose of this issue is to provide funds which shall remain in the business and which shall be used for further working capital and for plant additions and extensions.

SALES FOR 1919 NEARLY THREE MILLION DOLLARS

The Company manufactures a food product for which there exists a continuous general demand. So rapid has been the growth of its business that its gross volume of sales has increased from five hundred and eighty-four thousand dollars in 1916, to nearly three millions of dollars in 1919. It is confidently expected that with increased working capital, together with large and improved facilities for manufacture, the Company will easily develop its volume of sales far beyond this point in the near future. The following table indicates the growth of business during the past few years:

1917	$1,241,757.73
1918	2,409,507.70
1919	2,949,176.95
1920 (Estimated)	4,000,000.00

PROFITS AND DIVIDENDS

The Company since its inception has been a consistent and continuous money maker for its owners. While adding to its capital and surplus, liberal dividends have been paid throughout its entire history. During the year 1919 the net profits and income, before deducting interest, Federal taxes, etc., was $155,011.65. In the opinion of the management, the savings to be accomplished by the additional capital to be provided by this issue, together with contemplated increase in manufacturing facilities, will enable the Company to transact its business on an increasingly profitable basis. Profits for 1920 will, therefore, undoubtedly show a large increase over those for the previous year.

PRICE—PREFERRED AND COMMON

Subject to prior sale, we offer, when, as and if issued, and deliverable by us, the Eight Per Cent Cumulative Preferred Stock at $100 per share, par value. For a limited time, with each share of Preferred Stock purchased, the right is extended to purchase six shares of the Common Stock at $5.00 per share. Checks should be made payable to F. A. Brewer & Co. Temporary interim receipts are now ready for delivery. As we anticipate an early oversubscription for this offering, we advise clients to wire their reservations to us immediately. Facts About the Goodwin Business

Sweet as Candy

Nine million pounds of granulated cane sugar were used to produce about eighteen million pounds of finished product during the year 1919.

Established Over Twenty Years

Goodwin products have been sold for over twenty years. The Company's brands and trademarks thru extensive advertising and continuous use in many hundreds of thousands of households have acquired great value and are recognized by the trade as standard.

Favored by Conditions

The consumption of preserved fruit commercially produced is growing at a rapid rate. Few housekeepers nowadays have the facilities or the disposition to "put up" Jams, Preserves, Jellies, etc. The growth of the large cities as well as the advent of prohibition is an important factor.

Splendid Outlook for 1920

The Company begins the 1920 season with large supplies of raw material (granulated sugar, fresh fruit preserved in sugar, etc.) bought below the present market levels.

Louisville an Ideal Location

Louisville is well located for this industry, both as regards rail and water transportation. It is the center of those regions which are most favorable for the propagation of strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, etc. Fuel is obtained from the near-by coal fields to the East and to the West. The labor situation is also nearest ideal, the Company never having any trouble in finding a supply of operatives, both skilled and unskilled.

Canning and Preserving Industry Now in First Rank

The Canning and Preserving Industry has now attained a position of first rank in the production of American Foodstuffs. We recommend this particular issue for the following reasons:

First—The Company is an old established one and has long demonstrated its ability to pay satisfactory dividends on its former capital.

Second—The Preferred Stock, in addition to yielding a liberal rate of interest (8%), is surrounded by such safeguarding provisions as render it a splendid investment security.

Third—The additional capital to be acquired from this issue will enable the Company to carry on a largely increased volume of business on a more economical basis, which, in turn, should result in greatly increased earnings with dividends in accordance.

Fourth—The right to purchase the common shares at the low underwriting price offered, if availed of, will, in our opinion, prove a very profitable investment through eventual increase in their market value over the present offering price.

SENATE BUDGET BILL SWEEPING MEASURE

Vests Secretary of Treasury with Responsibilities of Foreign Finance Ministers.

CONTROL WITH PRESIDENT

Special Committee Orders Bill Reported and It Will Be Presented by Senator McCormick.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—A bill providing for the creation of a national budget system has been ordered reported to the Senate by unanimous vote of its special committee which has had the matter under consideration. It will be presented early this week by Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois, Chairman of the committee.

The measure agreed on is more sweeping than the bill passed by the House of Representatives some weeks ago. It proposes to vest in the Secretary of the Treasury, in great part, the responsibilities devolved on finance Ministers throughout the world, and which were borne by Alexander Hamilton and other early Secretaries of the Treasury in the United States.

While it would reserve to the President the power to revise and control the terms of the budget, it is understood to be the hope of the members of the committee that, in the actual working of the proposed law, this power would have to be exercised seldom, and that the Secretary of the Treasury, together with the Commission of the Budget, would assemble, revise and prepare all estimates of expenditures for the Government.

The bill would set up in the Treasury Department a Budget Bureau, to which the various Government establishments on or before Oct. 1 each year would submit their estimates for expenditures for the ensuing fiscal year. The Budget Bureau would compile these estimates and submit them, with recommendations, to the Secretary of the Treasury not later than Nov. 1. The Secretary of the Treasury in turn would revise and coordinate them and submit them to the President not later than Nov. 20. The President would then have twenty days in which to review them before handing them to Congress for consideration.

The budget when it reached Congress would be a complete statement of the Administration's financial condition, as well as an outline of a proposed fiscal policy. It must include under the terms of the McCormick bill:

1. A statement of current Treasury resources and obligations.
2. A statement of the condition of the Treasury at the end of the preceding fiscal year.
3. A statement of the estimated condition of the Treasury at the close of the current year.
4. A statement in detail regarding the bonded and other indebtedness of the country.
5. A statement in detail regarding existing appropriations.
6. A statement as to the revenues paid into the Treasury during the last fiscal year; as to the revenues estimated for the current year, and as to the revenues to accrue or be paid in during the year to be financed, if the revenue proposals contained in the budget are adopted.
7. A statement as to expenditures during the last fiscal year, as to expenditures during the year in progress, and as to the expenditures as represented in the budget and approved by the President for the year to be financed.
8. Such other information as the President deems necessary to acquaint Congress with the financial condition, operation and estimated future revenues and expenditures of the Government.

In working out the details of the budget the President, under the plan proposed by the Senate committee, would have authority to revise the estimates submitted to him by the Secretary of the Treasury, by the increase, reduction or elimination of any item, or by the reassignment of specific duties in the various departments, the regrouping of services, or the consolidation or elimination of services.

The Senate committee believes this will lead to economy and increased efficiency in public affairs. The President would be required to submit to Congress a statement detailing his reasons for such changes as he proposes and Congress must approve these before they become effective.

According to the advocates of the measure, in actual practice, it would operate as follows:

1. The Cabinet would consider the question of financial policy in the whole, and not separately for each department, without regard as to the needs of the other departments, as now.
2. The head of each department would consider the financial proposals of his department in the aggregate and with regard to relative values, instead of solely as to the needs of particular bureaus.
3. The Treasury Department would consider the whole field of government finance from the administrative standpoint, as distinguished from questions of policy.
4. Congress would consider the budget, the provisions for outgo, as well as those for income, as a related whole, and would have to reform its present procedure in order to do this.

PLAN CO-OPERATIVE STORES

Corporation Will Establish Chain of 1,000 to Reduce Prices.

The organization of the Community Wholesale Purchasing Corporation, with headquarters at 120 Broadway, which will establish a thousand or more co-operative stores throughout New York, was announced yesterday. Co-operative buying, it is said, is to be the weapon with which the high cost of living will be fought.

Stores established by the organization will buy at the lowest rate, sell to members at a fair profit and then distribute the profits among these same members in proportion to the amount of the individual member's purchases. It will not be necessary to be a member of the organization to trade at one of the stores, but only members will share in the distribution of the profits.

The organization is incorporated under the laws of Delaware, and capitalized with 1,000,000 6 per cent. cumulative preferred shares of the par value of $5 each and 1,000 founders' shares of no par value and not entitled to any dividends. The plan is modeled after the Rochdale, England, co-operative plan, which began in 1843 with a capital of $140. It had grown in 1914 to a membership of more than 3,000,000 and operated 1,400 retail stores in England and Scotland, doing a business that year of more than $650,000,000.

The President of the organization is O. C. Trask, Assistant Grand President of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes and Railway Shop Laborers. Robert P. Brindell, President of the New York Building Trades Council, is First Vice President; F. Huntington Clark, Second Vice President; the Rev. Joseph J. Genthner, pastor of the Reformed Dutch Church and Chairman of the East Harlem Community Council, Treasurer, and George H. Salmon, Secretary and Chairman of the Executive Board.

The Directors are Professor John B. Clark, Professor L. E. Bowman and Professor Richard F. Gottheil of Columbia University; the Rev. John Emerson Zeiter, the Rev. Robert Watson, Thomas K. Brown, Jr., Thomas Willmott, R. C. De Knight, Dr. George Millard Davison, Dr. Oswald Schlockow, Mrs. Ella O'Gorman Stanton, the Rev. Joseph J. Genthner, Harry Allen Ely, William J. Durant, O. C. Trask and Miss Rosalie Manning.

TROPICAL IMPORTS PASS $2,000,000,000

EXPORTS TO TROPICS GAIN

Value of the Goods Taken Is Three Times That of the 1914 Sales.

The United States is depending more and more upon the tropics for foodstuffs and manufacturing materials, total value of imports in 1919 being shown as more than $2,000,000,000, as compared with $775,000,000 in 1914 and only $350,000,000 in 1900. These figures cover both tropical and sub-tropical materials. The materials which Americans call for in increasing amounts from the tropics are coffee, sugar, cacao, vegetable oils, india rubber, raw silk and tobacco.

"Rubber and substitutes for rubber," says the National City Bank, "all of them of tropical growth, which amounted in value to $73,000,000 in our imports of 1914, were in 1919 $222,000,000 and seem likely in the fiscal year 1920 to reach $275,000,000; sugar, including that drawn from our own islands, which amounted in value to $158,000,000 in 1914, was $524,000,000 in the calendar year 1919; coffee, of which the importation of 1914 was $111,000,000 in value, totaled $261,000,000 in the calendar year 1919 and seems likely to exceed $300,000,000 in the fiscal year 1920."

Discussing the importation of these products, the bank says that a considerable proportion of the increased valuation has been due to advances in prices, "but there has been also a very large increase in the quantity imported," says the statement.

"The quantity of coffee imported," the statement continues, "jumped from 1,000,000,000 pounds in 1914 to 1,334,000,000 in 1919, despite the fact that the average import price in 1919 was 20 cent per pound, against an average of 11 cents in 1914. India rubber, of which the importation in 1914 amounted to 132,000,000 pounds, was 536,000,0000 pounds in the calendar year 1919, and seems likely to exceed 600,000,000 pounds in the fiscal year 1920. Goat skins not usually classed as tropical products, but in fact supplied in our own imports almost exclusively from tropical and subtropical countries, were valued in our import statements of 1914 at $22,000,000, and $96,000,000 in 1919, with a prospect of passing the $100,000,000 line in the fiscal year 1920, while the quantity imported in 1919 was 134,000,000 pounds, as against 85,000,000 in 1914. The quantity of sugar brought from the tropical world, including our own islands, in 1914, was 6,818,000,000 pounds, and in 1919 8,889,000,000 pounds, having thus increased about 30 per cent. in quantity, while prices per pound in 1919 were considerably more than double those of 1914."

In return for the increased volume of business we have done with the tropics our exports to those districts have also increased. In 1914, according to the bank, they bought from us $412,000,000 worth of our merchandise (as measured by our export statements to all tropical countries, and in 1919 $1,282,000,000, or three times as much in value in 1919 as in 1914, while the value of the imports from the tropics in 1919 was also three times as much as in 1914. While it is a fact that the sales to the tropics are still far less than the purchases from them—only about $1,300,000,000 in 1919 as against $2,023,000,000 of imports therefrom—yet the growth in sales to that section of the world has shown a larger percentage of gain than the imports, the gain in the exports to the tropics having been 200 per cent. and the imports therefrom about 175 per cent. This large percentage of gain in exports to the tropics is explained as a perfectly natural one, since the tropical world was, during the war period, unable to obtain manufactures from Europe as formerly and therefore turned to the United States, the largest manufacturer of the world at the beginning of the war and now the world's largest exporter of manufactures. Manufactures, says the bank's statement, form about four-fifths of our exports to the tropics, and manufacturing material and foodstuffs about four-fifths of our imports therefrom.

NO ORGY OF SPENDING.

That Europe is spending its money for necessities and not luxuries, is indicated in the February trade figures shown in this week's issue of the Annalist, published by the New York Times Co., out today. Ten cents a copy at news stands; $5 a year by mail.—Advt.

United States Worsted Company Of Massachusetts

At a special meeting of the stockholders of the United States Worsted Company, held April 10, 1920, it was voted by an overwhelming majority of all classes of stock to authorize three million additional common stock, and to distribute to common stockholders of record June 15th next one share of common stock for every two shares then outstanding, as a stock dividend.

Second preferred stockholders have the privilege of converting second preferred stock into common stock of equal par value (ten shares of common for each share of second preferred) on a date to be agreed upon, which will be prior to June 15th, so that second preferred stockholders who exchange their stock before this date will get the benefit of the stock dividend.

If second preferred stockholders do not convert their stock into common before the date to be agreed upon, they cannot participate in the stock dividend.

Notification will be sent to each second preferred stockholder giving the last date on which the transfer can be made and advising as to the procedure to be followed in connection with the converting of the stock.

DECIDE THIS WEEK ON TEACHERS' PAY

Legislature May Be Asked to Allow Temporary Increase.

FARES HEARING TUESDAY

Cities to Oppose Granting Higher Rates—Daylight Saving Repeal Again to be Attempted.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 11.—At least three questions of paramount importance are to be disposed of one way or another this week by the Legislature. These are whether school teachers are to receive more pay, whether the traction lines and railroads are to be allowed to increase fares, and whether the daylight saving law is to be repealed.

While nearly all the legislators favor giving the teachers increased compensation, the State's financial experts claim they cannot find the extra money. The special legislative Committee on Teachers' Salaries favors the enactment of the Lockwood-Donohue bill and conferred over the week-end with the financial experts. They are expected to report to the Legislature tomorrow night whether it will be feasible to enact the bill. A compromise measure might result from the conferences, it was said tonight, which would retain the percentage features of the Lockwood-Donohue measure, but make the increases temporary until means are devised to raise sufficient money to make the scheme permanent.

The legislative leaders have about decided that a good share of the $30,000,000 necessary for the increased pay be raised by the State by a direct tax of at least 1½ mills. This would raise about $20,000,000, it is estimated, while the remaining $10,000,000 would be supplied by an appropriation of $5,000,000, added to the appropriation of a similar amount made by last year's Legislature.

Opponents of increased trolley and railroad fares which would be permitted by the traction and Jenks bills, are expected to overwhelm the legislators on Tuesday, when the bills are scheduled for a public hearing before the Assembly Judiciary Committee.

Repeal of the daylight saving law, twice defeated in the Assembly, will again be attempted. Assemblyman Betts has not made up his mind, he says, whether he will press his direct repeal bill again. Speaker Sweet has declared that no repeal bill will be passed in the Assembly unless it gives cities local option.

Assemblyman Cuvillier may press his resolution demanding a legislative investigation of the administration of New York City this week.

GOMPERS URGES AID FOR TEACHERS

Writes Governor Smith in Behalf of the Lockwood-Donohue Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Samuel Gompers, both in his capacity as President of the American Federation of Labor and as a citizen of New York, has written to Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York a letter in which he earnestly urges the immediate passage of the Lockwood-Donohue bill for the increase of teachers' salaries in New York City. Mr. Gompers says that the State of New York is now contributing $10,000,000 toward teachers' salaries, while the Lockwood-Donohue bill provides that the State shall bear half the cost of teachers' salaries on the basis of $60,000,000 being spent for that purpose in 1921, of which the State, under the bill favored by Mr. Gompers, shall furnish $30,000,000.

Mr. Gompers declares that a living wage for teachers is a necessity; that the situation in New York is critical and growing worse through the closing of schools and resignation of teachers, and insists that it cannot be said that the Empire State has lived up to its responsibilities in the sense that its less wealthy neighbors have done.

DEPLORES NAVY PENURY.

F. D. Roosevelt Hints Children Starve—Hits '3 by 2' History.

BOSTON, April 11.—Congress has not given the army and navy officers "even a common or garden variety of square deal," Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt said in an address here today.

"I cannot blame an officer," he added, "for getting out when he finds that he not only cannot support himself, but that his children are starving on the pay you are giving him."

Mr. Roosevelt referred to "the fifty-seven varieties of investigation going on at Washington at a cost of $3,000,000."

"If you believe some of the things you read in the papers," he continued, "the navy is a thoroughly discredited organization. It did nothing in the war. Curiously enough, the truth is the navy did a fine piece of work, for which it will receive due credit from the nation when history is written—not what we call '3 by 2 history' in Washington, written by three Republican and two Democratic Senators. That sort of history will last until Dec. 1 next, and that is all."

Delano Estate Put at $1,000,000.

It was said that a more correct estimate of the estate would be about $1,000,000.

RED LEADER IN SAXONY RULES IN BARON STYLE

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 11.—There are elements of picturesqueness about Max Hölts, who is dominating Vogtland, in Saxony. His story, so far as recorded, smacks of mediaeval romance and bold, bad barons and their ways, for Max sits in Falkenstein Castle, which is in the industrial city of the same name, and establishes his authority over the city and surrounding country. He levies toll upon those who are "subject" to him, and he finances himself and his army by fining merchants who were guilty of being war profiteers anything from 50,000 to 100,000 marks.

Max is the Communist who led a Red army in Falkenstein and neighborhood, and is meeting with a considerable amount of success. So long as Government troops are not used against him his mastery in Falkenstein seems to be complete, and now comes news that he has captured the infantry barracks and railway station in Plauen itself, and has already held up and searched a train proceeding from Munich.

Though the scale on which these operations are conducted is wholly ridiculous, the enterprise yet throws a vivid light upon the confusion in Germany and the chances offered to adventurers.

Höltz is receiving fines levied by him and justifies them by saying he takes them as security that his opponents really disarm. He stoutly denies the charge that his Red Army is a band of robbers and he insists upon the purity of its motives in fighting.

Though he modestly admits he has no thought of attacking the imperial Reichswehr his doings are attracting a considerable amount of notice and already one reads of comparisons between his campaign and what happened recently in the Ruhr valley, while various workers' executive committees support him and various others reject him and all his works.

Sections of the conservative press fear his demagogic powers, while the extreme radical press opposes him on the ground that his independent action is breaking the unity of front which is essential to revolutionary success.

USED TEACHING AS STOP-GAP

Institute for Public Service Blames Custom for School Crisis.

In a bulletin made public yesterday the Institute for Public Service, of which Julius H. Barnes is Chairman, urges girls not to pick careers until they know their possibilities and not to select occupations which will not help them as homemakers later if they marry," as the great majority of girls will, even those who now think they never will marry."

The bulletin attributes the present teacher shortage to "the fact that in the past many girls went into teaching as a stop-gap or temporary convenience instead of embracing it as an opportunity for a lifetime full of living."

Notice of Special Meeting of Stockholders.

To the Stockholders of International Motor Truck Corporation:

Notice is hereby given that a special meeting of the stockholders of International Motor Truck Corporation, a corporation of the State of New York, will be held at the office of the Corporation, No. 252 West 64th Street, Borough of Manhattan, City, County and State of New York, on the 27th day of April, 1920, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, for the purpose of voting upon the following propositions:

(1) To increase the number of shares of common stock which the Corporation may issue by 239,160 shares from 80,840 shares of common stock without nominal or par value to 320,000 shares of common stock without nominal or par value; to increase the amount of the stated capital of the Corporation by $1,195,800, from $16,613,900 to $17,809,700; and to amend the Certificate of Incorporation of the Corporation accordingly;

(2) In the event that said increase of the number of shares of common stock which the Corporation may issue shall be duly authorized, to authorize and consent to the issuance of 70,777 of said additional shares of common stock for the consideration of $5 per share by the transfer of $353,885 from the surplus of the Corporation to capital, and the issuance and delivery of said 70,777 shares of common stock as a stock dividend to the holders of record of common stock of the Corporation at the close of business on May 7, 1920, pro rata at the rate of one share for each share of common stock so held by said stockholders at the close of business May 7, 1920;

(3) In the event that said increase of the number of shares of common stock which the Corporation may issue is duly authorized, to authorize and consent to the offering of 141,554 of said additional shares of common stock to the record holders of common stock of the Corporation at the close of business on May 7, 1920, (including persons entitled to receive shares of such common stock under the Plan and Agreement dated July 11, 1919), for pro rata subscription at the price of $50 per share, at the rate of two shares for each share of common stock so held by said stockholders at the close of business on May 7, 1920, that is to say, upon the basis of their holdings prior to the issuance of the above mentioned stock dividend, such subscriptions to be made on or before May 24, 1920, and payment for said shares to be made in four equal instalments, as follows:

the first instalment upon subscription, the second instalment on or before July 24, 1920, the third instalment on or before September 24, 1920, and the fourth instalment on or before November 24, 1920;

it being understood that said offer will be made upon terms to be prescribed by the Board of Directors and that said offer shall not be extended to holders of scrip representing fractional amounts of common stock, but that if, on or prior to May 20, 1920, holders of such scrip shall surrender the same and receive in exchange therefor full shares of said common stock and shall thereby become record holders of full shares of common stock, such record holders shall be entitled to receive from the Corporation rights entitling them to subscribe for, on or prior to May 24, 1920, one share of said additional stock for each share of common stock so registered in their names, said rights to be issued at the time said scrip is so surrendered;

(4) To approve an underwriting agreement with Hayden, Stone & Co. for the formation of a syndicate which will underwrite the entire 141,554 shares of common stock to be offered to the common stockholders of the company as aforesaid, and to authorize and consent to the sale to said syndicate at $50 per share of so many of said 141,554 shares of common stock as shall not be subscribed for by the common stockholders of the Corporation in pursuance of the offer hereinabove described, payment for the shares of common stock which the syndicate shall be required to take to be made in four equal instalments, payable as follows:

the first instalment on or before May 29, 1920, the second instalment on or before July 24, 1920, the third instalment on or before September 24, 1920, and the fourth instalment on or before November 24, 1920; said underwriting syndicate to receive a commission of 2½% upon the entire $7,077,700 of underwriting, and Hayden Stone & Co. to receive for their services in organizing said syndicate, a commission of $35,383;

(5) In the event that the above mentioned increase in the number of shares of common stock which the Corporation may issue is duly authorized, to consent to the issuance and sale of 36,892 shares of common stock to officers, agents or employees of the Corporation at any price not less than $50 per share that may be fixed by the Board of Directors, in their discretion and without regard to the market value of said shares at the time of such issuance, and upon such terms as to payment as the Board of Directors shall deem advisable; and

To take any and all lawful action in connection with or incidental to the foregoing propositions and to consider such other business pertaining to the affairs of the Corporation as may properly come before the meeting.

The transfer books for the transfer of stock of the Corporation will close at the close of business on April 24, 1920, and will reopen on April 28, 1920.

Anchor men in the building trades are beginning to abandon hope of this year averting a building material price stampede. There has been little practical response to the proposals that all special interests be submerged for the present so that the general building construction might take full advantage of the advancing building season.

Wage adjustments, always upward, and rescheduling of working hours, always downward, are proving to be too great for the manufacturer, distributer, general contractor and subcontractor to continue to absorb. One by one the proponents of the co-operative plan to keep the building market open and free to all comers have withdrawn and some of the results of this turn of events will be felt in the Portland cement, sand, grit, gravel, and crushed stone departments when the market opens today.

The ultimate summit of such a movement, once it gets headway, says the Dow Service Daily Building Reports today, depends upon early relief in the increased freight car shortage, reaction in the cotton and bag markets, price reduction in wood barrel heads, staves and binders; correction of the Federal excess profit tax law, legislation that will encourage rather than discourage building construction, reduction of the already excessive freight rates as applied to transportation of building material, the pacification of various factors of organized labor, increase in immigration, and possibly the removal of tax on mortgages.

When these major hindrances to a free building market are lifted, the building material supply may be expected to anticipate the demand. Then only will the upward trend of price stop. That halcyon day is beyond this year's horizon.

An important factor in shutting off prompt occupancy of various buildings now almost completed is that of common window glass. A conservative estimate of the value of buildings now practically completed but awaiting the installation of glass has been taxed at $13,000,000 in this city alone. There has been a strike among the glaziers since Jan. 1. The issues involved in this strike have nothing whatever to do with rates of wages or hours of labor.

The contention centres principally on whether or not the distributers in this market will recognize outside organizers. The matter has been carried into the courts and an injunction has been granted restraining any conspiracy toward the damage of glass set up by independent interests. The supply of window and plate glass is far below the current demand, and discounts on recognized lists are purely nominal.

Conferences have been held between the operating forces and the manufacturers of glass at mill centres, but the year's program had not been announced up to Saturday noon. The chances are, however, that the manufacturing season will be extended two or three weeks, possibly a month, from now until May 13. The production of glass has increased greatly, but is still far short of the demand.

None of the manufacturers are accepting any new business for the next few months. This policy has been adopted in order to complete old orders. Fuel shortage, labor troubles and traffic conditions have made it impossible to keep up with demands, and no new business will be accepted until next Fall or until all the old orders are caught up.

Some of the factories have installed new machinery which will increase production, but not sufficiently to offset the great and constantly increasing demand. There will probably be a great scarcity of glass between now and October, especially window glass. The demand for heavy cylinder and heavy window plate glass greatly exceeds the supply.

Price changes this week include twenty-cent advance over the recent ten-cent advance on the price of Portland cement. Manufacturers are quoting on the new price based on fifteen-day delivery only, with no future contracts.

Some are quoting on twenty-five-cent bag rebates, which is 10 cents more than has been prevailing in this market; some not quoting at all, and it is frequently reported that some companies will not accept any business, as they are oversold. The general plan is to catch up with existing orders before taking on new business in justice to old customers.

The structural steel interests report that they expect to have 100 per cent. of their jobs in the open-shop classification at the end of this month. Common brick is being absorbed at $25 a thousand wholesale, with the usual additional charges for handling, cartage and 15 per cent. about as fast as it comes into the market. The week's record was twenty-two barges arrived and twenty-two barges were distributed. Lime and plaster are in a close market, with supplies uncertain and fast running low on dealers' hands. A distinguishing feature of the brick manufacturing situation is the fact that State road work is actively bidding against brick manufacturers for the available supply of unskilled labor.

This will probably result in much higher costs in the manufacture of brick. It was reported from the Hudson district this week that brick-barge loaders at various manufacturing plants up the river are being paid five times what they were four years ago. In spite of all these obstacles there is a certain amount of persistent optimism in the market and the volume of prospective work continues to come forth in increasing volume.

The week will open with new prices on sand, grit, gravel and crushed stone as follows: Sand, delivered in Manhattan, Bronx, Brooklyn and Queens Boroughs, $2.50 a cubic yard, grit, gravel and crushed stone will sell at $3.50 a cubic yard in all four boroughs mentioned. Coverage is to June 30 only, at which time the former price ruled on previous contracts which will, of course, be carried out. The foregoing prices apply only to new business.

One significant feature of the close of last week's business was the declaration of the building material dealers that they would defy the mandate of the union truck drivers to unionize the building material yards. They have formally decided to fight to maintain their independence. A similar attempt to unionize Eastern New Jersey building material yards failed.

DR. WISE AGAINST REPEAL OF DRY LAW

Nation Has Already Benefited Greatly by Prohibition, He Says in Sermon.

WANTS TO SEE IT ENFORCED

Rev. C. F. Potter Denounces Exclusion of Unitarians from Interchurch World Movement.

Taking as his subject "Shall Prohibition Be Repealed?" the Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Wise, in the Free Synagogue, Carnegie Hall, yesterday set forth reasons why in his opinion the Eighteenth Amendment should stand. He said there was no argument for the repeal of the amendment save the threadbare, meaningless argument that personal liberty was invaded by its passage.

"It is an insult to the intelligence and dignity and honor of the American people to continue to keep the liquor issue, which has been answered, in the forefront of American life at a time when America must concern itself with momentous problems of common life that press for solution," Dr. Wise said.

On behalf of repeal it was urged that there was much dissatisfaction with prohibition and its enforcement, he said. He asked if every law was to be repealed the enforcement of which excited opposition and were the American people ready to go to the length of admitting that no law should be allowed to stand on the statute books because some people did not like it? Dr. Wise answered the argument of the "wets" that immigrants were leaving or threatening to leave a drinkless America, by putting the question of whether any American would stand up and seriously maintain that we should change American law and order to suit the personal habits and customs of a certain group of immigrants.

"That the next Presidential campaign should revolve around the issue of liquor is a disgrace to America and a calamity to its citizenship," he said. "I am against the repeal of prohibition because the testimony of all impartial and worth-while witnesses throughout the land is to the effect that the nation has already, even within the brief period of merely partial enforcement, been greatly benefited thereby. Traveling from State to State throught the land, I have not heard a word in challenge of the wisdom and beneficence of the prohibition law save from the lips of a few men whose personal tastes and convivial habits are more important in their own sight than the well-being of the whole nation.

All Arguments Still Valid.

"I am against the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment because every argument that was valid on behalf of prohibition continues to be valid. Alcohol has not ceased to be one of the three race poisons perpetrating its baneful effect upon the human race from generation to generation, because of the passage of the Eighteenth Amendment.

"I am against the repeal of prohibition, nominal or actual, because of the character of the groups which favor repeal or annulment and the methods they are ready to employ. The criminal alliance of liquor interests and politics too long postponed the enactment of prohibition. The renewal of that criminal alliance alone can become effective in repealing prohibition. I do not believe that the American people will suffer that alliance to prevail against the will and weal of the whole American nation."

Dr. Wise said there should be either enforcement or repeal, but not the cowardly and lawless evasion of enforcement through the outwardly lawful processes of annulment. The American people would visit its wrath upon the heads of any group or party within the nation which sought to annul the will of the people by such methods of indirection as were rife among the essentially lawless opponents of the Eighteenth Amendment, he told his congregation.

Unitarians Excluded.

In his sermon yesterday morning the Rev. Charles Francis Potter, pastor of the West Side Unitarian Church, worshipping temporarily at Earl Hall, Columbia University, said that the campaign appeal of the Interchurch World Movement was on a Unitarian basis, but petty sectarianism had excluded the Unitarians and Universalists from participating in it. Unitarians from Channing to the present day have always been in favor of co-operative effort of Christian churches to bring the world into harmony with the spirit of Jesus, he said, but the leaders of the Interchurch Movement, holding up their puny measuring rods, had decided to exclude them.

"At the Atlantic City convention which launched this movement Professor F. D. Barton proposed that all Christian bodies be invited to co-operate," Mr. Potter said. "In response the entire audience arose to its feet. But the fact remains that in spite of that vote the Unitarians and Universalists have not been invited. The only inference is that they are not considered Christian.

"Do these two groups, then, not believe in Jesus and follow him? Oh, yes. And do they not lead moral lives and are they not noted for their public spirit, generosity and philanthropy? Most certainly. What, then, is the difficulty? It seems that the two denominations do not require belief in the deity of Jesus; they conceive Him as a leader and not a god. Belief, then, in Jesus is the measuring rod of the Interchurch Movement; not the great Christian principles, but a theological dogma is made the yardstick to measure men by."

Mr. Potter said that one of the humorous facts of the campaign was that at a recent meeting of officials of the movement which he attended, they pledged themselves to try and secure religious liberty for Unitarians in Transylvania. He said that when he mildly suggested that the Unitarians in Europe might be embarrassed by having their religious liberty obtained by a group in the United States who refused to admit American Unitarians to their number because they were not Christians, he was called sectarian.

"I was informed by an official of the Interchurch Movement, not officially but privately, that Unitarians didn't amount to much anyway; they were only a handful," he said. "Is size to be the measure of importance? Less than one in a thousand in the United States are Unitarians yet in the Hall of Fame of New York University, twenty out of the fifty were members of this denomination. Yet if these twenty were alive today the only part they could take in the Interchurch Movement would be to contribute to the expenses of their own conversion to orthodoxy. There have been several Unitarians good enough to be President of the United States, but evidently they were lost souls and are now perishing in hell."

They are worth very much more; but we won't discuss that. They are Caps that look at home at Baltusrol or Sleepy Hollow; and seem perfectly at ease in a Packard.

So, they rather resent all insinuations as to their low price, preferring to be bought for what they are, not what they cost.

You will find a predominance of rich vernal shades of solid gray, brown and green, with just enough good-looking tweeds, plaids, herringbones, checks and heathers to make the assortment interesting.

But Borden's milk raised four of us."

Written by Dora Kitchen, age 11 years, Plainfield, N. J.

When little Dora Kitchen put down this plain fact, she simply made, in her own cute little way, the same statement that thousands upon thousands of people have made before her. Since way back in Dora's grandmother's time Borden's milk has been the standard of quality. It is safe, wholesome and always dependable. Growing children find it the most nourishing and the most economical food.
